He stated that in spite of the many influences which had tended to keep back the work such as the changes of teachers, the above all the measles, nevertheless the term had been a most successful one, as the large promotion list would show. He also made a brief mention of the sports engaged in during the term, and stated that although the pupils had not succeeded in doing anything very great in this line, they had done their best, all that any one could do. The program was as follows: Wagge; song, "The Bluebell's Ball," the school; song, "We Put Our Right Hands Up," ten boys of division 4; song, "The Cuckoo," first and second division; song, "Forget-Me-Not," Elsie Davidson; piano solo, "Prilla," Harry Cross; song, "The Caterpillar," the school; recitation, "The Measles," Soper Sprinkling; song, "The Fairies Lullaby," six girls of division 1; piano solo, "Marche Militaire," Grace Adams; song, "Will You Walk a Little Faster?" Neil Verna Dornan, Charles Nairne.

On direct examination by Clarence Darrow, Davis went over the story of his working life and gave a positive denial to every statement of Orchard that involved him or his associates in any form of crime. Davis denied that he was even a member of the union when the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill was blown up.

At the conclusion of his general story, Davis swore that at Cripple Creek, during the strike, Orchard told him of the Hercules mine affair and threatened to kill Steunenberg.

The cross-examination of Davis by Senator Borah, was severe and searching. It was chiefly devoted, as far as it proceeded to the Bunker Hill and Sullivan affair, and the circumstances under which Orchard made the trip against Steunenberg.

Davis asserted that he remained at Gem, the day the Bunker Hill mill was blown up. While he saw the train in charge of the masked mob arrive and depart from Gem, he could not name any one on the train except Engineer Hutton. He said there was no inquiry about the train, and he made no inquiry about the mob. Davis said that he remained in hiding after the mill was blown up because he did not want to be deported or thrown into jail, and that he changed his name when he departed from Butte shortly afterwards because he feared the mine owners' "black list," made up from a pile of names.
