Home From Front Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the Old, Re-liable Spring Tonic.

Of the returned men from the hospital ship recently docked in Halifax, several returned to their homes yesterday. Among those who arrived in St. John were Privates J. Burns, Fred. McAvity and C. Scott, all of this city. Private Burns enlisted with the 55th and was transferred on his arrival in France. He was wounded at the battle of the Somme in the left arm, and although he cannot move the limb yet, he has hopes that in time the injury will be repaired to some extent. He has been in England since April 29 and remained there till the sailing of his ship. He thought that if the food in England were accessible there would be plenty to keep the people until harvest, but that speculators have forced up the prices.

would be plenty to keep the people until harvest, but that speculators have forced up the prices.

Sergeant E. H. Parent returned also to his home in Fredericton and the following New Brunswick men: Private J. Cogswell, St. Mary's; Privates C. E. Lewis, H. VanTour, J. Russell and P. MacKenzie, all of Campbellton; Henry Winchester, of Dalhousie; Private H. Hanson, of Hillsboro; Private W. J. Watling, of Newcastle; Private Harry Sewall and Private G. A. Mitten, of Moneton.

Sergeant C. B. Theali Returns.

Sergeant C. B. Theali, of Bloomfield Station, who went overseas attached to No. 7 Siege Battery, in Lieutenant Methodologic Section, returned home on furlough last week. After spending several months on active service in Frence, he recived injuries during a heavy engagement, and was treated in hospitals in France and England. He speaks in the highest terms of the medical officers and nursing sisters, also of the kindness of the English people to the Canadians. While at the Canadian discharge depot, Buxton, Sergeant Theall tells of the services held by Captain J. D. Morrow, chaplain, and the great work he is doing among the soldiers.

Montreal Paper Has Article on Golden Age of Canadian Vessel

Two pages in the Montreal Standard f May 5 were devoted to the golden age of Canadian shipping with a review of famous Bluenose ships, and the old-time industry in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. The article was written by Frederic Yorston, himself a Nova Scotian, and was well illustrated. Of St.

John shipyards, he says:

"There is a close connection between the shipbuilding activity in Pictou and that of St. John, N.B.

"The tremendous timber wealth of New Brunswick resulted in great shipbuilding activity at St. John. The big wooden sailing ships were constructed at Courtenay Bay and disposed of to firms in the United Kingdom, who used these new vessels in the China, East Indian and Australian trade. These vessels were fine clipper ships with good cargo carrying capacity and fast sailing qualities. As a matter of fact in the golden age of the maritime provinces the sixties, it was practically impossible to visit a foreign port, without seeing the flags of Nova Scotia or New Brunswick flying aloft from some tapering

Polo' built by James Smith at St. John.
A dozen fine ships would be built at one scene of activity! The big ships get-ting fitted out for sea; having their masts stepped; spars and rigging com-pleted. The cargo below decks was usually square ton timber, mostly birch, the rest of the cargo deals.

Every ship had at her bow a handsome figurehead to represent a lady or an Indian chief. Some of these wood carvers were very expert. The decks of the ships would be loaded down until the for Liverpool.

"One of the best known Canadian shipbuilders in the early days was John

McDonald who constructed his vessels at Courtenay Bay, St. John, N.B. Mr.

McDonald first began to build in the year 1852, and in the course of his career produced magnificent vessels which sailed the seas in every quarter of the globe. It is stated that he built as many as sixteen in the course of one year in his various yards.

"He started his first yard at a spot which will now be practically unknown except to the very oldest St. John residents. He began building on the little building on the stocks. His second yard was on a site across the creek. There was an old barn near here long ago.

The second McDonald shipyard was close to the road. There was another yard close at hand known as the King yard close at hand known as the King yard. The shipyard on the Town side was run by Nevins and Fraser. The lat-ter partner was John Fraser (moulder) who came from the East River of Pic-tou. He was also known as "Eagle" Johnnie from the fact that a monster
