HIS WORTHY EXAMPLE.

In refusing to remain in Sir John Thompson's ministry, points out the Ottawa Citizen, when he could no longer approve the policy of the premier, the late Hon. Clarke Wallace set an example that gentlemen now supporting Sir Wilfrid would do well to imitate. But with the record of the Liberal party's shameless abandonment of its professed principles for the loaves and fishes it is overmuch to expect that any of them would prefer his principles to his pocketbook and the more when one recalls the fact that has overtaken the member for Liger who was sacrificed, not for deserting his principles and the 96 Liberal platform, but for holding fast the professions of his political faith and the doctrines received by tradition from the fathers.

A PLAN TO SUPPRESS ANARCHY.

Out of the numberless suggestions for the suppression of anarchy with which the American newspapers have been flooded since the assassination of President McKinley, the best, and probably the only one of any practical value, says the Toronto News, is that of Jacob A. Riis, the author of "How the Other Half Live." Mr. Riis' idea that either by the action of philanthropic individuals or by the action of national or state governments labor bureaus should be established all over the country for the purpose of bringing those who are willing to work to the work that certainly awaits them, and in many places hunger for them. There would of course be enormous difficulties in the way of the system, and more or less dissatisfaction in its working, however perfect it might be, would have to be counted on. No one, nevertheless, who knows anything about the value of an honestly conducted private bureau of employment to men who are out of work can doubt that good would result from the establishment of such a system as Mr. Riis suggests. The various branches would keep in constant touch with each other, and the service alone, which they would perform in equalizing the supply and demand of labor would be beyond all calculation.

Mr. Riis is an old friend of President Roosevelt, and is said to enjoy his confidence. They were together in the great reform movement which led to the defeat of Tammany in New York some years ago, and it may be that Mr. Riis has the assurance of the sympathy and support of the President for his scheme. It is well worth trying, at any rate, and there seems no reason why the government goes into it earnestly, that it should not fulfill the hope of one of its advocates, who in a recent newspaper review said that the bureaus would do more to alleviate misery than the founding of a thousand charities, for the greatest and noblest of all charity was to help man to help himself.

PRESS CENSORSHIP.

Of cable news from South Africa we have next to nothing. The censorship is so strict that nothing but an occasional official despatch is given to the public. The latest English mail, however, brings us advice which are of a somewhat grave nature, and show that the weary struggle is still going on with intense bitterness. The London Express correspondent, using the mail, conveys to his readers some idea of the conditions which is not reassuring. It shows how necessary it is to maintain the rigid censorship; how important it is, not that the loyal people of Great Britain be kept from knowing the worst, but that the disloyal pro-Boers be prevented from having information which they would immediately make known to their friends in South Africa, to the detriment of the British cause.

Nothing Tastes Good

And eating is simply perfunctory—done because it must be. This is the common complaint of the dyspeptic.

If eating sparingly would cure dyspepsia, few would suffer from it long.

The only way to cure dyspepsia, which is difficult digestion, is to give vigor and tone to the stomach and the whole digestive system.

Hood's Sarsaparilla cured Mrs. Frances Blonidin, Pembroke, Ont. Her husband, Mr. W. A. Nugent, Belleville, Ont., all of whom suffered greatly from dyspepsia. Mr. Nugent writes, "I am fully cured. I feel like a new man, and my appetite and energy are restored."

and Orange Free State, and removing the families of the Boers to the concentration camps, pretty effectually cleared that portion of the country of the enemy, but the scene of operations has been transferred to Cape Colony, and it is there that the Boers are apparently preparing to make their last stand. If the information at hand is to be believed, the Dutch British subjects in Cape Colony are in a state of open or quiescent rebellion; undoubtedly furnishing the men in the field with supplies, assisting sympathizers of all nations to reach the commandos and actually swelling the ranks of the enemy from their own numbers.

The Express, editorially commenting upon the letter of its correspondent, says: "Once more the British people must catch hold and hang on like the bull-dog breed they are. We have no fear for the ultimate result, but we have a very pressing fear that the desired end may be postponed by the follies of certain misguided folk in our midst. We can safely prophesy that when the pro-Boer press learns the serious condition of affairs in the Colony it will raise another and yet more piercing howl against the war. And the worst part of it is that with the black news from the Cape for their text they may lead astray an occasional wavering from the straight and stern path of national duty. It is this fact—that we have enemies within our gates—that complicates and intensifies the difficulties of those who are conducting the war. It is undoubtedly the pro-Boers in England—ready as they are to exaggerate our reverses, to listen to every lying tale that seems to involve their countrymen in dishonor, and to prophesy evil with a malignant joy—who are responsible for the severity of the censorship. At first it seems strange that our generals should attempt to shield us from bad news. We are not accustomed to regard ourselves as a weak-backed people, easily disheartened by misfortune. But the duty of the censor, we take it, is to prevent the circulation of news that is likely to be of assistance to the enemy. How then can the full facts of the war be cabled freely to us when we have in our midst a small, yet dangerous and vindictive, band of men ready to use this intelligence to hamper their country by every means in their power? No one loves the Press censor. There seems something un-English about the man. But though he is an evil he is an unavoidable evil."

