NEW SUNSHADES IN ODD DESIGNS

Parasols for This Season Will Be Particularly Attractive.

STRIPES ARE FAVORED

Popularity of Ornamental Handles Seen in Very Latest Models.

Sunshades will more than ever be numbered among the important accessories of the summer wardrobe. Of course, the reincarnation of the quaint Empire and Victorian silk frocks will influence the styles in parasols to a great extent, and the windows in the big shops are already displaying alluring models in which the very latest "fads" are being featured.

And the styles are as varied as the colors of the rainbow—all of which are represented in the wide range of exclusive and elegant models. These include a shade for every occasion, from the trip to the market on a sunny morning to the very formal garden party arranged beneath spreading shade trees.

No Limit to Variety. There is no limit to the variety, which ranges from the simple white linen hemstitched shade to the elaborate model of real lace, brocaded chiffons and rhinestone studded flowers. One of the very most attractive, in some of the very latest designs, is one of the new shades to be used with the smart silk afternoon costume is a delicate patterned veil rose border. The shade is of the large shallow type, and the section nearest the center being of heavy black and white striped silk. A band of plain black moire, the same width, extends from border, hemstitching being effectively used to work in the three sections. A handsome carved jet handle is very effective.

There is a decided tendency for odd-shaped and side-shirred designs. A very pretty "fussy" shade in soft yellow and the popular black and white stripes has double sections set in between the ribs, the striped material being arranged to swirl towards the outer rim.

A Novel Handle. A novel handle in yellow wood, studded with black jet ornaments, was an attractive feature. The plain white models are a delight to the feminine heart, some of the most alluring being small deep shades, consisting of taffeta fringes built on broadened foundations. Novelty and elegance is exploited in the long, slender handles, and originality is observed in the use of flowers and ribbon ornaments.

EUROPEAN TRAVEL.

The large and fast steamship Lusitania will sail from New York on Saturday, May 1. Although heavily booked, there is still some fairly good accommodation available.

Tickets, berths and all information can be had from A. F. Webster & Son, general agents for the Cunard S. S. Co., 53 Yonge street.

Evening Circus Parade.

The mammoth circus parade will leave the armories tonight at 7.30, proceeding by way of Queen, Simcoe, King, Yonge, Spitzer and Mutual streets to the Arena.

NURSE RICHARDSON ALIVE.

OTTAWA, April 22.—The report that Nursing Sister Richardson died at the front from over fatigue is incorrect. A cable has been received stating that she is convalescent. Miss Richardson is a sister-in-law of Gen. Macdonald, of the headquarters staff.

FOR A BAD COUGH

Here is a fine old-fashioned recipe for coughs, colds or catarrh of the throat that is absolutely unexcelled. Get from your druggist 1 oz. of Eucalypti (Double Strength) and add to it 1 pint of hot water and 4 oz. of granulated sugar. Take one tablespoonful 4 times a day. No more racking your whole body with a cough. Clogged nostrils will open, air passages of your head will clear and you can breathe freely. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has a stubborn cough, hard cold or catarrh in any form should give this prescription a trial.

Transplanting

The first thing you do when you garden this morning is take a look at yesterday's transplantings. If necessary give them a gentle spraying, but not a soaking, with the hose. Look at the roots to see if any exposure seems to have taken place, and anyway, just take the garden fork and coddle up the earth around those anxious little roots. Make the plants snug and firm for the day.

Now, other things besides seedlings are in need of transplanting every spring. Perennials and biennials and old roots of all kinds. Our gardeners will learn sometime just what roots can be handled in the spring for transplanting without any injury to this summer's bloom, and what ones must be left for fall transplanting.

Such old garden roots as lily of the valley and sweet William and Columbine, and Iris, and bleeding heart, and myosotis and June and Scotch pinks, and the whole wonderful host of favorites so common to all gardens and so easily grown, may be taken up, divided and transplanted by some gardeners, and no apparent harm or check take place in their blossoming. Again with some gardeners, their smallest transplanting operations are followed by disaster.

Most of the trouble lies in the fact that the unfortunate ones do not know their plants. And it has always seemed a strange fact to me that certain gardeners go on, year after year, having just the same unfortunate luck and never finding out the why-for.

Now, there was a woman told me the other day that she had given up trying to divide and transplant iris roots. She said, "The wretched things always die. I've bought dozens of them. They simply will not live for me." Do you, my gardeners, doubt her? I don't. I would not grow either for anybody who called me a "wretched thing."

