Who Pays For Advertising?

THIS is a direct and reasonable question; and in the case of Daily Newspaper advertising, intelligently asked, the answer is simple: Nobody. It pays its own way.

Nobody pays for the new car-buretor that gives added mileage to your motor car. It pays for itself in the gasoline it saves.

Nobody pays for an improved cash system in a modern department store. It pays for itself in economy of human time.

Nobody pays for well planned and written Daily Newspaper advertising. It pays for itself by reducing the cost of sales and by increasing production. And it often receipts old bills for folies with advertising labels.

The advertisement in your own local Daily Newspaper tells you the best things to buy and where to buy them. Every new purchase helps the whole community to command cheaper and better goods.

GLASS "STOMACH" TESTS.

(Montreal Gazette.) A new method of determining the digestibility of proteins in certain foods without conducting troublesome and expensive feeding tests is announced by the Bureau of Chemistry of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The method is carried out by the use of laboratory apparatus that might be called an artificial stomach, since by its use it is possible to imitate at least a part of the digestive process.

The proteins to be tested, those from beans, for instance, are placed in glass containers in a dilute solution of hydrochloric acid similar to that found normally in the stomach, the proper quantity of pepsin is added, and the mixture is placed in an incubator where the temperature is kept at the same point as that of the human stomach, about thirty-seven degrees centigrade.

About a certain number of hours the contents of the container are sampled and analyzed. The digestive effect is measured by the ratio of what is known as amino nitrogen to total nitrogen. By running through cooked and uncooked protein from beans, it is possible to determine which is the more easily acted upon by the chemicals in this artificial stomach and, consequently, by the stomach itself.

After the food has been acted upon by the pepsin and hydrochloric acid, it is treated with trypsin and a dilute alkaline solution, as nearly as possible like the digesting juices found in the small intestine. This second process tells the investigator what the probable digestive action on any particular food will be in the intestine.

In the human or animal body there are, of course, other factors that enter into digestion of food or feeds, but the "artificial stomach" will tell if one protein is more digestible than another and whether it is more digestible when cooked or raw. It does not tell what kinds of protein are contained in a food or whether the variety is sufficient for all the needs of the body.

year without apprehension for some time. As long as the strict game laws enacted are rigidly enforced and forest fires rigorously guarded against, the lordly moose will maintain supremacy over his wild kingdom, safe in intelligent supervision and preservation.

"By no means is the movement of hunters from the United States across the border a new one," states a bulletin of the Canadian Pacific Railway, "for they have been coming to favor the woods of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and other provinces for twenty-five and thirty years. It has been estimated that there are only 7,000 moose left in the entire United States. Here in lies the reason why in recent years so many big-game hunters from across the line have come up over the border, and why the traffic of sportsmen from the Republic each year exhibits a substantial increase. Hunters' camps and lodges in the forest have all the appearance of permanent establishments, and residents come to look for their return every year when the mating season of the moose comes around. The northern woods have a subtle magic all their own, and seldom relinquish their hold upon any man once they have placed their lure upon him.

"Roughly, about 10,000 moose are killed in the Dominion each year. Of these it should be safe to attribute one-half to visiting hunters, but far from there being any danger of exhaustion from this toll, authorities in different sections of the country are of the opinion that a killing of twice this extent might be made each year and the natural increase definitely offset any tendency to the extinction of the monarch of Canadian fauna."

Canadian Novelist Hears From Kipling (Toronto Globe.)

W. A. Fraser, author of "Caste" and other well-known novels, received yesterday a letter from Mrs. Rudyard Kipling acknowledging Mr. Fraser's letter, which is dated December 6, says that she writes for her husband, and adds: "It will be a number of weeks before he is able to attend to his correspondence. We hope to get into the country before Christmas." Early in the New Year, the letter said, they hoped to go abroad to a more hospitable climate.

Mr. Kipling lives in Sussex, Mr. Fraser explained yesterday, and it is to the place that the letter refers when it says of getting into the "country before Christmas." At the present time, Kipling is in a private hospital in London. Apparently his convalescence after his operation will be of extended length.

The letter acknowledges an autographed copy of Mr. Fraser's novel, "Caste," which he sent to Mr. Kipling. Kipling, in her letter, says that Mr. Kipling asked her to thank Mr. Fraser for the book, and is sure it will be of great interest. Mr. Fraser said yesterday that Mr. Kipling's ways had been a firm friend in advising him regarding the writing and publication of his books.

HAS ANYONE A BETTER PLAN?

(New York World.) The Allied plan for control of the Straits, first of all, denies Turkey the right to build forts which would enable her to close the Straits. Secondly, the plan proposes to limit the passage of warships and places the regulating power in the hands of an international commission representing the Allied Powers, Turkey, the Black Sea Powers and the United States. Here is a plan which guarantees Russia access to warm water as thoroughly as that can be guaranteed short of a Russian Dardanelles and a very powerful Russian navy. It gives Turkey as much sovereignty as she needs to defend Constantinople and deprives her of the sovereignty she would abuse if she had physical control of the Straits. Nobody has proposed a better plan or one half so good.
