tion which is represented as not attending any (Common) School, are included all those who attend Colleges, District Grammar Schools and Private Schools. A complete view of the State of Education in Upper Canada cannot be given until the attendance at these establishments is ascertained. The Table presents only a Statistical view of the state of progress of Common Schools in Upper Canada, since 1842; as such, it is believed, it will not be without interest, and may serve as the basis of some interesting inquiries and practical suggestions.