Now, as a rule you mostly can't kill iris nor myosotis, nor any of the favorites (so brilliant) nor lemon lilies, nor those incomparable blue-eyed tradescantias. And there are dozens and dozens of the most lovely plants that can be handled with ease in the spring, and they will bloom gloriously all summer long. But every gardener can't handle these plants with impunity until they learn to appreciate them. That should not take years to do, my gardeners.

Then again, there are some perennials that simply can not be disturbed by anyone in the spring, or else they will die. Such as the lily of the valley, and larkspur and hollyhocks, and all that aristocratic tribe that aim ever towards the heavens, these all will need careful and special handling, and this department will take them as carefully as possible, from now on, and tell you just what we do ourselves. And we are quite usually successful.

Proper Foods.

If you decide that your child is to eat meat, be careful of your choice and the manner of cooking it. Never under any circumstances serve meat more than once a week, and, four times a week is often enough. Choose first lamb, or mutton, then beef and chicken. These meats may be roasted, boiled or broiled, never fried. They are decomposed by heat; therefore fat meat should not be given to children. Slow cooking in hot water softens the fibre of meat and makes it easy of digestion. So that some pieces of beef and mutton are better boiled. Cover the piece with boiling water, but rub away any fat. Then simmer and cook at this temperature 20 minutes to each pound. Avoid using pork, veal or fat fowls, as goose and duck. These meats are not good for adults, much less children. Instead of meat you may use eggs, milk, nuts, beans or lentils. The eggs should be jellied or poached.

One can hardly say enough about the necessity for care in handling milk. It is the most easily contaminated of all foods. Keep it covered in a cold, clean place, and see that it comes to you sealed, from a cold, clean place.

Peanut nuts are best, then walnuts and peanuts. A mixture of nut meats gives a better flavor than one kind alone. Grind them and mix with twice the quantity of rice, cornmeal or mashed potatoes. Then they are ready to serve as a meat substitute.

If vegetables are carefully cooked they are really much more nourishing than meat. For instance, lentils contain 20 per cent. of albuminoids; beans, 28; peas, 24, and beef, 19. But old peas, beans and lentils must be washed and soaked over night, boiled in fresh water for an hour, this water then thrown away, and the cooking finished in fresh, boiling water. When soft, press them through a colander and serve pure mixed with water or milk. Whole wheat bread and cereals such as barley, oatmeal, cornmeal and rolled wheat contain a large portion of muscle-making food. But they must be well cooked. Serve milk with oatmeal, cream, rolled wheat, and fruit with whole wheat, and butter. If you have not time every morning to cook such cereals, cook a large quantity once, and reheat over hot water when needed.

WOODROW WILSON IN IGNOBLE ROLE

Hon. Arthur Meighen Declares U.S. Has Persistently Nagged Britain.

OTTAWA, April 22.—Addressing the Laurentian Club here, Hon. Arthur Meighen, Solicitor-General for Canada, offered sharp criticism of the policy of President Woodrow Wilson toward the war, declaring that the United States appeared to care more for party politics and dollars and cents than for the principles of justice and freedom and the cause of humanity.

Instead of moral assistance the United States was continually nagging at Britain and showed a distinct inclination to hamper her in her efforts for civilization, an altogether inglorious part, the speaker declared.

TORONTO WOMEN'S LIBERAL MEETING

Annual Function Held Yesterday and Report of Work Read.

At the annual meeting of the Toronto Women's Liberal Club, held yesterday afternoon, Mrs. D. A. Dwyer occupied the chair. The recurring secretary's report referred to the donation of $600 to the Hospital Ship Fund. The relief committee had collected $500, and 83 articles of clothing for city distribution. 200 swabs made and 850 yards of bandages rolled by the 17 sewing circles. For the University Base Hospital 1622 garments are now ready.

An interesting account of the hospital at Exhibition Camp was given by Mrs. Hume Blake, who traced its progress from the opening with eagerness as its foundation to its present formidable appearance. Since its opening on November 11, 1914, until April 19, 1844 patients had been admitted. More than $3000 had been expended by the association on the hospital. The total receipts for the year were $2879.82, with a balance on hand of $485.73.

NOVA SCOTIA DRY BUT FOR HALIFAX

HALIFAX, N.S., April 22.—The Province of Nova Scotia with the exception of the City of Halifax, is under provincial prohibition. The city came within the scope in the house of assembly of being included in the prohibitory law.

Mr. Tanner, leader of the opposition, moved that after March 31, when the present license in Halifax expires, the provincial prohibitory law should go into effect in Halifax City.

This was debated for several hours, and a vote was taken, which stood 12 to 12. The speaker, Dr. Ellis, gave his casting vote against prohibition, thus defeating the amendment.

The legislature adjourned today.
