

feelings; but it was in the solitude of her chamber when she found herself called on to part for ever, or for ever to be united with this interesting stranger, that she seemed to discover not without consternation, how necessary to her happiness he had become. The waste vacancy of her time and thoughts before she had met him—broken only by dull and distant visits to duller and more distant aunts, rapid rides through rude and solitary scenes, and incessant feud and ignominy between her cousin Lysaght and herself—was this once more to be her portion? or would she fly with him who had relieved her from them all, and relinquish her father and her home? How she continued to ask herself, would that beloved parent, so stern to all else, so blindly indulgent to her, endure her loss? Would he proscribe her for ever?—She felt not—assuredly not. No, her father would once more receive her into his affection; but Lysaght, who had been reared with her, who loved her so well, and all the more deeply she knew, that he had never told her so—what would he feel? How would he look the first morning after her flight, when he came in to breakfast and found the room empty, the urn cold, her little spaniel, Lapsang, moaning about the hearth, and Katey away over the mountains in the dead of night with a nameless and lawless man?—Yes, poor Lysaght, she felt, would be then tormented: her father might once more be his; but her cousin—even her little quarrels with him had something pleasant to her recollection, and on this portion of her picture, much as she desired to banish it from her mind, she again and again returned to dwell; nor did she succeed in overlaying it by painting her reconciliation with Lysaght on her return, and her reparation in the shape of a large present of real and personal estate which her father should be induced to make to him, and thereby enable Lysaght to settle in life. And then his wife—which of all her surrounding country friends would she choose for him? The sketch was still unfinished, when the bell announced the morning's repast, and Katey, sleepless, agitated, and undecided, descended to breakfast.

There was nothing in that meal calculated to allay her anxiety. She found her father and cousin (the latter had just come in from his matutinal tour through the farm, and laden, of course, with the news of the neighborhood) busily engaged with cold beer and conjectures upon the sudden flight of the gentleman resident at Curly Cahill's which had taken place during the night, half-an-hour previous to a domiciliary visit from three peace officers who came from Clonmel, and departed as they came, in profound silence regarding the object of their expedition, upon discovering the stranger had left. As Mr. Tyrrell had not been consulted by the authorities on this occasion, the reverend magistrate testified no very poignant regret at the disappointment of the officers; but as his curiosity was commendably excited, he hazarded several ingenious solutions of the problem that had been paying eighteen pence a week for "dry lodgings" at Cahill's, the last four months. Lysaght was loud in his decision that the fellow was "some corner or punching blackguard," while his uncle rather inclined to the arson and agrarian outrage line. Poor Katey sat behind the coffee stand stifling her feelings in the manner she best might, until she heard her father propose "sheep stealing" as an emendation of the probable offence of her banished friend, when she could support it no longer. Little accustomed at any time to hide her emotions, the high spirited girl burst in to tears, unbridled her respectable parent and thick headed cousin for their hardihood and want of charity, ventured at first to disbelieve every sentence they had uttered, proceeded to confess she had had the pleasure of the stranger's acquaintance, and ended by proudly introducing him (in an imaginary way) to her astonished friends as Major Ferguson Hewitt, or the Second Republican Brigade of Artillery, and Commissioner to Clements from the Provisional Government.

Had a petard from the Major's own brigade been projected into the centre of the little breakfast table, it could not have played the mischief more effectually than did this stunning explosion. Lysaght Osborne, after remaining speechless for some minutes, having helped himself to a cup of scalding water from the urn, was compelled to retreat upon the pump outside. His uncle, who had received so large a portion of the shell, needless to say, exhibited much suffering, which his daughter at length attempted in vain to alleviate. But the spoiled and petted Katey had for once overcounted. There are certain minds burst of passion, which like the tempests of tropical islands, are all the more violent and unsparring from the halcyon seasons that precede them. Such was the storm of wrath that now for the first time descended from Tyrrell's lips upon his daughter's head.

He raved and stamped at her like a maniac, terrified her into an acknowledgement that she had listened even so amatory communications from the unhappy Hewitt, commended her from his presence, then recalled her to be reprimanded for retreating so hastily, and again expelling her, pursued her with all but palpable fire and sword to her own territory, were locking her in her bed-chamber, he deposited the key in his pocket, and setting out on foot to finish the work of disaster by annihilating the "dealer in soft goods," who had, he felt assured, been a proximate agent in nearly ridding him of his child. His first intention was to hold no terms whatever in his approaches upon Curly's fortalice, or, in other words, to make an open show of him; but a mile's walk of a muggy day has a sedative effect, and by the time he arrived at Cahill's Mr. Tyrrell had seen the impolicy of giving any publicity to what he considered the folly of his daughter. His interview, therefore, with Curly took place in private and for any satisfaction that resulted from it, he might as well have placed himself in communication with the intelligent milestone, Clonmel XII," which he had passed as he entered the town. Cahill, on his part, received the first discharge of the clergyman's indignation with a look of stolid surprise, to which one Liston, a player, could alone have done justice. For some time he seemed at a loss to comprehend whether the remarks had reference to his last year's arrears of tithes, or the protracted invasion from Boulogne; and when at length their real purport did overtake him, the shock was overwhelming. Well it was for the fugitive that he was out of reach of his estimable host's indignation. To be "skivered," to have "every bone in his body smashed to smithereens" was the mildest of the horrible fates he had escaped for attempting to inveigle the affections of "the danlin' young lady." Cahill declared to his heart's content never saw them together in his life; so that as Mr. Tyrrell saw his interview was likely to be a fruitless one, he cut it short and departed.

