The West End Water Service.

Every misfortune has its lesson, and it is well when the lesson is taken to heart, and acted on promptly and fully. According to His Honor the Mayor the lesson of the deplorable fire yesterday is the need of a better supply of water for the West End. Apparently the water is forced up the street in lines there from Water Street by the general pressure from Windsor Lake level, and has to make its way against the friction of the inside incrustation of the pipes. To avoid the loss of pressure which results, the Mayor suggests the laying of a large pipe along LeMarchant Road and Cornwall Avenue, with outlets to feed the streets which are in the declivity to Water Street. We must confess that we were under the impression that the course outlined by the Mayor was part of the projected improvement in the Water Service for which a loan was raised from the Government. If it was not, it seems to us it should be, and subject to the opinion of the City Engineer, we are of opinion that the Mayor should impress on the Council the necessity of carrying it out, so that the West End may obtain an increase of volume and pressure of water, and a better all round service. The matter should not end in talk.

The Children's Century

The Twentieth Century will undoubtedly be the Children's Century. There is a real stirring up of the dead hopes of education throughout the world, and it is gradually being realized that the school is but a centralized department to aid the home in building up the character of boys and girls that they may as adults face the world in a manly and womanly way respectively. We are gradually learning that the school is not a mental gymnasium where boy prodigies may be turned out to perform intellectual stunts or merely to pick out a few boys to perform bigger ones at Universities. It is the training ground for the boy and girl of every degree of innate or acquired ability, be the latter forward, average or backward. The personal factor in education is the most influential and lasting. The object then of every educational system should be to obtain a body of teachers, thorough students of child life and of the influence of environments on the growth of the child in all its forms of development, and to retain skilled and experienced educators when they have been obtained. We notice that the main criticism on the Canadian system of education made by a party of school teachers from the old land on closing their visit to the Dominion, was as follows:—"In things educational, the spokesmen of the party stated, conditions were quite different to those prevailing in England. The small salaries paid teachers in the Dominion was below the standard prevailing in the Old Country and had the effect of forcing the profession largely into the hands of underpaid girls."

This spells inefficient teachers. It means undertrained and inexperienced teachers. We have not a word to say against female teachers as such within a limited sphere. As Kindergarten directors they have shown wonderful adaptability. Their keen sympathy has enabled them to enter into the play and work of such institutions with a keenness and power which has worked marvels. They are also doing good work with young boys. But when boys approaching the age of adolescence are under the direction of female teachers they suffer from lack of manly and virile direction.

Every school report issued in Newfoundland deprecates the loss of our best male teachers. The loss is irreparable. The professional training of teachers in Newfoundland is crude and in its infancy, yet we constantly suffer from a steady drain of our experienced teachers. So much so that it must make the hearts of our Superintendents sick. Still there is hope. There is an awakening.

The C. H. E. has done much towards quickening educational life in Newfoundland. But the standard of educational progress is not high. It is merely the examination phase. It is the stunt age. It is the time of directing school effort towards picking out children to win scholarships, prizes and diplomas. Too often a C.H.E. diploma holder with the minimum of knowledge of children, class teaching, school-keeping is sent, perforce, to take charge of the education of human beings.

We are sadly in lack of more thorough training of teachers for their professional duties. But our greatest impotence is shown in our inability to retain male teachers who have gained some skill, knowledge and experience from spending years in the school room.

Harbor Grace Celebrations Closed.

(Special to Evening Telegram.)
HARBOR GRACE, To-Day.

As the last act in the Guy Tercentenary, the British Band paraded the streets last night, bringing large numbers of visitors and citizens to the Exhibition Hall, which was beautifully illuminated with numerous vari-colored electric lights, interwoven among green trees and arches. After entering the hall, the chairman, Judge Oke, addressed the audience, enumerating the exhibits and thanking the exhibitors for their magnificent booths, and calling the attention of the public to the fact that it should not be necessary to import such goods as there displayed. He entered into the general celebration, and extended hearty thanks to the ladies for their successful efforts for the Hospital, to the band for their well rendered services, to visitors for their patronage, and especially to the general contributors who thus made the proceedings possible. He announced that the Roddick family would furnish and equip one six-bed ward in the hospital. Resolutions of thanks were unanimously passed with great enthusiasm to His Excellency the Governor and Lady Williams, Captain Wolcombe and wife, the officers and crew of H.M.S. Brilliant, the Government, the Lord Mayor and Corporation of Bristol, Archbishop Howley, Bishop March, Canon Noel and Smith and Rev. Mr. Bartlett. The speakers in order were Mr. Thos. Hanrahan, Mr. John Tapp, Mr. W. Ward, Mr. John Trapnell, Mr. H. H. Archibald, Mr. A. G. Munn, Mr. J. P. Shortis, Mr. W. J. James, Mr. J. D. Munn and Mr. Bernard Parsons. Special mention was made of Messrs. W. A. Munn and H. F. Shortis, whose untiring energy contributed so much to the success of the Celebration. After a few closing words from the Chairman the Celebration was closed, the band playing and the vast audience singing "God Save the King."

