IN THE EVENING. The specialties were repeated in the evening, and were even more effective than in the afternoon. The big 230foot stage was as brilliantly illuminated as a theater.

The fireworks given by Messrs. Hand & Co. surpassed all expectations. In brilliancy, novelty and profusion, they have never before been equaled in this city. In addition to a lavish display of bombs, rockets and balloons of endless variety, there was an unusually large number of set pieces, nearly all of them being entirely novel. A golden curtain of fire with a revolving sun in the center covers a space 100 by 24 feet. A terrace of fire has twelve fountains that shoot stars to a height of over 100 feet. An electric tree in the midst of a golden shower is very effective. But the piece de resistance is the battle scene repre senting the joint attack by the British and American fleets upon Samoa. It is wonderfully realistic. The fort and the attacking warships are in plain view. A prolonged cross fire of shot and shell and bursting bombs is followed by a closing in of the fleet on the doomed town, already in flames. A "Good Night" piece concludes the display, which is by far the best pyrotechnica exhibition ever given in London. NOTABLE EXHIBITS. AN EXHIBIT IN EXPERT PIANO-

MAKING. It is not surprising that lovers of the artistic grow enthusiastic over the high-class pianos made by the old firm of Heintzman & Co., and whose London warerooms are at 217 Dundas street. We would like, were it possible, to take the thousands who have admired these instruments a tour through the large factory of this firm at Toronto Junction, a factory that, in the judgment of those who ought to know, is the best appointed piano factory in Canada, and probably without a peer on the contin-ent. It is built and furnished with a view of making a thoroughly high-class instrument. We see this in the materials, whether in the wood for the case, the ivory for the keys, or any other point of detail. There is a Heintzman & Co. principle that has permeated the whole institution. Only the best must be allowed to enter into the manufacture of Heintzman & Co. pianos. A striking illustration of this pianos. A striking illustration of this Heintzman & Co. principle was brought to our notice in talking with a workman at the factory. We found there pianomakers who had been with the firm for upwards of 30 years. This is a good principle with Heintzman & Co. They select only the most skillful workmen, and then, treating them liberally, they have the satisfaction of seeing them remain with them year after year, becoming inspired with the high year, becoming inspired with the high ideals that have ever animated the management during their long history. When this spirit is understood it is easy to realize how distinctive is the Heintzman & Co. when compared with the best that the world produces in a piano. It is not surprising that this words like these, used by the great time.

Alex. Harvey, proprietor of the new opera house on Dundas street, was charged with putting up a fframe addition within the fire limits. Case adjourned until tomorrow.

HEINTZMAN & CO. In these days of cheap frauds and rank imitations people turn with a sense of relief and security to the old and tried firms. In nothing else, probably, is the unsophisticated purchaser so completely at the mercy of an unscrupulous dealer as in the matter of pianos. Knowledge of that fact has something to do, doubtless, with the readiness with which intending purchasers seek out ye olde firm of Heintzman & Co. MAMMOTH WHITE OX "FERGUS."

One of the best attractions the Western Fair ever induced to come to London is the Mammoth White Ox "Fergus," which weighs 3,870 pounds, stands 6 feet high, 12 feet 2 inches. Many prominent butchers and cattlemen have been to see this mountain of beef, and acknowledge him to be not only the largest, but the finest in proportion they have ever seen. This is one of the attractions of the exhibition that visitors should not fail to see. The animal is the property of John Black, Fergus.
