THE LOCAL MAYORALTY.

The mayoralty contest presents no difficulties to the electors.

There is not even the claim of party to be considered.

Ald. Matthews is so little in favor with his own political associates that they refused to endorse him.

He is running in spite of the managers of the Conservative party. Many of the latter are working energetically for Ald. Stevely. A victory for Ald. Stevely will be a victory for the best man, and not for any party clique or organization. As mayor he will be indebted to the level-headed Conservatives who resent Ald. Matthews' attempt to foist himself upon them.

We apologize for mentioning politics at all in this matter, and have done so merely to emphasize the non-political nature of the contest. Our advice to our readers is to ignore politics and party slates in this election, and vote for men whom they believe to be best equipped to transact the city's business.

Ald. Stevely has served the city for eight years as a member of the council. He has had a longer municipal experience than his opponent. No fault can be found with his public record. He has successfully conducted a private business on a large scale. Those who know both candidates regard Ald. Stevely as the ablest man. What ground, therefore, has Ald. Matthews to stand upon in this contest? Self-assertion and noise seem to be his stock-in-trade.

THE TORONTO MAYORALTY.

Some dramatic features of the Toronto mayoralty election gave it more than a local interest.

Dr. Beattie Nesbitt resigned his $9,000 Government berth to plunge into the contest, in the belief that he was still a power in the community over which he once reigned as a party boss.

The doctor had tall political ambitions, but these were cruelly disappointed when he was excluded from the Whitney cabinet. Even a $9,000 sinecure proved no solatium for his aspiring spirit. He has been chafing in captivity like a caged lion. Two or three months ago he roared ominously, with the evident intention of being heard at Queen's Park. Finally he could contain himself no longer. The registry office, wherein the Government thought him quietly inured, hath opened its jaws to cast him up again.

The doctor decided to re-enter public life by way of the Toronto mayoralty, which has been always regarded as the property of his party. He shook his mane and roared frightfully again in the expectation of frightening off the regular Conservative nominee, Mr. Geary. The result shows that the Tory cohorts of Toronto no longer recognize the voice of the master. Probably the doctor wishes he had his $9,000 job again. He can reflect upon the fable of the quadruped which dropped a nice bone to grab at its reflection in the water.

THE TROUBLE IN PERSIA.

All is not well with Persia in the days of its transition from absolutism to a constitutional monarchy. The Shah has given the country a parliament more or less hemmed in by restrictions, savoring distinctly of the ancient regime, and while he has apparently been doing his best to hold things even as between the progressive and autocratic forces of his realm, some of those behind the throne have evidently been hampering him with their foolish advice. The result has been a succession of more or less serious episodes causing the people to grow suspicious of the Shah's good faith. He has been accused by the assembly in a manifesto to the powers of plotting to annul the constitution and restore absolutism. There has been little short of open war in the streets of Teheran, the opposing forces being the Shah, supported by the reactionaries, on the one side, and the Parliament, backed by the Nationalist party and the influential secret societies, on the other.

The origin of the present crisis was an agitation over the fate of some of the Shah's soldiers who had been imprisoned because of the death of two shopkeepers who had been killed in a scuffle. Contrary to custom in this case, the relatives of the murdered men refused the usual offer of blood money, and demanded the execution of the accused soldiers. Then, even in spite of the remonstrances of the Parliamentary leaders, a clamor arose on the part of the secret societies or Angamans of Teheran, for revenge and the dismissal of the Shah's reactionary favorites, the result being the resignation of the Prime Minister and his colleagues.

leagues. During the tumult in the streets of Teheran on the 15th of December, shots being fired at the Parliament and other buildings, the Shah attempted to turn the situation to his own account by the arrest of his own ministers and a coup d'etat, but the situation was quickly reversed. For, when the Nationalists learned of the arrests, they rallied round their Parliamentary leaders, and during the fight, organized an armed opposition.

The morning following found armed Nationalists to the number of 2,000, holding the Parliament Buildings against the Shah's troops, and the attempted coup d'etat had failed. The president of Parliament refused the request to dismiss his armed force, alleging, in defense, the breach of the constitution in many particulars, by the Shah himself. Later on, the Shah ordered the release of the ministers, including the Prime Minister, Nasser-el-Mulk, the British minister having interceded on his behalf because he holds a British decoration of a high order. The prestige of British influence was largely restored in popular opinion in consequence.