The following Medicines are for sale by Henry McLeavy St. Andrews.

CONNEL'S MAGICAL PAIN EXTRACTOR.

The great healing taler.—It seems hardly worth while that we should add our testimony to the overwhelming mass that has already been procured by that inestimable balm, specific called Connel's Magical Pain Extractor, but we might as well say it exceeds anything we ever heard of for the rapid and thorough cure of the following complaints which have been tested in this city, viz: Burns, scalds, tender and sore feet, chilblains, wounds at old sores, bruises and cold in wounds, inflammation, salt-rheum, rheumatism, erysipelas, sore eyes and "nipples," eruptions and scrofula chaps, and piles in their worst form. No family should be without this wonderful balm. Sold genuine, at 19 Tremont Row, on 14.

SALT-RHEUM, PIMPLES AND SORE ON THE FACE, AND ALL CUTANEOUS AFFECTIONS.

The great virtue of Saliva as a restorative of purity to the blood, and consequently a cure for maladies arising from its impurity, is well known to every one. To get it concentrated is, therefore, an important object. Messrs. Constock & Co. have given much attention to this article, and have before I had used all of one bottle. I was greatly relieved upon the first one or two applications. Most seriously do I urge upon the afflicted to use this remedy before all others. My object entirely in making my case public, is hoping I may benefit the afflicted sufferer.

EST. THOS. JONES.

No. 4, Allston St.

IT SINGULAR AND TRUE.—A lady called upon us the other day, and stated that her husband, son and herself had been cured of rheumatism with the Indian Vegetable Extract and Liniment, sold by COMSTOCK & ROSS, 19 Tremont Row. She did not wish her name published, but gave us liberty to give it to any person afflicted, and have them call upon her and she would tell them the particulars. It was a constitutional family complaint, and they have all been permanently cured with the above articles. This great remedy is worthy of the attention of the public. My 10.

THE NAYLES HAIR DYE.—For some unaccountable reason, for the last one or two years, many young people, both male and female, have had the misfortune to have their hair turn permanently grey. We have been frequently applied to for something to turn the hair back to its natural color, which has induced us to go to much trouble and expense in order to furnish our customers and the public generally with a new and improved Hair Dye—one that is nearly effectual, and not the least injurious to the head or hair, for the moderate price of 20 cents per bottle. We have succeeded beyond our expectations. This article we offer to the public with great confidence. We have had it thoroughly tested time after time, before we could offer it for sale. The price is such that all can afford to use it, and inequality we believe to be superior to any ever before made.

COMSTOCK & ROSS, 19 Tremont Row.

RHEUMATISM AND GOUT.—There are many times advertised and offered to the public for the cure of Rheumatism and Gout, that are of little or no account, they may relieve for a short time, but will not cure. We therefore feel it our duty for the benefit of the afflicted to say what we know of the True Nerve and Bone Liniment and Indian Vegetable Extract, which is offered for the purpose. It is simply this, that it is the most extraordinary article ever saw. To our certain knowledge, the following gentlemen have been cured of them over 70 years of age, and had suffered intensely for years:

ESSEX FLETCHER, Esq., No. 18 Crescent Place, Essex St. Rd., Esq., 22 Elm street.
DAVID PERRY, 44, Bridge street.
Gen. JOHN TARBELL, Cambridgeport.
Mr. E. JESSE, Chelsea.
Mr. CHARLES L. FIELD, do.
HONORABLE RICHARDSON, Esq., Melbury.
W. S. HOWARD, No. 6 Wesley street, East Boston.

We could add many more, but think this quite enough to convince the afflicted that they had better try it. The above named persons procured it from the proprietors, COMSTOCK AND ROSS, No. 19 Tremont Row.

Kolmstock's Vermifuge.

This remedy for worms is one of the most extraordinary ever used. It effectually eradicates worms of all sorts, from children and adults.

THOUSANDS perish by worms without the real cause being known. Some other reason is assigned for their sickness, until too late to cure the real cause.

What should be done?

The answer is plain. Give this vermifuge, which will be sure to do good, if they have no worms; and if they have, it will destroy and eradicate them with a certainty and precision truly astonishing.

It cannot harm the smallest infant or the strongest adult. There is no mercury or mineral in it. Mercury is the basis of most worm remedies, and the remedy is sometimes worse than the disease. So never use lozenges, but rely upon this. Every person will be convinced on one trial, that is the most perfect cure ever invented.

Remember and ask for Kolmstock's Vermifuge.

FRENCH DEPILATORY.

This article, used for taking off superfluous hair from the face and neck, is sold at 50 cents per bottle.

All of the above valuable medicines are sold by COMSTOCK & ROSS, No. 19 Tremont Row—BOSTON.

AW ONTHERFUL CURE OF DIOPHY OF FIVE YEARS' STANDING.
Copy of a Letter from Mr. Thomas Taylor, Chemist, Stockton, Durham, 17th April, 1845.

To Professor HOLLOWAY.

Sir,—I think it my duty to inform you that Mrs. Clough, wife of Mr. John Clough, a respectable farmer of Achna, within four miles of this place had been suffering from Dropsy for five years, and the best medical advice without receiving any relief. Hearing of your Pills and Ointment, she used them with such surprising benefit that, in fact, she has now given them up, being so well and quite able to attend to her household duties as formerly, which she never expected to do again. I had almost forgotten to state that she was given up by the Faculty as incurable. When she used to get up in the morning it was impossible to discover a feature in her face, being in such a fearful state. This cure is entirely by the use of your medicines.

I am, Sir, yours, &c. &c.
