"Andrew Weir, director general of supplies, and, among other things, in tharge of the army salvage system, was good enough to show and explain to me his methods of operation. He told me that in the space of three years he will have saved to the nation through salvage, or, rather, in effect created for the nation, $500.

the imagination.

"The desire of Great Britain to do everything possible for our boys over there and to make of the present commadeship in arms a lasting, deep and cordiat friendship between the two nations is strikingly manifest throughout the land, from the highest to the lowest. I believe the importance of meeting them in the same spirit, sincereiy, wholeheartedly, and without reservation, cannot be overestimated.

"Whatever betide, the world will be safe for peace, humanity and liberty as long as America and Great Britain, understanding and trusting one another, stand on guard. The world will not be safe otherwise for any length of time. If she should be given the opportunity once hore Germany, by subtle and open means, may be expected to try again to sow the seeds of dissension between America and England after the war, as he did for so

French, the Super

France is superb beyond words. Inappened to be in Paris during the two weeks beginning May 27, when the Germans broke through at the Chemin des Dames and came within about 40 miles of Paris, when there was a long-range bombardment of Paris almost daily and air raids practically every night. Yet life and bustness in Paris went on as before; there was not the slightest evidence of excitement, let alone fear. A good many men sent their womenfolk and children away; other measures of prudence were taken to guard against contingencies, but there was absolute calm and sangfroid.

"It was only the outburst of en thusiasm at the magnificent fighting and far-reaching success early las June of the Americans hurriedit thrown into the battle in the neigh borhood of Chateau-Thierry, which showed how great had been the strain how tense the nerves underneath thouter caim. It is a soul-stirring story—the story of that relativel small American force rushing forwar at a very critical moment and turning that tide by throwing itself upon the enemy with irresistible dash and bravery. When the full account of the war comes to be written it will, I be lieve, be found that that action, in it psychological and strategic conse events.

"What the men—and the women too—of France have done of heroism, and resolutely and uncomplatiningly borne of sacrifice these last four years forms one of the very noblest chapters in the world's history. The entire civilized world owes a debt to France which it can never repay. She has, indeed, become the sacred soil of numanty.

"It is touching to observe on every hand the affection and gratitude of the French people toward America. It France, as well as in England, there is the most warm-hearted and admirring recognition of idealism and unsatiledness of America's aims and attitude under President Wilson's leadership And their admiration for the valor the fighting capacities, and the conduct of our troops knows no bounds. "It was interesting and significant to notice how universally the Frenci look to us for commercial co-operation after the war. Through our army' constructive activities they have seen at work on their own soil a race in which tradition, surroundings, and the principles and methods of personal initiative and individual enterprise haw developed daring, resourcefulness, self reliance, adaptability, and short-cu methods. They want us to join our qualities with their qualities and their opportunities.

Opportunities in France

"And strange as it may seem in sold a country. France offers many an great commercial opportunities quit apart frea the work of reconstrution. Moreover, their colonies are a empire of immense resources and vas potential wealth.

"It is to be housed that the neterous otential wearth.

"It is to be hoped that the paternal istic control of enterprise and industry, which is a necessary measure it war time, will not be permitted in our country to grow into a permanent feature of our gogarnmental, system and that as soon as possible the fetters now placed upon private initiative and personal incentive will be removed and the genius of American in dividual enterprise set free again with due regard, be it understood, for the welfare and opportunities of the masses of the people and for the duty of the state to protect those least able to protect themselves and to prevent exploitation of oppression, undusprivilege, and unfair practices.

"At a time when the unprecedente upheaval of the war has led to a go deal of turgid thought and planning inding expression in crude socialistic preachings and proposals in othe countries, including our own, the French people, with the proverbil lucidity of their mental processes and their clear recognition of the realitie of things are turning in the direction of fostering and ethnulating persons effort and enterprise and private in taitive after the war. "I am pretty familiar with big or ganization work but I have seen nothing which impressed me more and vertew things, indeed, which impressed the more and vertew things, indeed, which impressed me as much as the work planned, escuted and administered at the harbor at our bases and along our line of suplies by that great chief, General Pershing and the officers whom he halaced in direct charge. Nor have met any wiser or better posted or mo hard-working men than those at the and of special departments of the army with whom I had occasion come into content.

come into contact.

"And from what I have seen else where the same spirit of devoted an unseffish service and of intense, unsaring, ceaseless effort pervades the navy.

"An immense debt of gratitude and recognition is due from the nation to its defenders. They have won golder opinions wherever they have been it Europe, they have been a revelation to other nations, they have shed lustre upon the name of America.

"No American can see what our army and navy are doing in Europe in the way of fighting, of planning, constructing, administering, no one can see their morale, spirit and behavior without being deeply thrilled with pride and gratitude.

with the affectionate admiration, with the trust and faith of the allied nations toward our country without feeling even more profoundly and reverently than before the high privilege of being an American citizen and without being stirred by a solemn sense of the obligation to do whatever he individually may be capable of doing, to prove himself a worthy servant of the Great Republic in war as well as in peace and an earnest and sincere helper, however modestly and humbly, toward the realization of her high ideals and lofty mission."

OU will find it easy to place today's Chalmers in its proper class among motor cars.

You have only to drive a Chalmers to learn whether or not it reaches the standard you have set for motor performance.

This we invite you to do.

Chalmers motors have made a tremendous advance. Two new Chalmers features, the "Hot Spot" and the "Ramshorn" manifold, give wonderful smoothness and power.

up" the motor instantly—even in cold weather.

But you can best judge how marked an improvement has been made. You will recognize the nice points of Chalmers performance, the easy working of control parts, wide flexibility, responsiveness, efficiency. You will know whether the car "handles" well or not.

—that is, if you slip in behind the wheel and drive the Chalmers yourself.

Do that. A demonstration will be arranged at any time to suit your convenience.