Sebastian Cabot's Birth and Death.

Dear Sir,—When Judge Prowse writes on historical errors he should be careful to consult the authorities, and not write from memory or draw upon his imagination. In regard to Sebastian Cabot he states (1) that he was of tender years in 1497 and therefore could not have accompanied his father on his famous voyage in that year; (2) that he lived until late in the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

The facts of Sebastian Cabot's birth, life and death were most exhaustively inquired into by M. Henri Harrisse, and are as follows: He was born in Venice, between the years 1475 and 1477, and was therefore a young man in 1497. In 1602 he presented three Eskimos to King Henry VII, thus indicating that he had certainly reached man's estate.

In 1512 he was appointed to an important post in the Spanish Marine thus indicating that he had arrived at mature years. He died between the dates Sept. 29th, and Dec. 25th, 1557, at the age of 80 to 82 years. Queen Elizabeth ascended the throne in November, 1558, about a year after his death. I may add that the date of his death is clearly indicated by the date of the last payment of his salary or pension, on Sept. 29th, 1557, and the first payment to his successor, Worthington, on Dec. 25th of the same year.
Yours truly, C. C.

Investiture of Prince of Wales.

There has recently been an interesting one on foot in Wales to petition the King to give his consent to a ceremonial investiture of the Prince of Wales in that country next year. An influential committee, it is understood has been formed to further the movement, consisting of Mr. Lloyd George, Lord Tredegar, Lord Cadwall, Lord Plymouth, the Bishop of St. Asaph, Sir Alfred Thomas, and the Rev. Cadvan Davies. There is a not unnatural rivalry between Carnarvon and Cardiff as to which centre should be honored in this way if the King's consent can be obtained. In influential quarters it is hoped that when the matter has been finally put in train the general feeling will be in favor of an investiture at Carnarvon, and that the petition of the people of Wales will take this form. It is regarded as very desirable that there should be unanimity of feeling and no effort will be spared to secure this. In the olden days an investiture took place in Wales. The first English one was at Lincoln, although afterwards received the homage of chieftains at Chester. The ceremony of the coronation of the Black Prince took place at Westminster. The Prince was crowned with a chaplet of gold made in the form of a garland, a gold ring was set on his finger, a sceptre or wand of silver was put in his hand and he was placed in his seat by the bishops. In the investiture of Prince Henry of Monmouth the sceptre was of gold.

Protection of Rulers From Anarchists.

London, Aug. 5.—At the invitation of Scotland Yard a most remarkable conference is to be held in this city in the middle of September. The delegates to the conference are to be detectives from all civilized countries, whose duty it is to protect the lives of royalty against anarchistic plotters.

The meetings of the conference are to be secret and no reports of the proceedings are to be given to the press, but it is known that the object of the gathering is to discuss new methods of dealing with anarchists, and if possible to put an end to their activity the world over.

Anarchists Unmolested.

At present anarchists are allowed to make their homes in this country unmolested so long as they do not attempt to carry out any of their plots here, but during the funeral of King Edward a very dangerous plan was discovered at the very last moment, and although nothing of it was seen in the papers, it showed an inclination to break the silent truce, and for this reason the conference will take up the question of new ways to deal with the would-be assassins.

Until now the opinion of Scotland Yard has been that it is far better that these men should be allowed to congregate together where their haunts are known and where it is the simplest matter in the world to keep an eye on them than that they should be scattered far and wide over Europe, each plotting in secret and in such a manner that it would be impossible to watch them.

There exists in London at the present day several properly constituted "murder clubs," each of which aims at the life of one or more sovereigns. It is doubtful whether there is any one of these clubs that is not perfectly well known to our police, and where spies of the authorities are not enrolled as members.

At times, of course, some of the less responsible members of these clubs and their allies lose their temper and attack persons suspected of being in the pay of the police, and then some very ugly scurrilous take place in the courts and stuns of Soho, and blood flows and heads are cracked. There is always a very strong force of police close at hand and the tumult is soon put to an end, and it is only in very rare instances that the outside world hears anything about the affray, or if it does it is merely described in the police court as a "drunken brawl."

There are dozens of anarchist clubs in London where the most outrageous talk is indulged in night after night. Here again the police are usually well represented, and next morning the authorities are in possession of the names of the speakers and the general drift of their speeches. All this information is carefully filed for future reference and will probably be subsequently taken down and used in evidence against them should occasion demand.

Experiments made with a thermometer, a temperature of 32 degrees in the sun, and a live man gave a result as follows: Inside the hat 37; a quarter of an hour's wear in the sun a Panama keeps the temperature down to 78 degrees; an ordinary straw boater, 82 degrees; silk hat, 89 degrees; hard felt hat leaves it at 92 degrees; a tweed cap raises it to 91 degrees; a policeman's helmet to 97 degrees.—Men's Wear.
