An old lady is said to have been asked how to tell good indigo, "Powder the indigo," said she, sprinkle it upon cold water, and if it is good it will either sink or swim. I have forgotten which."

It was the same with Aunt Charity's eggs.
"Just take a dozen of 'em—no, a half dozen of 'em—no, it's a dozen—well, really I can't say, but it's either a dozen or a half dozen—and you put 'em in a pailful—no, it's a half pailful—part full—no, it's a pailful—well, well, it's either a pailful or a half pailful of water—and the good eggs will swim on top—no, the good eggs will sink to the bottom—no, that's not it—the good eggs will swim—no, no, I declare, I don't really know, but anyway, the good eggs will either sink or swim."

Where the Difference Lies.

"Wherein lies the difference between photography and courtship?" he asked softly.

"I don't know," she replied.

"In photography, the light in the dark room, while in courtship that is where the affirmative is developed."

She blushed, but made no answer.

"Let us," he suggested, "proceed to develop an affirmative."

"There being no objections, it was so ordered."

On the Farm.

"Father, I am fired with ambition since I came home from college. I want a broad field for action, where I can accomplish something."

"Well, my boy, there is the forty acre lot, which is a rather broad field. You might try a little action in that with a plow and a pair of horses, and if you stick to it you can accomplish something."

Fatherless Children in Japan.

Japan has only one orphanage, yet in no other land are fatherless children better cared for. Every family cares for the sick, destitute or orphan nearest to it. There is a superstition that a childless house is accursed, and people who are not blessed with children of their own never rest till they have adopted some waif.

Oranges.

Oranges are a most valuable fruit. Orange juice allays thirst and with few exceptions is well borne by the weakest stomach. It is also a laxative, and if taken at night or before breakfast it will be found most beneficial.—Ladies' Home Journal.
