price of wood advances, and the danger of its too lavish use becomes more apparent every year. In a few years men will not think of erecting fine ware houses or residences of hemlock and pine, but will use brick or stone. The building stone found in these Provinces is not surpassed by the product of any other country. The quarrie now worked are paying large profits to the owners and doing much to benefit the general public. The two quarries at St. George will soon be in full operation, giving work to a large number of laborers, supplying a market for home Clothing, &cproduce, and materially increasing the exports of the Province. The stock of the St. George Red Granite Company is already held at a premium-cannot be bought at any price. But these are not the only valuable deposits waiting to be quarried.
