MANY careful people have found that Red Rose Tea is very economical—that it yields more cups to the pound. That is because it consists largely of Assam-Indian teas, which are famous for their full-bodied richness and strength. They make Red Rose Tea go farther.

GIRLS' ONE-PIECE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The latest decree of fashion says that the junior girl must have a belted coat dress just like her elders, and she cannot help liking No. 5194. The broad tucks over the shoulders are very becoming to the slight girlish figure, and the clever way that the belt is inserted through slots makes the dress quite distinctive. As if this were not enough attraction for one small dress, a U-shaped yoke and a smartly cut collar are featured. A row of tiny fancy buttons decorates the yoke, and the latter are finished with a roll cuff.

Materials that are best suited to this type of dress are singham, chambray, percale, washable crepe, Scotch plaids, shepherd checks, poplin or serge.

The one-piece dress pattern No. 5194 comes in four sizes—8, 10, 12 and 14 years. To make the 8-year size requires 3½ yards 27-inch, 2½ yards 36-inch, 2¼ yards 44-inch, with ¾ yard 30-inch contrasting material and ¾ yard 36-inch silk for belt.

All of one material, 3½ yards 27-inch, 2½ yards 36-inch, 2¼ yards 44-inch. To obtain this pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

HOMELY AND THEREFORE NICE.

"She's terribly homely, but she isn't usually the pretty women who are the best at holding their husbands."

"Why do you say 'but'?" said the Authorman.

"Well, why not?" said Molly.

"I think 'and so' would be better," said the Authorman. "She's homely, and so she has to be nice."

"Why 'has to be'?"

"It's Not an Accident that Homely Girls Are Interesting."

"To make people like her. Did you think it was by accident that homely girls are apt to be the most interesting and the best mannered and generally the nicest. The way I've doped it out is that they have to be if they want to be liked, and being human beings, they do."

Molly considered. "You mean that pretty girls are never interesting or nice and that homely girls are never disagreeable."

"Of course. Some Cases of Homeliness Are Ingrowing."

"Not at all," said the Authorman. "I said 'apt to be.' And I don't mean that the homely girl consciously thinks things out and says 'I've got to be amusing and interesting and tactful, if I'm going to be liked.' A few of them do, but the most of them just go in that direction unconsciously. Circumstances push them that way. Of course some of them don't have the sense to go where they're pushed. They're the kind whose homeliness grows in on them and sours them. As for pretty girls, now and then you find one who is naturally too sweet tempered or clever to be spoiled by her own prettiness, but the most of them think it's enough for them to be pretty and just lie back on it. That's why it

"Something like the rich man and the eye of a needle," suggested Molly.

"I suppose masculine approval stands for Heaven in your simile," said the Authorman's Wife scornfully.

"I've usually found it so," said the Authorman quite undisturbed.

DIVIDENDS TO THE WORKMEN

France Takes Another Step Towards Making Laborer a Business Partner

(Associated Press.)

Paris, April 7.—Another step toward making the laborer a business partner, participating in both the profits and management of enterprises in which he is employed, is being taken in France. The senate has adopted the principle of a bill amending corporation laws so as to permit the allotment of shares to workmen collectively in any establishment to be held for all employees of one year's standing or more, for the distribution of the dividends among them.

In case of dissolution the capital stock will be shared between all the shareholders, those holding labor shares as well as capital shares. Wage earners under this measure also may participate in the management of the corporation.

The law provides exemptions in favor of corporations formed under this law which it is hoped may help solve the problem of conflicts between capital and labor and reduce the number of strikes which increase the distribution of the dividends to 1073 in 1913.

This law, it is held, will make mining shares less risky. Capital now hesitates at investment in these shares because of the frequency of strikes. The bringing of capital and labor into closer co-operation in this way has been one of Premier Briand's favorite projects.

The law under discussion, of course, cannot make it obligatory upon all corporations to accept the participation of their employees; it only encourages it by offering advantages that other corporations do not enjoy.

WOMEN SILENTLY SUFFER

There are sufferings which only a woman knows and about one woman in every four goes about her household duties while suffering actual pain.

If a man had to endure as much pain he would stay at home and let his wife take care of himself. But there is nobody to do the work of a wife and mother. Her household work cannot be neglected, and so she works on and silently suffers.

In nearly every case her suffering takes the form of backaches and pains in the side. Her appetite is poor, and the least exertion leaves her breathless, and yet she heroically struggles on with her manifold daily tasks. The whole trouble lies in the blood, which is either scanty or impoverished, so that the food she does take does not carry nourishment to the nerves, the brain and the body.

Anæmia is the medical term for this condition, and unless steps are taken to increase the blood supply, the sufferer may pass into a hopeless decline. To enrich the blood and increase its supply there is no medicine equal to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Every dose helps to make new, rich, red blood, which fills the veins, strengthens the nerves, aids digestion and stimulates the whole body. Through the fair use of these pills, backaches and sideaches disappear, and the former sufferer has new energy and new interest in life.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by dealers in medicine everywhere, or may be had by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Good Night N' Stories

By Blanche Silvest

The Old Apple Tree Come in and stop knocking," called the Apple Tree as some one kept rapping on the door.

"I see you have some vacant rooms," said Reddy Woodpecker, as he entered.

"There are several empty but I mean they shall stay that way. Last year when I let rooms to you birds it was all right until my fruit became ripe, then you thanked me by pecking great holes in the apples, so I decided to let them stand idle rather than entertain any birds again," replied the Apple Tree.

"I am sorry for I saw one room in the top which I like very much," said Reddy Woodpecker as he went away.

"I will teach them they must respect others' property," said the Apple Tree when the door had closed.

The Sun soon made the Apple buds swell and the Apple Tree awakened one morning to find her branches covered with beautiful pink and white blossoms. They unfolded and sent forth a wonderful perfume, and all the little birds for miles around asked about the vacant rooms, but the Apple Tree refused to rent them.

One evening the West Wind stopped to chat with her.

"There is a band of grasshoppers on their way and they will make short work of your blossoms if you don't take care," the West Wind told her, and the old Apple Tree shook with fear.

"They will eat my blossoms and I will have no fruit," she wailed, and the West Wind blew to the other trees to spread the news, and the whole orchard was thrown into a state of excitement.

"What a silly thing I have been! What a few bites of an apple in comparison to losing all my fruit!" No blossoms, no fruit!" and the next morning a great "For Rent" sign hung from the Apple Tree to rent early in the spring, had settled in the rooms of her friend's and none came to live in her's.

"Oh dear, Oh dear what shall I do?" asked the Apple Tree of her blossoms, but they could give her no answer, and the band of Grasshoppers swooped down on the orchard and began their battle. But as fast as they lit on a tree the birds would chase them away.

At last they came to the old Apple Tree, she shook with fear, but the birds finding that the Grasshoppers were good to eat, flew into her branches and before long there was not a grasshopper in sight.

The Apple Tree shook with joy, and thanked the birds that saved her beautiful blossoms.

Before long every room in the Apple Tree's home was occupied and all through the summer the birds flitted about in her boughs. Once in a while they would take a bite of apple and the old Apple Tree had nothing to say. She was glad to give something in return for all they had given her.

SAVE YOUR WASTE

On Tuesday of next week, the Brantford Thrift League, through its conservation of waste committee, will inaugurate a campaign for the collection of waste materials of every nature, and will undertake a systematic house-to-house collection.

The waste materials to be collected will comprise not only paper of every description, but will include clean old rags, old rubbers, old boots, bottles (not medicine), iron, zinc, brass, copper, pewter, lead (including foil from tea and other packets) electric light bulbs, etc.

It is the intention of the league to go extensively into the work of conserving the waste materials, turning the proceeds from the sale of such materials over to patriotic and worthy purposes.

Every housewife and every business man is invited to assist. The work has met with unbounded success in other centres, the citizens joining heartily, in the movement. A central store house is being arranged for, and a strong committee has been appointed to look after the work.

Badges will be provided for collectors, and citizens who wish to further the best interests of the city, and who would assist the committee in this work, are requested to refuse their waste to any one not wearing a badge bearing the words, "Brantford Thrift League."

The Prompt Answer.

YOU feel almost like shaking hands with a man when he comes to his telephone the moment the bell rings.

If he answers by saying at once "Mr. Blank speaking" instead of using the time-wasting "Hello" or "Well" you are still further pleased for you have saved valuable time and perhaps avoided a whole series of unnecessary questions to find out to whom you are speaking.

To always answer promptly and to announce yourself at once instead of saying "Hello" "Yes" or "Well" will go far toward keeping up the quality of your telephone service.
