In 1845, he, with a number of others were organized into the 2nd St. George church, and was appointed deacon in the new body; the duties which he faithfully and conscientiously filled until death called him home, in the 84th year of his age. He was a Christian both summer and winter, on land and sea. He leaves a wife and two sons and a daughter, who all feel the loss of an affectionate and devoted father. Our sister was a great sufferer for more than eight years. Her trust in the saving power and sustaining grace of God was complete. At evenings with her it was a pleasure to hear her original member of the West Yarmouth Baptist church. Her entire record as a Christian is fragrant with the aroma of a rare consecration to the service of Christ. The funeral was largely attended—Pastor Thomas officiating. Pastor J. H. Saunders, of Milton, a former pastor of the church was present, and spoke words of very great comfort to relatives and friends.

Our brother was away from home working to support his family, when he was seized with what proved to be a fatal sickness, and six days after taking his last breath he passed away. This unexpected bereavement was a terrible shock to his relatives and friends. On hearing of his illness, his wife hastened to see him but was heart-broken to learn on her arrival that his spirit had just taken its flight. The remains were brought home and interred in the family burial ground, White's Cove. The scenes at the grave and at the memorial service were most touching. The Rev. G. W. Eight years ago she, with her father and mother, removed to Marlboro, Mass., where they united with the First Baptist church of that city. Her life was one of sweetness and purity and she ever exemplified the life of Christ by her daily walk and conversation.

Always thoughtful of others, she was loved by all who knew her. She bore her severe sufferings without a murmur and often expressed a desire to be with her Saviour whom she loved. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. F. S. Davis. Many hearts mourn their loss today, especially the dear father and mother, one brother and wife residing in Brookton, Mass., and another who has charge of a ship at "Immanuel" on the Pacific coast.

THURBER.—At Freeport, N. S., Aug. 19th, Deacon Isaiah Thurber, in the 74th year of his age. Bro. Thurber was senior deacon of the Freeport church and had been a faithful servant the most of his long life. For twenty long years he had served as superintendent of the Sabbath school, before passing the work over to younger hands. In later years he did not assume so much work as formerly, but always had great interest in the welfare of the church. The pastor found in him a true friend. His failing faculties did not reduce his love for the Lord and His people, and he was found among the most regular attendants at His house, ever ready to contribute his share to sustain the devotional and other services. As a citizen he was respected and trusted, and shared the honor and responsibility of a number of offices under the crown, viz: Justice of the Peace, Inspector of Customs, etc. His death was hastened by falling from the roof of his barn on which he was working the day before his death. An aged widow and several members of his family survive him, and mourn the loss of an affectionate husband and father.

KINNEY.—Deacon Pearl D. Kinney, of Temple church, Yarmouth, passed into the spirit world, Oct. 18th, after a somewhat tedious illness. He had only reached the age of 48 and was therefore in the prime of life and in the midst of his labors. He leaves a widow and five children to mourn the loss of a kind husband and father. By Bro. Kinney's taking away, the church of Christ sustains a great loss. Bro. Kinney was baptized into the fellowship of Zion Baptist church March 18th, 1866, and immediately entered upon an active Christian life. He was superintendent of the Sabbath school eight years and served as deacon fourteen years, and served for himself a good length of time. He was dismissed to join Temple Baptist church of this town in 1886, where he has also been superintendent of the Sabbath school and an honored deacon. This brother was deeply interested in the work of the church, where and was well read in all the missionary operations of the body, but he was specially interested in Sunday school work, and occupied the position of county visitor under the A. B. S. Convention of this county, until his health compelled him to resign the office. Some of the papers read by Bro. Kinney before our A. B. S. Conventions have been published in the MESSENGER AND VISITOR and are well deserving notice. When Bro. Kinney was informed he could not live, he immediately began, with Christian cheerfulness, to set his house in order. He told all who came to him why he was closing out his business, and it is known to all business men in the town that Pearl D. Kinney was about to die and was not afraid. In the sick room it was the same cheerfulness and Christian faith were on exhibition there and the influence of his death will be felt in the hearts of those services took place from the audience room of the church where he loved to worship God.
