

his limit. It will be a certain sacrifice for a Limit Holder to see all at once a number of miles taken out of his domain, but on the other hand once the reserve has been created he will know that in the future he will not be bothered any longer by seeing lots taken here and there at random in his limits by men who have no intention of settling on them, and he will be thus no longer obliged to commence his winter operations at four or five different places where he did not least expect it, as it often happens under the present circumstances.

As regards the Settler

Now, in giving this year's delay to the Limit Holder to take away his wood, what advantage will it be for the settler ? First of all, the giving of a year to the Limit Holder to take away his wood will have this advantage for the settler, namely, the latter will know that once he takes a lot of land he will not see another come on his lot and exercise his rights of ownership, which has been the great cause of all the evil so far experienced.