As a result of the assembly's manifesto to the powers, which declared, among other things, that the constitution was in imminent danger of subversion, the British and Russian ministers have been instructed to unite in an effort to settle the differences between the Shah and his Parliament, and to prevent a civil war, which might plunge the whole country into anarchy.

THE POWER VOTE IN TORONTO.

The bylaw to raise $2,700,000 for a distributing plant for Niagara power was adopted in Toronto yesterday by a vote of 14,078 to 4,483.

There is a tacit understanding that the bylaw will be used as an instrument of negotiation with the Toronto Electric Light Company. It was supported on that assumption by the Toronto Globe and Toronto Star, and by various speakers in its behalf.

The duplication of plants would be worse than folly. The Toronto Electric Light Company is a powerful corporation, and has at its back the Electrical Development Company, which supplies it with Niagara power under contract. Manifestly it is in the interest of the municipality to rid itself of such formidable competition, and secure a monopoly of the power, and light business within the city limits. The Toronto Electric Light Company can only be removed from the field by purchase, unless it can be killed by civic competition, but it is powerful enough to offer a resistance which might seriously embarrass the municipal enterprise.

To make a fair offer for the company's plant is not only the business-like course for the city, but the only honorable one. It would be virtual confiscation to erect a new distributing plant before giving the private concern an opportunity to sell out. This argument applies to other municipalities as well as Toronto.

CANADA AS A PENAL COLONY.

[Ken (London) Messenger.]

William Daniel, aged 25, laborer, pleaded guilty to demanding money with menaces from his father, at Yalding, on the 24th of July.

The father did not press the charge, and expressed willingness to send his son to Canada, where he would be found employed.

His Lordship—Will you go to Canada? Prisoner—Yes, my lord.

The accused was thereupon bound over and discharged.

THE WRATH OF ELINOR.

[Chicago Record.]

Elinor Glyn refers to the Pilgrim Mothers of New York as a lot of "breastless, alabaster, pancake-faced frights." It may be added that the Pilgrim Mothers do not approve of Elinor's nasty new book.

TEARFUL SHADES.

[Toronto News.]

George P. Graham expects a surplus on the Intercolonial. Manifesto are the sorrows of an Opposition.

CHEERFUL.

[Louisville Courier-Journal.]

My woes rehearse;
Whisperer they be.
They might be worse.

SCHOOLGIRL'S REMARKABLE RECORD.

[London Standard.]

The school managers of the New Shoreham council schools have had brought to their notice the fact that a scholar in the girls' department has neither been absent nor late on a single occasion in eight years. The managers considered this a most remarkable record, and it was resolved to ask the education committee to grant the scholar a special reward.

ONE OF THE FORGOTTEN.

[Washington Star.]

"Did you hang up your stocking on Christmas Eve?"
"I sho did," answered Pickenanny Jim.
"Did you have any luck?"
"Well, I reckons you might call it some luck. Nobody didn't steal de stockin'."

PEOPLE ARE BUYING THE RAILWAYS.

[Duluth News-Tribune.]

James J. Hill seems to be of the opinion that the people are not waiting for Mr. Bryan and government ownership, but are buying the railroads of the country now on their own account. Bryan may again complain that his political ideas are being pilfered.

Mr. Hill says that a year ago there were 2,000 stockholders of the Great Northern. That means that 2,000 people owned that property. Now there are 40,000 stockholders, and the number of still rapidly growing, almost all the purchases being in small quantities by people of small means for investment.

What is stated as to the Great Northern has been reported as equally true of most of the other great railway properties.

which have been safely and conservatively managed. The increase in the number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Erie has been proportionately as great.

This is a most healthy sign of prosperity conditions throughout the country, and shows that the financial stringency was not the result of any general distress or lack of reserve wealth. On the contrary, it is added proof that it was, as usually conceded, "a rich man's panic."

ON BOARD SHIP.

[Life.]

"Shall I order your dinner brought to your room, dear?" inquired the affectionate wife.

