CUNNABELL'S NOVA (27) SCOTIA ALMANAC.

ington, "what monsters them cotton-factors must be. I'm told one on em has as many as a hundred hands!"

A Mathematical Lover.—A young lady, a few days ago, received a love epistle from an illiterate swain, which commenced,— "Dearest angle of my soul," &c. "Well!" she exclaimed, tossing the missive into the fire, "that corners me, certainly!"

"Be prosperous and happy; never require our services, and we will remain your friends" This is not what society says, but it is often the principle on which it acts.

All is hollow where the heart bears not a part, and all is peril where principle is not the guide.

A certain discounteer was lately exhibiting to an unhappy client his pictures and fine furniture, amassed piecemeal from various distresses, like the miscellaneous collection of a broker's shop. Pointing at last to a bust of himself, he asked, "Don't you think it's like me?" "Exactly," was the reply, "the very heart is of stone."

Prodigals are persons who never learn the difference between a sovereign and a sixpence, until they want the latter.

Good-nature, like a bee, collects honey from every herb. Ill-nature, like a spider, sucks poison from the sweetest flower.

Why is old cheese, better than cold steel?—Because it is mitier than the sword!

Happiness doats on her works, and is prodigal to her favourite. As one drop of water hath an attraction for another, so do felicities run into felicities.

If you do not wish to fall in love with a girl, don't commence flirting with her. Courting for fun is like boxing for fun. You put on the gloves in perfect good humour—with the most friendly intentions of exchanging a few amicable blows; you find yourself insensibly warm with the enthusiasm of the conflict: until some unlucky punch in the "veskit" spoonful of brandy, and a pint of gin; mix all together; with a sponge or flannel, spread the mixture on each side of the silk, without greasing it; wash it in two or three waters, and iron it on the wrong side; it will then look as good as new.

HOW TO RENDER CLOTHS, SILKS, &c. WATER PROOF.—Take one pound, each of common alum, (sulphur alums,) and of sugar of
