A Fierce Campaign.

LONDON, Oct. 19 .- Cecil Rhodes is re orted to be confident that Lobengula will wholly smashed within a month. Sir be wholly smashed within a month. Sir Frederick Carrington and other skilled Zala campaigners here take a different view, and evidently think it an oven chance that a British invading force will be exterminated instead. The local spinnism seems to be based on the theory that the Matabele will come out and fight at long range in the open where naked arrages with assegais stand no chance. Carrington, however, says they are far too canning for that, and at best it will be a long, bloody and costly bush campaign.

Jailers and Burglars Conspire. CALCUTTA. Oct. 19 .- Two warders in the Baraset jail, near here, have been convicted Baraset jail, near here, have been convicted of a conspiracy which has probably no parallel in the history of criminal prisons. These unfaithful guardians of the cells conceived the idea of establishing a profitable partnership with certain burglars under their charge. To this end they selected three convicts, took them to the warders' quarters, exchanged their jail apparel for everyday clothing, and told them to go forth and break into the houses in the beality. The plunder was to be brought "hame" in the morning for equal distribution among the parties concerned, and the covicts were then to resume their peacefuldaily work. Fortunately for the interest disciety, the burglars became discontented ciety, the burglars became discontented with their share of the spoils and were overheard discussing their grievances by another warder, who gave information to the prison authorities. The warders with whom this audiciously ingenious scheme originated were sentenced to two years' rigorous imprisonment, but on appeal thoi case was committed to the criminal sessions

A BOLD AND BRUTAL THIEF. Captured and Lodged in the Simood

Simcos, Oct. 19.—Yesterday a scoundrel entered the house of Mr. Jas. Burgess, in the north ward. Mrs. Burgess was alone in the kitchen and on golng into the front part of the house was surprised to see a tall well-dressed man there. On demanding who he was she was struck a severe blow on the head; the brute then kicked her, breaking her jaw in two places. He then locked her up in a small room and attempted to make his Jaw in two places. He then locked her up in a small room and attempted to make his sessape. The old lady recovered consciousness and gave the alarm. After an exciting race of half a mile the fellow was captured and lodged in jail, where he gave his name as J. W. Ross and said he came from Toronte. When searched there was found on his person a pawn ticket for a watch, an outfit of skeleton keys and several burglar's tools. It is supposed he had entered the residence of Rev. Mr. Dey and taken a number of articles and also went to the house of Mr. Lemon and secured a quantity of jewelry, as these articles were all found in his possession and were identified.

MRS. LUCY STONE DEAD.

One of the Ablest of the Woman Suffrage Boston, Oct. 19.—Lucy Stone, the eminent leader of the woman suffragists, died here last night. Mrs. Stone was born in Wost Brookfield, Mass., in 1818. While she was still a girl her mind became coentrated on the subject of women's rights, and she resolved to have a collegiate education. She graduated from Oberlin in 1847 and the following year began her lectures for female sufrage.

In 1855 she was married to Henry B. Blackwell, but as a matter of principle insisted on retaining her own family name. Some years later her property was seized Hamilton, Oct. 19.—A man named me produce Tuesday. He had a man to ing in the produce and accompanied him. I returning home they picked up Arthur itchen. Weaver hitched up a horse and On returning home they picked up Arthur Kitchen. Weaver hitched up a horse and buggy and said he would drive Kitchen to his home. Instead of doing that he drove him to Lynden, where they spent some hours in drinking. On starting for home, about 3 o'clock in the morning, Weaver fell off the tavern steps, striking his head against some hard substance on the ground. Weaver was placed in the buggy and driven to Kitchen's house, sleeping nearly all the distance. He refused to go into Kitchen's house, and the horse and buggy were left at the gate with Weaver until 5:30 a.m. Kitchen meantime had gone to bed and slept, When he woke up he sent his man to take charge of Weaver, who drove him home. He was covered up on the floor and he died immediately.

The crowd of children at the fair to-day is probably larger than on any previous day of the exposition. Yesterday there were 65,000 children present.

