Seven Oystermen Drowned.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 26.—Intelligence from Tangier Sound, the disputed oystering beds of the Chesapeake, contains this: Four boats were wrecked and seven oystermen—Harry Smith, Benjamin Walker, Maria Vandye, of Philadelphia, and Howard Clendani and Charles Hamersley, of New York, and two unknown dredgers—were drowned.

Impaled on a Red-Hot Poker.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 26.—Conrad Zopf, a mechanic, aged 45, and demented, escaped from his home on Friday, and was locked in the station house at Groveport, a suburb, for safe-keeping. Some time during the night he heated a poker red-hot and, placing the hot end against his stomach and the other against the wall, impaled himself upon the hot instrument and was found dead in the morning.

The Rails Spread.

UTICA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—Two passenger coaches attached to train No. 2 on the New York, Ontario and Western Railroad, leaving Oneida at 8:30 a.m., jumped the track near Valley Mills, seven miles south of Oneida, and rolled down an embankment 30 or 40 feet high.
Those injured were Miss Fred Jones, of Oneida. She was accompanied by two children, one of whom was slightly hurt.
Mrs. Hiram Dudgeon severely hurt. A number of others were bruised and cut.
The accident was due to spreading of the rails.When you speak or even think of spring to be a star, and it is certain a large house will greet the first vaudeville performance given in London for some time.A large number of relations and friends gathered at the residence of Mr. and Mrs.

John Geary, 337 Hill street, the other evening to witness the marriage of their eldest daughter, Sadie, to Mr. J. Annett, merchant, of East London. The ceremony was performed by Prof. T. L. Fowler, M.A., after which the guests sat down to a sumptuous breakfast. The bride was at-tired in French gray satin and cream silk lace and carried flowers—cream roses. She was attended by Miss Nan Dallas, of Wingham, dressed in fawn with flowers (cream roses), and the Misses Charlotte and Gracie Geary, sisters of the bride, dressed in cream, maids of honor. Mr.
D. Wilkie, photographer, of Ingersoll, attended the groom. Music was furnished by the London harpers. The happy couple left for their home amid showers of rice and the best wishes of their many friends.
They received a charming array of presents.

SHOCKING CRIME.

A Little Girl Subjected to Terrible

Treatment.

Jennie McLeod Enticed Away by a

Well-Dressed Stranger—The Culprit

Still at Large.

The city and county police are searching for the perpetrator of a terrible crime, and little Jennie McLeod lies at her parents' residence on McDougall street, under a physician's care. The girl is only 11 years old, with little experience of human (or rather, inhuman) nature. She left her parents' house on Ridout street Saturday afternoon to visit friends on John street, in the northern part of the city, and was returning home alone between 8 and 9 o'clock at night, having got with her a portion of her parents' residence, when a well-dressed, respectable-looking stranger accosted her.It was on Dundas street near Ridout where she met the man, and he asked her if she would have any objection to going over the bridge to his house and fetch back a parcel to the City Hotel, at the same time offering her 15 cents. Suspect-ing nothing wrong she consented, and, with the stranger, crossed the bridge and went on into the village.Arriving at Center street the fellow pointed to a light in the distance and told her to go and ask for the parcel and return it to the City Hotel, where she was to tell them that "Rogers sent it." She re-fused to do so, however, and told him to go and fetch it. Then he took her by the hand and went along with her until he arrived at Kelly's orchard, a very lonely and isolated place. Here he seized her by the throat,and under the threat of instant death in case she made any outcry, assaulted her.
The brute then brought the girl back to the bridge, passing several parties on the way, and after again threat-ening the child in case she told anyone, he left her.The little girl proceeded home and told what had happened. Dr. Ward was sent for and the police were informed, but as yet have found no trace of the criminal.The child is suffering severely from the shock, but will probably come around all right. She cannot give any definite description of the man other than that he wore a brown overcoat and still hat. She feels sure she could recognize him again, however.