"No, just order it thrown overboard," returned the unhappy husband.

LIFE.

[Punch.]

Life—what is it?
Ah, who knows!
Just a visit.
I suppose.
Joy and sorrow
For a day.
Then tomorrow
We're away.Youth and morning;
Manhood, noon;
Age—the warning—
Night comes soon;
Shines a star
Light us; then
'Tis not far to Home again.

JUST COUNTING.

[Harper's Weekly.]

A dentist in Rochester was visited by a native of Dutchess County to be treated for an ulcerated tooth.

"That's a bad tooth," said the man of the forceps, "and I should advise you to spare yourself pain by taking it. It will be only 50 cents more." And the dentist showed his machine to the doubtful person.

"Never mind paying now," said the dentist, patronizingly.

"I wasn't thinking of paying," responded the Dutchess County person. "But I thought that if I was going to sleep I'd like to count my money first."

WHICH WAS IT?

[Hamilton Spectator.]

On Tuesday last the late editor of the Spectator wrote his Christmas message to Spectator readers. It closed with these lines:

"May each and every reader of the Spectator be well fed, well dressed and well entertained throughout the year to come, and may we all be here at next Christmas, each one having the right to tell a tale of personal success and individual prosperity."

"God bless you, every one."

The last words penned by Mr. Cameron for publication in the Spectator on Saturday were:

"I hope that calamity will leave no further mark upon 1907."

Was it premonition or coincidence?

A CRITICISM OF THE HEN.

[Chicago Tribune.]

The hen is a filthy gizzard. She'll eat anything that her intriguing glaziers will grind up, regardless of its decomposition and foulness. Things that the hog turns his snout up at are as spicy delicacies for the hen. Yet on thousands of tables, where pork is tabooed as unfit for food, the flesh of the hen is an acknowledged delicacy.

The hen is a hysterical old fool. She quacks her "hawk" signal even when the thermometer is 15 degrees below zero, and when a hawk in midair would freeze solid in forty seconds. She sneaks into a kitchen garden through a hole in the fence, and in fifteen minutes can scratch up more newly sown seeds than a score of roosters could be tempted to in a day. She is given a house in which she is allowed to strut and strut with straw, and silly fool that she is, she sneaks off to a distant hedgerow or corner of the orchard fence, where in hot weather she lays about twenty-seven eggs in forty days. Then she gets the idea that she wants to hatch out a brood of chicks of her own parentage.

Before she begins to "set" only twenty-four of these eggs are fit only to throw at an extremely bum actor. But she nestles down to business, and unless some of the farmer's children run her down she sets three weeks on the added eggs, with a nest result of two measly chicks, whose toes will be frozen off before they are old enough to sit on a perch.

AUSTRALIA IMPORTING DOMESTIC HELP.

[Baltimore American.]

"The servant girl problem knows no geographical limitations," said George Hudnall, of Sydney, Australia.

"Just before I left home a great deal was being expected by our local housewives from the experiment of importing girls from England, Ireland and Scotland. Our New South Wales Government was in the scheme, and arrangements had been made to bring over 50 young women as a starter. The girls are guaranteed to be of good moral character, and when they land an agent of the Government will take them to homes previously secured."

"A condition of their coming was that each lass must be actually engaged in domestic service and ready to continue in that line of work. The Government helped by getting for them a 16,000-mile passage for only $15. They are expected to arrive very soon, and if this first batch turns out a success our people will be glad to have some of the same sort, for we are very shy of female help."

BUGS IN THE FOOD.

[Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 2.—According to the report of an analytical examination of 83 breakfast foods sold in Pennsylvania, made under the direction of State Dairy and Food Commissioner.]

The examinations were made by Professor William Frear, of the State College, who arrived here last night to take up with Commissioner Foust the matter of the food bugs, which sold in misbranded and unfit foods. The result of the examination tends to show that the claims of many manufacturers are "highly colored," and sometimes absolutely false.

AGAINST CIGARETTES.

[Lansing, Mich., Jan. 2.—In the constitutional convention yesterday, a cigarette discussion that in the beginning gave the appearance of having been entered into jokingly, passed quickly into a serious stage, and resulted in the adoption of a proposal prohibiting the manufacture and sale of cigarettes in this state. The proposition was carried in committee of the whole, and later was adopted by 55 to 17 in formal session. The opposition to the proposal will be renewed when it comes up the second reading.

Women as Farm Hands

Winipeg, Jan. 2.—Unable to obtain men enough for the harvest fields, Manitoba farmers hired women in their places. They are said to have done just as good work as the former farmhands, and there was much less shirking among them.

That is the way with women. They work too hard—and often overtax their strength. Then the system becomes run down, the liver gets out of order, and constipation and biliousness make life miserable. Mrs. John Cline, of Aylmer, Ont., suffered from these troubles for ten years and found no relief until she tried "Fruit-a-tives."

"I want to say a word in regard to Fruit-a-tives," writes Mrs. Cline. "I had liver trouble for ten years and tried different remedies, but Fruit-a-tives cured."

"Fruit-a-tives" are made of fruit juices and tonics and never fail to cure liver, kidney, stomach, skin and bowel troubles. 50c a box.

PITCHERS WORK TOO HARD

St. Louis, Jan. 1.—"Pitchers work too hard when in the box nowadays," says big Jack Powell, the old-time Cleveland pitcher.

"I don't mean they think too much, but they put too much physical energy behind their pitching. That is what wears so many of them out after only a few years of big league work."

"The pitcher who has an easy delivery and who depends on his control and head, lasts twice as long as the one that is always twisting himself out of shape and then hurling his whole strength and weight into every ball he throws."

Some Good Examples.

"There are some good examples of the art of pitching easily, that demonstrate my theory. Take Cy Young of the Boston American team, or Clark Griffith."

"To my mind, Clark Griffith, in his prime, was the greatest pitcher I ever saw; I admired him so much that I patterned my style after him as much as possible."

"Griffith liked it best when he was in the hole—men on bases and two balls to the batter. Then he showed at his best. His ability to outguess the batter and give him exactly what he didn't want, in the place he didn't want it, was marvelous to me."

Without Exertion.

"And he did this without apparent exertion."

"Some people believe I have little speed because I don't tie myself in knots. If you're one of the doubtful Thoroughbreds, ask the Spectator."

"I throw my fast ball with exactly the same motion I do my slow one, and I manage to get away with it."

"As a manager, Griffith is apt to expect too much from his pitchers. He expects them to do what he can't do, and that's just the way it is. He expects them to do what he can't do, and that's just the way it is."

WILL ATTEMPT TO LOWER MARK

New York, Jan. 1.—It is stated that Charles J. Glidden, the motorist, originator of the Glidden automobile tour, is to attempt a balloon flight next summer from Omaha, Neb., to Boston, a distance of about 1,800 miles.

Mr. Glidden will make the flight in the hope of capturing the Lahn cup, one for the longest aerial trips in this country. If he should succeed Mr. Glidden will have broken all records for the United States and the world.

The world's record was made by Count de la Tour, the French aviator, who sailed from Paris to a point in Russia, covering a distance of 1,283 miles.

WHY HE WAS BUTTONEHOLED.

[New York Sun.]

The Ancient Mariner had just stopped the Wedding Guest.

"The bridegroom was so inconspicuous I couldn't find him," he explained.

Herewith the sad story of his life followed.

ALL ONE.

[Argonaut.]

Some years ago there lived in Perth, Scotland, a man of convivial habits, well known as Jamie. One dark night an acquaintance found Jamie lying at the foot of an outside stair.

"Is that you, Jamie?" asked the acquaintance in a voice of the greatest astonishment.

"Aye, it's me," replied Jamie, in a tone of complete resignation.

"Have you fa'en doon the stair?" was the next question.

"Aye, I fell doon; but I was comin' doon, whether or not!"

The First Friday Bargain Day Of The New Year.

Tomorrow is Friday Bargain Day—the first of the new year—one of the most important of the regular weekly bargain days. Left in the wake of the greatest holiday business in our history are numerous lines, which have become broken, and are included in tomorrow's selling. We haven't stopped to count the cost or the real value of the goods concerned. Our sole aim is to get rid of these stragglers, and for a quick and immediate clearance we have put prices on them that will clear them out tomorrow.