Announcement made by the council of administration last night that the fair would continue as long as the weather permitted and the people wanted to come, does not mean exactly what it says. Nobody expected that the gates would be abandoned the moment the curtain dropped on the White City, and it certainly will drop Oct. 30, and nobody expected that people who wished to enter the grounds to watch the building being torn down and exhibits moved away would be denied the privilege if they were willing to pay to pass through the gates. That is all the resolution adopted by the council of administration means. Grand Trunk People Said to Have Bettered Their Offer.

They May Yet Least the London and Port Stanley Road-A Detroit Coal Man Wants to Make a Bid.

Make a Bid.

The Port Stanley Railway Board met last night, and after the meeting was over the question—"Where are we at?" might have been asked of any of the members who were present and none could have stated definitely where they were drifting, or what corporation will be likely to get the road. The same old stercetyped reply was received from soveral of the members when asked what had been accomplished. "Nothing definite had been done," they answered, but something would shortly be accomplished and then they might not be so averse to talking. Before the board met a prominent representative of No. 4 ward, who is on the Board of Works, said he had it on good authority that the Grand Trunk would yet rent the road. He would not give his reasons, but a well-defined rumor that was passing among Grand Trunk officials during the day might have been sufficient ground for the statement. The rumor had it that the Grand Trunk had bettered its offer and that the amended proposals would come up for discussion at the meeting of the board at night.

It may be stated just here that the offer was bettered at last night's meeting, to what extent will no doubt be learned later on. Meantime the board has received word from Detroit—from a prominent coal man there—asking, it is said, that the deal with the Walkerville people be not closed until they heard from him.

There was a Detroit man who, when the road was first let to the Clevelanders, telegraphed at the last moment that he would better the offer, but he apparently thought he had better not, as he was not heard from again. He may be once more seeking to delay the action of the board. One member of the board stated last night that the sub-committee appointed to promote the deal with the Lake Erie and Detroit River people had reported progress. The meeting did not last long, and was adjourned to meet on Tuesday night. The situation grows daily more interesting and the outcome of the many silent (?) meetings of the board will be awaited with interest. The preventer present: T again at an early hour yesterday the oft-repeated story of the person who places his or her life in jeopardy by pouring kerossene oil into a lighted stove to hurry the fire. The victim, Mrs. John Smith, lives on Center street, London West, and yesterday morning she was working at Mr. William Slater's residence, on the "V," at the intersection of Richmond street and Park avenue. The stove in the summer kitchen was not burning as well as Mrs. Smith would have liked, so she adopted the usual means to help it along. The oil can was a five gallon one and pretty well filled. She tipped it over the fire and in an instant an explosion occurred that was heard at a great distance. An ominous silence followed the noise, but it was succeeded immediately by terrible shrieks and calls for help, as the poor woman realized that she was on fire. Her cries brought Mr. Slater to the room, and without stopping to cover his hands lie carried the blazing woman to the lawn at the rear. Luckily some rag carpets were lying there, and into one of these Mr. Slater placed the woman and rolled her over, completely smothering the flames. The firemen had been summoned by this time, but the fire had not communicated to the woodwork. The whole contents of the can appeared to have scattered over the unfortunate woman, and when the fire was put out hardly a vestige of clothing remained. A doctor was called and her injuries attended to. Mrs. Smith protested sgainst being taken to the hospital, saying that she had enough money to pay for a doctor, and insisting on being removed to her home. There she was accordingly taken, and a critical examination made of her condition. Her burns are terrible, covering almost the whole extent of her body, and more particularly she front, and one side from the face to her knee. The medical men who attended her do not think that she inhaled any flame but consider that her condition is very serious and will result fatally. Mrs. Smith, though of a robust constitution, is about 60 years old, and it is the shock that the doctors foar more than her injuries. She resides with her husband, an olderly man. They have a grown-up family, all the members of which are married.

Yoe and Chas. Morton appeared against being assessed for a drain laid down by the city. All that was necessary had been laid down at the expense of the residents in that locality. The drain constructed by the city was not used, although it had been ordered by the Board of Health. The residents were willing to run the drain in question over some private property, and this would reduce the sewage emptying into the river at York street, which has during the entire summer, on account of low water, caused a very offensive smell.

Ald. Jones said that the matter would have to come before the council as the Works last night Messrs. John Siddons, N.