This explains why there has been a sudden revival of active pro-Boer effort in England. This news is the reason for holding five hundred pro-Boer meetings in various parts of the United Kingdom, as announced by cable yesterday. The meetings will be received with indignation by the mass of the people of Great Britain; may even lead to disorder among those who allow their antipathy to such efforts to go beyond words. At the same time the mere holding of such meetings will give great encouragement to the Boers in the field, and egg on the Dutch in revolt.

ROOSEVELTISM.

President Roosevelt has compelled the admiration of a section of the Democratic press by the appointment of an Alabama ex-Confederate officer to the judiciary. The Philadelphia Record says: "It is an encouraging proof of the nerve as well as of the wisdom of President Roosevelt that he has not hesitated to name ex-Governor Jones, of Alabama, for a United States district judgeship in that state. There is no question of the fitness of the nomination. But the fact that Governor Jones was an officer in the Confederate army was not allowed to stand in the way of his promotion. This is a new and welcome evidence that sectionalism is dead, and that the fact is fully recognized by a president who takes this method of showing his willingness to help bury the corpse."

COUNTRY AND CITY BOYS.

The question is often discussed as to why so many country boys come into the city, and outstrip the urban youths in the race for success in business. Many reasons are given, but the principal one may be given in the training and surroundings. The city boy is subjected to temptations that the country lad knows nothing about. The latter may have no better nature to start with than the city boy, and given the same opportunity to learn the evils that abound in the city, might go downward even faster than the youngster who has had the opportunity of visiting haunts of vice all along. But the necessities of farm life have caused the country lad to form frugal habits and keep good hours. When he leaves the farm to start life for himself he is placed on his mettle and comes into the city prepared to work any hours and at any kind of employment. If it is necessary to go to work at 5 or 6 a. m. he will do it. The city boy thinks 8 a. m. is early enough to get to business, because he has been taught that way. The country boy will go to bed at 9 or 10 p. m. in order to get the rest necessary for his work, while the city boy will remain out until 11 o'clock or midnight, and will thus rob himself of necessary repose. Watch the boys until they are grown to manhood, and in a great many cases you will see the country boys gaining the lead in business life. Not afraid of work he gains the confidence of his employer and gets rapid promotion, while the city boy thinks he has been worked too much for the money he receives, and grumbles and goes down. Numerous instances could be given of clever boys from the country coming to the city and becoming leaders in business and wealth. — Toronto World.

AN ADVANTAGE.

We think Theodore Roosevelt will make a better President as the successor of William McKinley than he would have made if he had been chosen President by the people. This because the character of the one President may be expected to modify in operation that of the other.

There is exactly the sobering effect upon Roosevelt that was needed in his entering the Presidency in this way.

TECUMSEH MONUMENT.

London Free Press.
A monument to Tecumseh, to be erected in the park, is advocated by the Macaulay Club, of Chatham. Mr. Thos. Scullard, chairman of the C. C. I. Board, is among the promoters. He says:—"This district, and especially that part of the county of Kent lying adjacent to the River Thames, should have some monument, because it was through this country that the retreat was made, and it was the point at the confluence of the creek and river that Tecumseh, with rare perception, selected as the place to oppose the Americans. The British General unfortunately neither accepted his advice nor respected his counsel, and retreated with disastrous results."

Successful and Pleasing Work When The Diamond Dyes Are Used.

Do You Wish to See the DIAMOND DYE MAT AND RUG PATTERNS?

The mothers, wives and daughters of Canada who buy fully eighty-five per cent of all goods consumed in the home, should be extremely careful when they purchase dyes for home dyeing. Some dealers for the sake of large profits are selling poor imitations of the Diamond Dyes, and other men, assuring their customers they are as good as the genuine Diamond Dyes. This low form of deception should be watched by all. In every case insist upon getting the genuine Diamond Dyes; the name appears on each package. If you would like to see the newest designs for mats and floor rugs, send your address to The Wells & Richardson Co., Limited, Montreal, and they will send you free by mail, sheets of the "Diamond Dye Mat and Rug Patterns."
