Mount Robson and Tumbling Glacier

From Mount Robson Station on the Canadian Northern Transcontinental Line in British Columbia, it is four and one-half miles, as the crow flies, to the precipitous base of Mount Robson. Berg Lake, the ideal camp site, and where the best view of the mountain and other snow-clad peaks is to be had, is fourteen miles beyond. The trail in, through "The Valley of a Thousand Falls," and passing "White" and "Emperor Falls" en route, constitutes a delightful avenue of approach to one of the greatest of the natural showpieces in the world of mountains. Anyone in a great hurry might make the trip and be on the C.N.R. line again in two days.

If an architect should be called upon to describe Mount Robson, he would probably commence by terming this peak "the gable line of natural construction in Canada." And he would be justified, as its snow-crown is at an altitude of 13,063 feet above the sea. Berg Lake, shown at its base, is 5,506 feet above the Pacific. As viewed from the Lake, Robson rises almost sheer. Tumbling glacier (in the centre) a living stream of ice almost two miles long, drops from the shoulder of Robson to the glacial waters of Berg Lake. To the right, and barely discernible in the photograph, is Mist Glacier. To the left, but not shown in this illustration, is the Main Glacier, largest and most accessible of those known in Canada, which leads from the back of the camp site on the lake, up among the surrounding mountains, making easy the ascent of peaks such as Mount Resplendent, which is 11,173 feet in height.

STATE AND CHURCH UNITE IN TRIBUTE TO SIR P. A. LANDRY

Chief Justice McLeod, Premier Clarke, Attorney General Baxter and Bishop LeBlanc Refer in Feeling Terms to Great Loss Province Has Sustained Through Death of Chief of King's Bench.

The death of Sir Pierre A. Landry, Chief Justice of the King's Bench Division of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, at his residence in Dorchester, yesterday morning, has occasioned widespread regret throughout the province. Eloquent tributes to the worth of the late Chief Justice were paid last evening by His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc, Chief Justice McLeod of the Appeal Court, Premier Clarke and Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, Attorney General. Citizens of New Brunswick generally mourn the loss of one of the province's most distinguished sons and heartfelt sympathy will be extended to the members of the bereaved family.

The Saint John Barristers' Society will meet this morning in special session to place on record the high appreciation of the members of the many sterling qualities of the deceased jurist and to express sympathy to the family in their bereavement.

Chief Justice McLeod.

Chief Justice McLeod spoke in eloquent terms of the worth of his distinguished brother and said that his place would be a difficult one to fill. He referred to the success achieved by the late Sir Pierre as a member of the Bar and the great ability that he brought to the Bench on the occasion of his appointment.

"For nearly twenty years the late Chief Justice and myself sat together on the Bench of this province. During that time there has been litigation of very considerable moment, and it has been a great pleasure to me to see the unusual ability, abundant energy, and tactful judgment that characterized Sir Pierre's career. He was beyond question an eminent jurist and the Bench of New Brunswick suffers an immeasurable loss by his demise, while the province generally loses one of her foremost and most highly esteemed citizens."

"Sir Pierre Landry was an admirable representative of the French Acadian population of New Brunswick and gave freely of his talents to bring the people of both races to a full understanding of the true qualities of the other."

Attorney General Baxter.

Hon. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., Attorney General, and a former president of the New Brunswick Barristers' Society, paid the following high tribute to the worth of the late Chief Justice:

"The Bench has sustained a great loss by the death of Sir Pierre A.

Landry. Personally I have had, almost from the time of my admission to the Bar, frequent occasion to practice before him. His patience and courtesy always marked him as an admirable jurist and his kindness toward the younger members of the profession is proverbial. He always seemed to assume that there must be something worth hearing from the junior members of the Bar and took especial pains to encourage the expression of their views and to protect them from the mishaps which are likely to occur to those who are nervous and inexperienced. His great outstanding gift was that of lucid analysis of facts. To hear him sum up a case was a pleasure.

The Saint John Barristers' Society will meet this morning in special session to place on record the high appreciation of the members of the many sterling qualities of the deceased jurist and to express sympathy to the family in their bereavement."

Whether his marshalling of the facts told for your client or against him you always felt impressed by its absolute impartiality. When he finished the statement was so clear that its logical conclusion was inevitable. I have often heard Chief Justice Tuck speak of this faculty as the distinguishing characteristic of his learned brother. "No man," he used to say, "can marshal facts like Judge Landry."

"In his personal relations with the Bar Sir Pierre was most happy. A lawyer felt that in him he had a personal friend whom he was always at liberty to approach, and I would say as well that I do not think this confidence was ever abused. As a leader of his race the Chief Justice had always in mind that it was only necessary for the people of both races to fully understand each other in order to appreciate the good qualities of each and in developing this understanding he was singularly successful."

Premier Clarke.

Hon. Geo. J. Clarke, Premier of New Brunswick, who was a guest at the Royal Hotel yesterday, declared the province had sustained a heavy loss in the death of Sir Pierre Landry.

"During the whole of my professional life," said the Premier, "I have been brought in close contact at various times with the late Chief Justice Landry, and my relations with him were always of the most friendly character. As a young practitioner I found him courteous and helpful. He was fair in his rulings and careful in his judgments. As a citizen no one stood higher in the estimation of the people of the province generally than did the late Chief Justice, and in all his dealings no one could be more honorable than he. By those who knew him he will be universally mourned and in his death he leaves the memory of an untarnished name."

Bishop LeBlanc.

His Lordship Bishop LeBlanc spoke feelingly of the loss sustained by the death of the Chief Justice. He said that the deceased had been held in high esteem by all classes and that he was undoubtedly one of the most brilliant minds of the province. His death will be a great blow to the French-Canadians of the Maritime Provinces, of which race he was an admirable representative, and by whom he was regarded as the leading layman.

"I think it my duty to tell you what 'Fruit-a-lives' has done for me. Three years ago, I began to feel run down and tired, and suffered very much from liver and kidney trouble. Having read of 'Fruit-a-lives,' I thought I would try them. The result was surprising. During the 3½ years past, I have taken them regularly and would not change for anything. I have not had an hour's sickness since I commenced using 'Fruit-a-lives,' and I know now what I haven't known for a good many years—that is, the blessing of a healthy body and clear thinking brain."
