COLORFUL PICTURE AT THE MAJESTIC

"Omar the Tentmaker" Gives Vivid Portrayal of the Orient.

KEATON COMEDY

"Omar the Tentmaker," a First National attraction with Guy Bates Post in the title role, opened at the Majestic Theatre yesterday. The history of Omar follows the original text fairly closely, and action has been taken for the keynote of the scenario.

The opening scenes are in color and vividly portray all the splendor usually associated with the East. The photography throughout is superb. The closeup gives way to suggested movement in many of the scenes.

Virginia Brown Fair plays the part of the daughter of Imam, Noah Beery as the Shah.

The comedian, Buster Keaton, in the Pale-Face, is truly funny in a western picture. He has the knack of playing the part known as "dumb" and he is effective.

Unemployment Less Out West

Minister of Labor Says Conditions Worse in Eastern Canada.

Associated Press Despatch. Calgary, Aug. 7.—In the opinion of Hon. James Murdock, federal minister of labor, who reached Calgary today, there is more unemployment in Eastern Canada than in the west. This was his reply to a question as to how he viewed the general labor conditions in Canada at the present time.

"Conditions might be better," he said, "and there are some places where there is more unemployment than in others. British Columbia, for instance, is better in this respect than it has been for a number of years."

GRIPPING PICTURE SHOWN AT LOEW'S

Harrison Ford and Enid Bennett Star in Feature Film.

VAUDEVILLE GOOD

In a setting that is refreshingly English, with types of dramatists who can best portray English characters and a story that is English in its idiosyncrasies as in the tense gripping turns of a thrillingly plausible plot, appears the film "A Fool's Awakening," at Loew's Theatre the last three days of this week.

Charming background, picked up not many miles from Hollywood, helps the picture a good bit. Mr. Ford, as John Briggs, the impostor and cheat who was heard to good effect in "Tostie," is a fine dramatic actor.

Miss Bennett has a wholesome part to portray and handles it well—an heiress from the provinces searching for people who are "real" finds her ideal in Alexis, pseudo Russian novelist.

A big attraction on the bill of vaudeville is Marion Claire, a contrast to an unusually full voice and appreciable range. Last evening she was heard to good effect in "Tostie," "Good Bye Forever," rather newer American melodies, and a sort of medley of some of those popular songs of yester-year. Added to her abilities as a vocalist, Miss Claire has charm and personality.

Downey and Claridge present a novelty act in singing, roller skating and trick cycling. There is a touch of the aesthetic as well as the eccentric in the turn, and the versatility of the team found much favor. Clark and Villini offer a page of humor of transplanted Italy, the second member getting a good hand for his vocal effort "What'll I Do."

A Lyman Jackson "pot-pourri" of nonsensical bits and scene photography, and Kathleen Christie in a snappy Christie comedy, rounded out the bill and went over well.
