

misunderstandings that inevitably arise when people from two cultures are forced to work out the minute details of a business deal.