HARDWARE MARKETS

(Hardware and Metal, Dec. 25) The outstanding feature this week is the reduction made in the price of building papers and roofings. The lower quotations on tarred felted rags have been declining for some time, states Hardware and Metal.
Other declines include cotton goods, sash cords, twines, etc., fuel oils, and some grades of lubricating oils, valves, unions, solder and lead products.
Bar iron and steel are quoted at a slight reduction, and lower prices are asked for galvanized sheets. Ingot metals have reached lower levels and continue weak.
There is a quieter feeling, but the holiday trade is reported good and confidence in the outlook for next season seems general.
The removal of the luxury tax is regarded with satisfaction by jobbers and merchants, and though much of the holiday business had been done before the change was announced, it is expected that trade will be stimulated by the withdrawal of the tax.

1,900-YEAR OLD DOLL

into the possession of the museum here a group of ancient Roman objects which were discovered in the tomb of a little girl of the period of 1,900 years ago.
The objects were in a fine state of preservation and one box contained the child's dolls.
