"There is one hotel," said this travwho for obvious reasons does not wish his name made public in this connection, "that charges $3 for room and tion. board, $1 for sample room and $2 for baggage daily. The total charges to a traveler with baggage is thus $6 a day. This might not be so bad if the accommodstion were worth while, but the service, the food and the bedding are unmentionable."

There is one oasis in the desert, how ever, but this oasis must not be taken too literally, according to the traveler unoted above. He asserts that the best botel accommodation in Cuntario, not excepting London, Hamilton and To-ronto, can be had in a small town west of London for $4.50 a day, including sample room and care of baggage. There is only one other hotel in this listrict that approaches this one for accommodation, he says. Despite this they all charge as high or higher rates
