TWO LINKS IN THE CHAIN OF LOVE.

John xi. 35.

2 Thes. v. 16.

STHINK we may well link together these the two shortest verses in the New Testament, for if Jesus had not wept, we could never rejoice. It was as man He wept. If He had not left the glories of heaven, and come to earth to take our nature upon Him, we should for ever have remained in a lost and ruined condition, without any hope of heaven. It was in our nature that that He suffered and died, and as man He now sits at God's right hand, the conqueror of sin and death, so that we who have accepted His great salvation may "rejoice evermore" that sin cannot have dominion over us; that Jesus ever liveth to intercede for us. We may rejoice that He can sympathize with us in all our sorrows: that He knows all our weaknesses, and has felt all our temptations. We may rejoice that He is gone to prepare a place for us, that where He is there we may be also.

A MEETING FOR ENQUIRERS

IS HELD

EVERY MONDAY EVENING,

From 7.30 till 9,

In Parlor C. (up stairs) Shaftesbury Hall.

"THANK YOU, CAPTAIN."

ON one occasion Napoleon Bonaparte was reviewing his army. Pausing on his way from one part of the ground to another, and while occupied in giving an order, the emperor incautiously let the rein fall upon the neck of his horse, which, taking fright, darted off at a gallop, obliging the rider to cling to the saddle, in imminent danger of being thrown.

While all stood gazing in consternation, a private soldier, from his place in the ranks, sprang before the horse, seized the bridle, and respectfully placed the reins in the hand of the emperor.

"Thank you, captain," said the rescued emperor, as quick to reward as to apprehend a service.

"Of what regiment, sire?" asked the soldier, saluting him, with unquestioning confidence in his imperial master.

"Of my own guards," replied the emperor, charmed with such a mani-
