The residents of Nelson and Marcus.

from Nelson to a point near Cascade avoid a quarantine that is put on horses at Grand Forks by the provincial au-the interruption caused by the quaranand do away with what they considered to be a hindrance on their trade, and so they will build the road and pay for it out of their pockets. In fact, one has but to go south of the line to see that roads have been constructed wherever they are really needed, and in many cases without government aid. Wher-to in the discussion of the question of roads. One of these is that in the near future the Kootenay district is to be divided and new capitals will be established at the points that are most central and which are easiest to get in and out of by reason of their highways and railways. When it comes to a question of the establishment of a government headquarters for the district, of which this city will form a part, there will be rivalry on the part of several towns as to which one will be selected for that purpose. If we have wagon roads stretch-wheel, so that it will be easy to reach here from any part of the district to be so set apart, the capital prize will simply drop into our hands. We will not have even to reach for it. On the other hand

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THE Victoria Colonist very sensibly opposes the route to the Klondike via Kamloops and Teslin lake. The Colonist might go one step further and greatly increase its already excellent reputation for endeavoring to promote the welfare of British Columbia by using all its influence to discourage the Klondike craze, and at the same time devote all its energies to turning the tide of northbound prospectors to Kootenay and other rich and undeveloped districts of and privileges that may seem conducive this Province. In view of the fact that there are as good opportunities for the mineral prospector in British Columbia as elsewhere in the world, that portion of the Provincial press which is booming the Yukon gold fields is guilty of the most bare-faced disloyalty:
