"German officers captured admit that their troops are incapable of prolonged resistance because of fatigue. Men of the German 13th Corps repeatedly conceded the superiority or the British and French troops, and were particularly impressed with the extraordinary expenditure of ammunition by the allies artillery.

Priseners Less Chipper

"German prisoners no longer emphasize the presence of strong German reserves behind the front. Tho they will not admit that the Somme offensive really threatens to enable the allies to break thru, some agree that will not be impossible. Captured orders complain of insufficient firing upon the allies airmen, and also show a shortage of horses and fodder for months past.

"The British supremacy in the air is freely admitted by German prisoners," says the correspondent. "One officer captured was completely puzzled at the absence of German aeroplanes after the British attack began.

"The German weakness in the air is not due," this afficer said, "to a lack of officers or machines, as the German aviation corps is one of the most popular branches of the service, and the supply of officers exceeds the demand. There are many aeroplanes lying behind the Gorman lines, the prisoner said, and they thought their airmen should attempt to maintain an observation service for the German guns, no matter how great the odds against them.

Last Charge of Foe Fizzles Out-Allies Make Counter-Stroke.

LONDON, Sept. 25.—The correspondent of The Daily Chronicle at Bucharest sends the following, dated September 23:

"In the five days' battle waged on the Dobrudja front the fighting thruout has been of a desperate character. In the carlier phases of the engagement the Bulgars, with the recklessness of despair, flung the recklessness of despair, flung themselves against the allied line. There appears to have been a considerable stiffening of German troops among the Bulgarian attacking columns. These came on in mass formation. Among their ranks the allied artillery did terrible execution.

the allied artillery did terrible execution.

"Smash thru at any cost," seems to have been the Teuton motto. Physically enfeebled, their effectives thinned by terrible punishment, the Bulgars and Germans made a final effort to break thru the allied line. For the supreme effort reinforcements were brought from other points, including a number of Turks hurried from Thrace. The Turks were placed in the vanguard, but the new attack was unable to make any impression on the allied line.

Blow Proves Fizzle.

The intended sledge-hammer blow proved in delivery but a puny effort. The allied front along the ground of the enemy's offensive was covered with dead. Finding the enemy had spent himself, the allies lost no time in delivering a counterstreke. Amid great enthusiasm, they dashed forward—Serbs, Russians and Roumenians.
