Cleveland is complaining of a rather novel state of affairs. The shippers have been harrassed by a too great pleuty of boats at the loading ports during the last few days. It reached the point on Saturday where vessels had to be refused when offered because the facilities have not been working satisfactorily. The open pit mines have still a great deal of frost in them, the railroad facilities for getting the ore to the upper lake docks have not been sufficiently abundant, and the dock machinery has been working slow. The boats have been plentiful and it reaching the statemer Admiral last Saturday in 9 hours and 20 minutes, which was less time than Lorain's great record of last week in loading 6200 tons.
