A Boy and a Potato.

A man in Tolland, Corm., found a very small potato in one of his pocket when he came in from work.

The low cut, the potato into as a solution of the stacks and stooks and knocked down the standing grain.

In Winniteg nearly two inches of rain fell in twenty-four hours, but it did not snow. The damage will be chiefly to the standing crops.

As ninety per cent. of the grain in Manitola is cut, the interest chiefly centres in the grain in stook, which will be disolored.

A VENTILATING OVEN THAT VENTILATES:

There is only one practical way of ventilating the oven in a range and that way has been adopted in the "Pandora"—is an actual working feature and not a mere talking point.

Fresh air is drawn from the outside through small vents into the oven and is quickly heated and disseminated, while the odors and cooking fumes escape through small vents into the smoke flues and up the chimney. Result is that expensive, juicy roasts retain their rich, natural flavors and are entirely free from cooking odors and taints, to which the palate is so sensitive. Puddings, bread, etc., when baked, are always light, fresh and free from taint. In the production of the "Pandora" range you have all that scientific

WOMAN AND LOVE.

One of the hardest things for most women to learn is how to love wisely. There are many women who "love not wisely but too well," and there are many more who serve the idol of their devotion with such heroic self-sacrifice that their efforts "waste their sweetness on the desert air." When a woman loves too unreservedly, too openly, she takes from love its delicacy, its leauty, its romance, and she makes herself commonplace, says the Pittsburgh Observer.

The napkin was thereafter always in its place. But one day a tureen of soup was served, and the hostoss began to wield the long, old-fashioned silver ladfe about in it. Something very like a fringed rag made its appearance in the first plate-ful. The butler was summoned to remove it.

"It cannot be that the mem sahib tound no napkin at the bottom," he hazarded, much distressed because of this un explained disapproval, "for I myself placed there the largest one I could find."

ALL HE HAD MISSED.

makes herself commonplace, says the Pittsburgh Observer.

How is it that a young man who is very much in love with a young woman will soon find that his affections for her are on the wane? Often it may be his own fault, yet too, often it is the young woman's fault that brought about this indifference to her. When a woman comes off the high plane that a man sets her on, she injures herself, and though she may lower herself simply to show her devotion to him he cannot appreciate the efforts that brought her condescension in his cyes.

ALL HE HAD MISSED.

(Portland Press.)

An old negro was taken ill recently and celled in a physician to prescribe for him. But the old man did not seem to be getting any better and finally another physician was called. Soon after arriving the second doctor felt the patient's pulse for a moment that brought her condescension in his cyes.

HEALTHY WOMANHOOD.

'Abolish the corset; remove all com-"Abolish the corset; remove all com-ression from the vital organs, hang the weight of the clothing from the shoulders instead of the waist, use better or its juices for food, with plenty of vegetables—lettuce, celery and green things instead of starchy foods, like notatoes and macdroni, and you will iterally regrette the race." potatoes and macfroni, and you will literally recreate the race."

This is the prescription of Dr. Robert Sanglovenni to build up healthy womanhood, and, therefore, a healthy race. In the fight against tuberculosis the doctor is waving a standard with a twofold device. It declares corsets the main cause of that disease and beef the main cure. He advocates the complete suppression of "the instrument of torture." as he styles the corset, but as a compromise he dictates set, but as a compromise he dictates that if it must be worn it shall not be assumed till the age of twenty-five when the organs have attained normal

And the little man, sitting as still as a mouse where he could note the gradual relaxing of his mother's features, would faithfully follow the hands of the clock until they marked off the appointed time, when he would awaken her. Refreshed, she would go cheerfully to work again. And this was how she accomplished an amount of work that made her the wonder of friends.

Her example might be followed with profit by all. Of all capacities in which we can train ourselves, that of heing able to skep readily is the most valuable. It is a habit that can be acquired, and once acquired will add years to the life of man or woman.

The latter, in particular, should covet it, for while women can work hard, they are apt to give way beneath the strain of long hours. The best not life of the strain of long hours. The hest not life of the strain of long hours.

It is very hard to follow advice like this when one is overwhelmed with tasks and every minute seems precious; but to de so will be profitable in the end. It is all the difference between doing the work with a feeling of depression and weariness, and doing it to dorse the table. The napkin was they are told, without presuming to think for themselves. But once in a while this literal adherence to duty produces some awkward results. An American was seen that there was a napkin at the bottom of the fruit dish, cake basket, etc., when these were brought to the table. The napkin was thereafter always in its place. But one
