baby in arms, who had gone to jail with her three weeks ago, when a still was found in her house in Welsford by federal and provincial officers.
Her husband was at work at the time of the raid and, hearing of it, he escaped from the country, while his wife and in- fant went to jail. Later, remorse over- took Leonard and, seized with a desire to see his baby, he returned, was arrested and also sentenced to six months.
Recommendations to the proper au- thorities brought the parole order, but Mrs. Leonard was loath to leave the jail. "We no want to come out," she told the governor.
"Let my husband out, if he say here, me and my baby will have no place to go and nothing to eat."
Eventually she was released, but against her will.
