CHRONIC ULCERS. Mrs. Jas. Hsworth, 902 Selkirk Ave., Winnipeg, says: "Four years ago ulcers broke out on my left ankle and spread until from the top of my foot to my knee was one extended sore. One ulcer would be almost healed when a second would appear in a new place and in a remarkably short time a deep hole would be eaten into the flesh. The flesh on my leg turned blue and looked shocking indeed. I started using ointment after ointment, but received little or no benefit. The ulcers would heal for a time and then break out afresh. I was laid up in bed for a long time, absolutely unable to walk. My limb was so painful that I had no rest night after night. "I consulted five different doctors! Some advised my going into hospital; others said there was no cure for me. After using their ointments and preparations until I was positive they could not cure, I almost gave up in despair. "It was then that Zam-Buk was tried and how I bless the hour I got it! Within a day it had given me some ease, and from that time I went on improving! The sores were so bad that it took some time to heal them, but Zam-Buk healed them all. The last was healed over a year ago and I have never had a moment's trouble since, from any form of ulceration." Zam-Buk is just as good for eczema, piles, festering sores, scaly sores, children's rashes, cuts, burns, scalds, and all skin-irritations. Jewish Ambassador To Turkey Delivers Eloquent Address To Union Of American Congregations.

New York, Jan. 21.—"The Republic of the United States is the nearest approach to the ideals of the prophets of Israel that has ever been incorporated in the form of a state," declared Oscar S. Straus, ambassador to Turkey, in an address delivered at the second annual council of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, held at the Hotel Astor. "America is peculiarly a promised land wherein in the spirit of the teachings of the ancient prophets inspired the work of the fathers of the country." Mr. Straus spoke upon "America forms the opening chapter of the work of the fathers of the country." "The spirit of American Judaism first asserted itself when Stuyvesant, the governor of New Amsterdam, would not permit the few Jews who had emigrated from Portugal, to unite with the other burghers in standing guard for the protection of their homes. When the royal collector came to Asser Levy to collect a tax on this account, he asked if that tax was imposed on all the residents of New Amsterdam? No," was the reply. "It is only imposed upon Jews, because they have not asked to be exempted," replied Asser Levy, "am not only willing, but I demand the right to stand guard."

"That right the Jews have asserted and exercised as officers and in the ranks of the Continental army, and in every crisis of our national history from that time until the present day. The American spirit and the spirit of American Judaism were both nurtured in the same cradle of liberty, and united together in the same ideals, and in the same development. The closing chapter of the chronicles of the Jews on the Iberian peninsula forms the opening chapter of their history on this continent. Jews Aided Colonies. "It was Luis Santanor, 'the Bearded of his time,' assisted by his kinsman, Judge Leon F. Sanders, Treasurer of Arakon, who advanced out of his own purse seventeen thousand dollars, which made the voyages of Columbus possible. He is by no means the interpreter, the surgeon and the physician of the little fleet, besides several of the sailors who were with Columbus on his first voyage. "Looking back through the vista of more than four centuries as Americans and as Jews, we have reason to be grateful with justified gratitude for the far-reaching possibilities of the plans of the great navigator. Columbus regarded as a visionary, a babbling and a scheming adventurer. The royal patrons were finally won might discover new treasures of gold and precious stones to enrich the Spanish crown. But not so with the Jewish patrons, who caused Columbus to be recalled, and who advanced the money to fit out his caravels without security and without interest, as they saw, as by a divine promise and the possibility of the discovery of a new world, which in the words of the late Emilio Castelar, the historian, statesman and statesman of Spain, would afford to the human race the principle of human liberty and redemption. Conscience, a land that would offer an unstained abode to the ideals of progress. "The records of those transactions are fortunately still preserved in the archives of Simancas in Seville. "It is idle to speculate upon theories in the face of the facts of history. Of course, America would have been discovered and colonized had Columbus not lived, but had the streams of the world and the American history flowed from other sources into other directions it would be futile even to make an imaginative forecast of the effect they would have produced upon the history and development of the Continent. The merciless intolerance of an ecclesiastical system, the horror of its persecutions stimulated the earliest immigration and subsequently brought about the reformation in Saxon and Anglo-Saxon lands, and the same spirit of the reformation, the same spirit of the reformation, which chain of circumstances destined this country from the very beginning to the home of the immigrant and the home of the fugitive, and the persecutions of the Puritans and the Huguenots brought with them, as they certainly did, the remembrance of suffering for ideals and the spirit of sacrifice, and how much longer would that remembrance, and with how much greater intensity did that spirit glow in the souls of the Jews, whose whole history is a record of martyrdom of suffering, and of sacrifice for the ideals of civil and religious liberty of whom it is said: "Of all the races and nations of mankind which quarter the globe, none has a better title to that decoration than the Jews."

Judaism Mothered Puritans. "The spirit of Judaism became the mother spirit of Puritanism in old England, and the history of Israel and the history of the Jewish people under the Judges inspired and guided the Pilgrims and Puritans in their wanderings and in laying the foundations of their commonwealths in New England. The spirit of Judaism, the Jews bridged the chasm of the middle ages, and the torch they bore amid trials and sufferings lit the pathway from the ancient to the modern world. "The historical power of the profits of Israel," says James Darmesteter, "is exhausted neither by Judaism nor by Christianity, and they hold a reserve force for the benefit of the com-
