MENTAL TENSION.

to Realize the Difficulty of Keeping a Natural Pose. We never know how active our im-ginations can be till we let them out or till they get the better of us for some reason. A major in the army recently admitted that when he went into action for the first time he was so scared that he did not know which way was north, but he had an over-whelming desire to reach it, wherever Yet, after six or eight battle and after being wounded a couple of times, he regarded battles very much as people hereabout regard the evening fight at the Manhattan end of the ridge, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Cases of wanting to run when bullets fly are by no means difficult to find. But a young soldier in Brooklyn confesses to a more queer experience. His regiment was in camp and had been ordered out for dress parade, as usual. When lined up for inspection, every man as stiff as a ramrod and not a white glove moving, this young man, a lieutenant, began to ask himself: 'Suppose I should slip, or anything, to break the quiet? Suppose I should fall?" The idea of falling kept growing in his mind till before the inspection was over and the regiment was allowed to use its feet once more he could hardly keep on his legs and was in a great sweat of agony from the dread of tumbling over and making an exhibition of himself.

People who have never tried it do not realize how hard it is to stand absolutely still and yet appear interested and at ease. Artists' models succeed at it, especially those in Italy, and will hold a pose not too difficult for an hour. Actors, when they group about the man in the center of the stage, who is en-joying all the limelight—and how they hate them for it-are required to keep still, so as not to distract attention from the great man's sayings and motions, and because they must group in such a way as to form a picture and keep it till it can be realized by the eyes in front. But this enforced statuesqueness is hard on the supes. They are not used to it. When they are put un der the strain, and when as Roman warriors they must stand at the back without winking while Brutus or Virginius or some other ponderous person unbosoms himself respecting love or politics, they are in a small torture. One such last season who could no longer abide it to listen to the soliloquy by the head man pitched over on his face and had to be lugged out by the arms to the spoiling of the scene Babies Never Get Seasiek "Babies never get seasick. I have carried thousands of them in my time," said an American line steward, according to the Philadelphia Record, "and in rough weather I have seen their fa-thers, mothers, brothers and sisters keel over like soldiers before a cannon ball; but not so with the babies.

Whether it be rough or smooth at sea, a baby is always an excellent sailor—rosy, jolly and with the appetite of a horse. Do you know the explanation of this singular fact? It is as simple as the fact is strange. Bables don't get seasick because they are accustomed to the rocking of the dle. That movement is much like the rocking of a ship. A baby aboard ship, therefore, is merely a baby in an unusually big cradle, and there is nothing odd to him about the rocking, for it is what he has been accustomed to all

"When a man gets used to drinking rainwater," said a New Orleans man to the Washington Post, "there is no other water in the world that tastes so good. Most of the people in New Orleans have cisterns in their yards which hold an abundant supply of water caught from the clouds, the purest and best in the world, according to my notion The winter rainfall alone is used, the summer catch not being desirable. It is somewhat curious that in northern latitudes the cistern water does not keep wholesome and sweet as it does n our country."

SLEEP ON A COLD SMOKE. uffing an Empty Pipe Said to Be an

After giving a fair and patient trial to each of many alleged cures for sleeplessness the writer stumbled across a simple method of inducing somnolence that has the merit of being harm less and inexpensive. To smokers the remedy involves no cost whatever, but of nonsmokers the capital outlay of the price of a pipe is required. It must wooden pipe and curved, not straight.

Having retired for the night, the suf ferer should lie perfectly flat on his back, discarding pillow rests, and pillow steadily at an empty pipe until he feet thoroughly drowsy. The desired result usually is achieved after from ale The puffing should be do: slowly, with a deep inhaling moveme. The expelling motions must be ma deliberately with narrowed mou: During the entire operation the pi should not be removed, as each displa ing and replacing movement tends wakefulness.

Those capable of great concentration of thought should, if smokers, imagin they see volumes of smoke, and the eschew the burning weed will i helped by counting the puff's.

As sleep is often successfully woo while yet the pipe is in the mouth bowls of meerschaum or clay are no recommended, since these are liable to e broken when the coming of slumbe allows the pipe to slide from the mouth. Nervous people may be reas sured that there is no danger in falling asleep with the stem edge of a curved pipe caught between one's teeth. Sleep always occasions the grip to be re-moved. That may hold also of straight pipes, but for other and obvious reas these are less suitable than thos with curved stems.

LONDON'S LORD MAYOR.

His Power as Well as the Area He Rules Is Limited. The lord mayor of London is not the all powerful official he is thought to be on the continent. He is not the mayor of all London, but only of the city of London, and the City is but a fra tion of the whole. Greater London has roughly, a population of 6,000,000, but in the 650 acres that comprise the City there is a resident population at night of only 38,000 and by day of little over 300,000. And even within this area the powers of the lord mayor and of the twenty-six aldermen and the two hundred odd common councilors are by no means autocratic.

Much of what used to lie within his and their province has been taken over by the London county council. In fact, the average Londoner never thinks of the lord mayor as an edict making law giving official. He stands altogeth er apart in the popular mind from ques-tions of rates and assessments, schools and police. Very few people could say what legislative functions, if any, he fulfills. They may have heard that he is the chief magistrate of the courts but beyond that their knowledge of his precise duties does not stray. It is the social and decorative side of his posi tion that impresses the public. lord mayor is never without his badge and rarely without his robes and chains of office. SLATES VS. SCRIBBLING BOOKS

Racy Description of an Old Time In-

But with all their advantages, we oldsters can afford to pity them, for they no longer have that instrument of instruction and fearful pleasure—the slate, writes H. F. G. in Toron-

Our affections are for life. We live by these. They supply our warmth.

There's a story of a farmer and his son driving a load to market. Of the team they were driving one was a steady, reliable, old gray mare, the other a fractious, balky black horse. On the way the wagon was staled and the black horse sulked and refused to pull. "What'll we do, father?" said the younger man. "Well," said the gad on the old gray." That homely compliment to women: "The gray mare's the better horse" suggests how often when there's an extra strain to be borne it is laid on the woman's back. How often she breaks down at last under the added weight of some "last straw." Women who are dragging along wearily through life can gain real strength making material which working women use up more rapidly factory boss to the jar of machinery. In those days, it was considered that every business had its small voice just as bees buzz, flies drone, crickets chirp, frogs croak, and moscrickets chirp, frogs croak, and moscrickets chirp, frogs croak, and moscrickets chirp. quitoes shrill. But now it's "Go to quitoes shrill. But now it's "Go to the ant, thou sluggard. Don't make a row. Work like a nailer. Bottle up your steam." Even recess is an orderly, disciplined thing, with no joy in it. There is no distinguish-ing note of the schoolroom nowa-days. If a bad boy disturbs the awful silence by dropping a pin, he is kept in after four. All this came in with the scrib-is kept in after four.

All this came in with the scribbling book, which is cheap, clean, but uninspiring. It is subject to daily inspection, and as marks of crasure mean demerits for untidiness. the schoolboy is at once deprived of much entertainment that might re-concile him to his hard lot. If the teacher is a crank you can't worry him by making a pencil scream, and certainly, in the olden times, that delightful form of revenge kept many a boy in school when he might have been playing hookey. And, then, what a handy medium the slate was for caricatures of the teacher, for caricatures of the teacher, for doggered rhymes, printed in large, bold letters that could be seen six seats back! What fun it was to raise a laugh that way, and then, with one lightning stroke, to expunge the offence when the master punge the offence when the master said, "Tommy, bring that here," And Tommy would go with a blank tablet and a face shining with innocency. Ah, vis, the slate was indeed a fine thing for pictures and lanpoons, and for the tender messages the boy would show chivalrously to his little sweetheart across the aislet. The scribbling hook, is the aislet The scribbling book is no place for these stealthy pleasures because the schoolma'am can keep tab on every line in it.

And with the slate went a lot of gear that a scribbling book knows nothing of. There was the sponge, for instance, neatly tied to the frame. And, best of all, the water bottle, where little girls had a chance to display the art feeling in the col-for and fragrance of the cleansing fluid. We look back twenty-five years and wonder at the splendid effects produced by soap, water, cologne, and indigo or cochineal shaken up Some of it looked good enough to drink, and smelt good enough to eat. Of course there were dirty boys, even in that golden age, who preferred to use nature's weapons—the salivary glands and a coatsleeve. But even that was an indication of character. It showed they didn't care how they got at a thing, and some of these dirty urchins have since become mil-lionaires. We can't turn back the universe and have yesterday, but while the sun shines we give our oice for slates as against scribbling

Between the sun's time as recorded at Greenwich and as understood at Paris there is that brief and seemingly unimportant discrepancy. The inaccuracy is more important than will appear to the lay mind. Longitude is calculated on the basis of Greenwich time. It determines the boundaries of many countries. A slight variation of time may change the nationality of thousands of people. The pursuit of the missing fraction of a second is therefore of worldwide importance. We shall all be much relieved when it has been found, for then not a grain of the sands of time will be missing.—Toronto Mail and Empire.

Few persons would guess that the smallest things visible to the eye are the stars. Yet Dr. Edward Divers was no doubt correct in declaring such to be the case in his address before the chemical section of the British Association at Belfast. Great as many of the stars are in actual magnitude, their distance is so immenso that their angular diameter becomes insensible, and they approach the condition of geometrical points.
