

IN THE WORLD OF AMUSEMENT

That funny musical fantasy, "The Gingerbread Man," was presented at the Grand again last night, and it drew a fair sized house. There have been some changes in the company since it was here last but on the whole the production was just as good and as enjoyable as ever. The chorus was large, young and pretty and best of all the singing was good. The old favorite Ross Snaw appeared as the Fairy Queen and he was just as funny as ever. Fred Niece was in the title role and he sang and acted very well, but he did not put as much ginger in the part as his predecessor, Eddie Redway did. Miss Kellogg made good as Jack Horner and her solos were among the best of the musical numbers. Garrick Major, as the dealer in black cat, also sang well, and in fact nearly all the principals were capable singers.

Of course the hit of the evening was the song "John Doe," sung by Mr. Niece. He was recalled about a dozen times. A close second to this in matter of popularity was "Old Ramones" sung by Mr. Jas. McElhern, as King Bunn.

"The Gingerbread Man" is being given before a large audience this afternoon and the closing performance will be given this evening.

Ola Humphrey Returning.
New York, Oct. 23.—After an absence of more than a year, Ola Humphrey is sailing for America as fast as a transatlantic liner can bring her. She is aboard the same steamer on which J. C. Williamson, Australian theatrical manager, is a passenger. They are due to arrive on Saturday.

Miss Humphrey went to Australia originally for an engagement of twenty weeks. In "The Squaw Man," "Magda," "The Notorious Mrs. Elphinstone," and a number of other plays she made an immediate appeal to the Antipodeans, and when her original contract expired Mr. Williamson induced her to renew it for another period of the same length.

At Bennett's Theatre.
The Bennett Theatre is a large house and when it is filled there is an audience the size of which would do credit to cities much larger than Hamilton, but ever since Monday night the theatregoers have been evincing their appreciation of the bill by completely filling the place. This is not surprising, however, in view of the fact that there is a bill which is second to none as a novelty combination. One of the cleverest comedy skits on the road is "The Coal Strike," which is being presented by Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy. The latter is a born wit and his impersonation of the Irish stage character is intensely amusing. The average person who witnesses the act is filled with a desire to learn what is the nature of the act and when Mr. Murphy drops his bag of coal on a neatly draped parlor table and declares a strike because his request for higher wages is refused, the audience becomes wise immediately at the same time laughing into a spasm of laughter. "The Card Party" is an act which for dramatic intensity has anything in the vaudeville line beaten a dozen times. It is presented by Edward Forsberg & Co., in a brilliant manner, surrounded by a very pretty staging. The theme of the piece is very clever and the members of the company are above the average in ability. Gardner and Stoddard recite themselves in a very creditable manner as comedy sketch artists. Mr. Gardner indulges in a lot of fantastic twisting and turning while playing the piano, which is very funny. McNish and Penfold, indulge in some very clever humor. The former is a dancer of no mean ability and the latter displays his tenor voice in a creditable manner. Between the two the audience derives a rare quality of entertainment.

Willis and Hass, equilibrists; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lucier in their skit "A Romantic Romeo"; Werden and Taylor in their illustrated songs and Elsie Harvey and the other artists who assist in presenting one of the best bills of the season.

"The Right of Way."
Eugene Presbrey's dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker's novel, "The Right of Way," will be presented at the Grand here on Thursday and Friday evenings. The play is a series of pictures of the temptations through which every man passes in seeking an answer to the problem of life. He either comes out a nugget of gold or a criminal.

"The Right of Way," as a play, is a great big question mark, a dramatization of Sir Gilbert Parker did not answer the problem. In the play is given the only logical conclusion possible—the redemption of man through faith, love and death.

There has been a big demand for seats, and the Grand will be double crowded on both evenings.

At the Savoy.

The great advance sale for "Cricket Night at the Savoy" to-morrow assures a house packed to overflowing. Grace Hazard, the dainty and petite little miss, whose original offering of "Five Feet of Comic Opera" has been the talk of the season in vaudeville, continues to score a tremendous hit. She has a sweet, strong voice, a winning manner, and a fascinating way of singing her selections from the different operas that is irresistible, while her quick changes of costume in full view of the audience, each character being correctly dressed, is one of the features of the act. Nothing daintier than Miss Hazard's offering has appeared here yet. Miss Hazard is not the only enjoyable number on the bill, for every turn is thoroughly entertaining, and several of them star attractions. The Heras family of nine people have a graceful acrobatic act in which they do much difficult and sensational work.

Musical lovers will enjoy the work of Edmund Bosanquet, who in his specialty introduces the singing violin and the Bosanquetone. It is seldom that one hears on the vaudeville stage such an able violinist as Bosanquet. He is a thorough master of the instrument, and his executions and technique in illustrations of the work of Verdi and Paganini, proclaim him an artist of exceptional merit. Mile. Chester and her famous dog are seen in an exceptionally pretty act, the dog and woman posing to represent hunting scenes.

Girard and Gardiner, in a laughable little skit: Francis Dooley, assisted by Corinne Soles and Queenie Lauriers, in a clever little singing and dancing novelty, and the Three Kewtons, with Buster, are the laughing numbers on the bill. These acts bubble over with good, bright fun. Carl Siegfried, a one-legged athlete, does some remarkable jumping feats. The pictures, closing the show, are of more than usual interest.

Coming to the Grand.

One of the most thrilling and best written melodramas of the season is "Shadowed by Three," which will be the attraction at the Grand on Saturday afternoon, and there will be large audiences at both performances, as this style of attraction is popular here. Seats will be on sale to-morrow.

Lovers of the bucolic drama will no doubt turn out in large numbers on Thanksgiving afternoon and evening, at the Grand where Wm. A. Brady's production of the perennial wonder, "Way Down East" will be the attraction. The same big cast and production seen here in seasons past will again take us back to childhood days away back yonder, and the snow storm which is the big scenic feature of the play will of course cause a few chills to run down the spinal column when poor Anna Moore is turned from Squire Bartlett's house. Phoebe Davies still heads the cast.

"We Think We'd Like"

---A. K. T.---

"It seems to me," said Jack, "that we're all dissatisfied with what we're doing and all wishing to do each other's work."

"I suppose it's because other people seem to do their work more readily than we do ours," I remarked.

"That may be. In fact, I guess it often is so. We see a man make a weld, letter a sign, or sell soap on the market, and we think we could do it just as well."

"Because we haven't been doing it for years. Long practice tells the blacksmith where to strike to obtain certain results. A novice strikes the wrong place."

"If more of us tried we would think more highly of the blacksmith's skill," I observed.

"The curious thing is that the blacksmith makes the same mistake with regard to the carpenter, say. He thinks to himself, how foolish I am to hammer and sweat here, while Bill, that's the carpenter, works away quietly, and never even dirties his hands and, while he thinks of it, he grows ill tempered and dissatisfied, because he didn't happen to be a carpenter, while upstairs Bill is wishing he had a job near the warm fire and only a hammer to keep in repair."

"I think sometimes men are contented," I ventured.

"Certainly," Jack admitted, "I'm talking of the days they're not. And women are the same, only they seem to get dissatisfied with what they make rather than the work of making it. I know a woman—a good, hard-working, practical woman, who can cook anything. Her pies are delicious, and her house is always clean. One day we were talking together and she suddenly tells me she's tired of cakes and dishes. "It seems," she said, "all my labor is thrown away. I work all morning to get dinner ready, and after dinner—where is it all? I told her that cooking had always seemed to me a most honorable art. 'I know,' she said, 'but sometimes I feel I'd like to be a man and have my work always before me. I'd like to make engines, for instance.'"

"Did you tell her that when a man has made an engine he is either discharged or put to build another one?"

"I told her that, but she said that would be different to see your work eaten right up. I pointed out that engine building was hardly a recreation, yet she still has a fixed notion that she'd like it."

"I told her the will never build engines," I reflected.

"Of course not. That's where the moral lies. If she had wished to make a certain cake she could have done it, no doubt. But no, as she draws an appetizing, light brown cake from the oven there's a far away feeling she'd rather be a wife than an engine."

"Perhaps she doesn't realize that engines are rough, heavy and often dirty."

"I don't suppose she ever saw one being made at all. Possibly she's heard someone talking about them."

"And so many women wish they could be a wife and not an engine."

"Quite so. Right next door there's a likely woman who is a willing, but unskilled cook, and one who doesn't care at all about boilers or engines, though she'd love to be able to bake really nice cakes. And she'll worry over a recipe all afternoon, and finally run over to see the first woman who shows her it so easily. She talks a while, then goes home, wondering why Mrs. Jones isn't happy and contented when she's such a wonderful cook. She doesn't know about the engines, you see."

"And Mrs. Jones wishes she could set the town to her work like Mrs. Smith."

"We're all the same," said Jack, rising; "all except about one man in a hundred. The satisfied man either dies of obesity or else he's some kind of genius who goes crazy or gets robbed of his invention. It is just as well not to be too well satisfied; the little sore point, like the engine the woman is worrying about, is what makes us all look for friends—we want to tell them about it."

Mr. Robert Brown and his partner have moved into the postoffice, Mr. Brown's old stand.

Miss Ida Morden has gone to the city for the winter.

Mr. R. A. Harper and wife were in the neighborhood visiting his parents, and calling on old friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Blair, of Aberfoyle, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. Harper over Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Cook, of Georgetown, paid a flying visit to Mr. C. Harper on Monday, after preaching services at Carleton on Sunday.

Mr. Christopher Hamilton has purchased a farm in the vicinity of Cope-town, and expects to move in about three weeks.

Mr. Jacob Smith is under the doctor's care, and it is expected an operation will be necessary.

STOVE IN HER STERN.

Steamer Wahcondah Struck Wall of Welland Canal.

St. Catharines, Oct. 22.—The steamer Wahcondah, of the Merchants' Line, bound from Port William to Montreal, with a cargo of wheat, met with a mishap in the Welland Canal this afternoon. The canal takes a very sharp bend at lock 2, and as the steamer approached the lock, the wind was blowing a heavy gale, and she was unable to make the turn and struck against the wing wall of the lock and stove in her stern. Before she could get out of the lock her fore peak was full of water, and she was soon drawing fifteen feet forward. The canal being only about fourteen feet deep, the steamer made her way with difficulty to lock one, where Government divers examined her and found the plates on the stem stove in. Captain Hollingshead at once notified the underwriters, and word has been received that Captain Donnelly, of Kingston, is leaving for Port Huron to make an inspection. It is thought that the Wahcondah's cargo was not damaged, and it is expected she will be able to proceed down the lake to-morrow.

OUR MUNICIPAL BONDS.

Credit of the Country is Being Damaged in Great Britain.

West Strand, London, via Glace Bay, N. S., Oct. 22.—The credit of Canadian municipalities is being damaged, and credit generally not helped by the recent touting of municipal bonds in London.

It is believed cities of the Dominion could get money at reasonable rates if they went the right way about it, but if you want English money you must follow English methods. Canada ought not to be weakened in the money market.
