Elijah's Flight and Return .- I Kings

Commentary-I. The drought . ended (vs. 41-46). As Elijah had prayed that the rain might be withheld, so also he prayed that the drought might be broken. His attitude in prayer and his persistency indicated his humility, his earnestness, his faith. Both the king and the prophet had returned from the Kish-on after the slaughter of the prophets of Raal the one to feast, the other to pray; and as the small cloud appeared over the Mediterranean Sea, low on the horizon, a sure precursor of rain in that country. Elijah sent the king word to hasten to Jezreel, because the storm was at hand. The prophet was given super-natural strength as he ran before Ahab's charit the sixteen or seventeen miles from the summit of Carmel to the gates of Jezreel, in the storm that had already broken in furv upon the land that had lain parched for, three and one-half

POULTRY YARD.

(By C. A. House in the Poultry World.) PREDOMINANCE OF THE SPANGLE. Why the Spangle should have obtained

this predominance I cannot say; probably it is due to its pleasing variety of color, and the fact that only one breeding pen is required by the lover of the color. In color the cock and hen resemble each other in every respect, the plumage throughout being black and red, or blue and red, evenly spangled with white, with the tail black and white and blue and white. The chief and provailing fault in Spangles of to-day is a tend ney to lightness of color, and this fail ing is more prevalent in Section in England, many of the birds across the border, to use the term of one of our most successful Cumberland breeders, tre mere meal bags.. Now a light col ored, heavily spangled bird is not nearly so handsome as one which is darker i color and has not so much spangle What is required as such a complete blending of the three colors that a bird does not look too dark or foo light, but presents a beautiful, parmenious whole with neither of the three colors obtrud ing itself too much upon the eye of the besolder. As I have said, the prevailing fault is lightness of color, but it is one easily remedied. All that is needed is a season's breeding with a partridge hen, and then the cuteful use of th pullets bred from her.

BREEDING FROM ONE PEN. When one is compelled to breed from one pen it is wise to select birds that are of medium color and evenly span-gled, birds that are dark in color or too heavily spangled do not make the best of breeders from an exhibition point of view. They are each inclined to perpet-uate their deficiencies. On the other hand, a sparsely spangled cock is a good mate for pullets that are inclined to be too heavily spangled, or carry too much white in wings and tail. One thing must never be done, and that is to mate a cock or cockerel that is gaily spangled to hens or pullets possessing the same failing. To do so would be to intensify the tendency to lightness, and make the progeny what I have heard them styled, "regular meal bags." Occasionally oblack-red cock may to mated to spang's Occasionally hens or pullets to overcome this tend-ency to meahness. Another fault which is rather prevalent in some strains of Spangles, and other colors as well, is white in lobe." In exhibition cocks it is not seen because the birds have been dubbed, and the ear-labe removed, but it can be seen in the beas. If is a fault but it is one that should be stamped out whenever it makes its appearance because it is a great I awback to a bird. and there is no comparison between a bird with a rich, red lobe and one which shows "white in lobe. OTHER COLORS. Black-reds resemble in color their amesakes in the Modein Game Bantams, and in breeding them both Wheaten and Partridge Hens may be used, but it should be said that the brightest and best colored birds are, generally speaking, bred from Partridge hens, and in Old English Game Bantoms a deeper tone of color seems to find favor with the judges than in the moderns. Whilst this is the fashion double mating will not be the necessity that it is with the moderns. One thing must be guarded is the breeding from a wheaten bred cock; to keep the color right only part-ridge bred cocks or cockere's unist be sed. If one has the convenience an the time to attend to double mating then the same lines may be followed in breeding Old English Bitck Reds as are followed in breeding the modern Game

Bantams. and are mostly sports, aithough during the past two years the color is one that has received more attention, and recently a number of breeders have turned their attention to the breeding of the Blue Red. In mating up a pen to produce exhibition Blue Reds, a Blue Red cock or cockered should be mated to Blue or Bine Wheaten Pullets or hens. or Buck Wheaten Pullets or nens. A 31 must go mating of Black Red cock and Blue in in danger, wheaten or Buc pullets will also produce them. Duckwings, Birches and Brown Reds should be bred upon the lines advocated for breeding the modern your failure began, the remedy for past lines advocated for breeding the modern failure is attention—to present duty. ## Itching Scalp Falling Hair

To prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove dandruff, allay itching and irritation of the scalp, and promoto the growth and beauty of the hair, frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap, assisted by occasional dressings with Cuticura Ointment, succeed when other methods fall. Cuticura Soap and Ointment havo bon equally effective in the ireatment of forturing, disfiguring scalp humon: and the alarming loss of hair which so effect results. For examp.o, read how George E. Jefferson, 1518 Read St., Philadelphia, tells of his remarkable case:

"My disease started with a little pimple on my head. Then it becan to itch. The more I would scratch, the worse it grew until it spread all over my head. So I went to the doctor. But my head grew as raw as a piece of beef and my hair commenced to fall out in bunches. So I changed dectors. My head at this time was so sore I could not touch it. Then I decided to go to the hospital. They began to treat I but it improved very slowly. For over three years I was a sufferer from this disease. I thought all hopes of a permanent cure were impossible. A friend, upon seeing the condition of my head—whitch was a mass of running corruption—saled me if I had tried the Categua.

daw-eved on account of the color closely esembling the eyes of a jackdaw. VALUABLE PROPERTIES.

At the present day, shape, style and feather are far more important in old English game bantams than extreme correctness of color, and breeders are devoting more attention to these points than they are to those of color. By-audbye, when the breed has become more firmly established, there is not much doubt that we shall find old English game bantam breeders just as careful and particular regarding color points as are the modern game bantam breeders, but that time is not yet.

In some parts of the country the judging of the old English game bantam is four from satisfactors. Many of the far from satisfactory. Many of the judges seem to overlook the fact that the bird is a game fowl, and that game the bird is a game fowl, and that game shape and style must take a foremost place. Many all-around judges select small, low, squatty birds for the prizes, "broad-set" they style them, and if they are wide in front and short on the leg the important points of carriage, shortness of back, color and feather, received very secondary consideration. This is wrong; the old English game bantam is a game fowl, and should be so judged.

Vancouver Auto Club Wants Highway From Coast to Coast.

Toronto despatch: The building of a national highway from the Pacific Ocean to the Atlantic Ocean is the project about which the Vancouver Automobile Club has written Mayor Geary. The club is seeking to enlist the co-operation of the City of Toronto in creating interest in and putting through the undertaking. Mr. Thomas Taylor, Minister of Public Works for British Columbia, according to the letter, has undertaken the construction of such a highway from Vancouver through the mountains to the Albertan boundary. When com-pleted it will be joined by the great Pacific highway running from Mexico to Vancouver. It is pointed out that the attraction of such a road to tourist traffic, and the facilities it would allow Canadian automobilists to spend their vacations at home would mean many times more money to Canada than it would eost in construction, and especially in the mountains would mean the erection of many summer homes by

The above statements were made at the eleventh annual meeting of the attario Association of Fairs and Ex-Offiterio Association of Fairs hibitions hid in the City Hall terday, by Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, ronto, Superintendent of Fairs, in annual report. The references to gambling were not pleasing to several members.

Mr. H. Foreman, Collingwood, want ed to know what was a gambling game and what was not. Some of the games mentioned were not games

Loud protests at this query came from members and on Mr. Foreman insisting on his right to a hearing he was interrupted and finally sat down.

Mr. Wilson also referred to his visit to a number of exhibitions in Great Britain and the European continent. He found that Ontario farmous had much to learn from the methers had much to learn from the meth-ods of conducting these fairs. The Midway was not in evid prominent. Stock was judged in rings in front of the grandstands. Milking and horse-shoeing competitions were features at the Scottish fairs. Prizes were also given for eggs.

President II. J. Gould, Uxbridge.
In his annual report, said that in the larger centres the speeding of horses was the predominating feature. In two sand cities many persons would not walk through a field to view a solonlid herd of cattle, but would stand for hours in the rain to see a horse race. The directors found these people their heaviest contributors, and this part of the Fair had to be atbended to. Mr. Gould was not in sympathy with the Midwsy at large shows. It was neither useful nor ornamental, and in some cases it was immoral. He had some cases it was immoral. He had been at fairs where there were no horse racing or special attractions, and yet some were a success. Stand-ing field crop competitions were meet-ing with approxima-

that the Department of Agriculture should pay something to societies sustaining loss through snowstorms with the mountains would mean the erection of many summer homes by wealthy Americans and others.
