A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER.

Mr. A. W. Wright has fiercely assailed by Mr. Aylesworth in arguing the North Grey case in which the affidavit made by Nelson and Molloy, of Buffalo, figured. He was denounced as a conspirator with those men in concocting a "slander" upon certain men, the men whom Nelson swore he was brought by Cap. Sullivan to call upon in North Grey and the three Norths. Mr. Wright answers in a published letter in which he not only vindicates himself, but administers a severe castigation to Mr. Aylesworth, whom he accuses of cowardice in slandering respectable men from the safe shelter of the court and his barrister's gown. Mr. Wright concludes his spirited letter as follows—

"Now, a word with you concerning the charge of conspiracy. Conspiracy is an indictable offence. You can find me at any time; Nelson and Molloy are in Canada. Your party are in possession of the machinery of the law, and as the Callaghan case showed, are not above using that machinery unscrupulously. Besides their political machine they have the most complete machinery for the procuring of evidence. Unless, then, the charge of conspiracy you level at me is the unqualified falsehood I declare it to be, and unless you are willing to a self-confessed slanderer, you must formulate your charge and submit it to a jury. Conspiracy! What of your own conduct in contriving to abandon the defence in the North Perth case? Was not that part of a conspiracy—a vile conspiracy—to defeat the ends of justice and prevent their crimes being brought home to some of your political yoke-fellows? Remember the Stratton scandal and your own connection with it. Do you think the public do not remember that it was at your instigation that Macnisch signed his horrible confession, made for the purpose of saving election crooks, ballot thieves, forgers, and perjurers from the consequences of their crimes? What now is your principal employment? Our Province is being debauched and disgraced by the vilest aggregation of political criminals in the world to-day, and—I shall not dispute the fitness of it—you are their regularly feed champion. Some few days ago you were quoted as saying that your reason for not entering political life was your dislike for the personal controversy in which politicians sometimes indulge. The excuse revealed the Pharisaism of your character, but you showed a kind of wisdom. In the political arena you would have to face your opponents man fashion; you could not shelter yourself behind a judge's gown or a court crier's staff, and for open, manly warfare you have no appetite."

THE SULLIVANS AGGRIEVED.

The Sullivans have a distinct grievance against the Liberal chiefs who permit their organs to denounce them and clamor for their degradation. The Cap. has done a large amount of valuable work in the good cause, by going into the constituencies and placing the campaign funds where they would do the most good to his friend and patron, G. W. Ross. He went to Buffalo and organized a relief party which went into North Grey to work nights and vote straight for the Ross candidate in place of the dead or missing, in order that no vote might be lost. For his various services in this way Cap. Sullivan was paid as he went along, and his good work acknowledged with such perquisites as he could lay hold of through the Departments. In the offices of the Government he was a familiar and welcome figure. Nothing was too good for him. In the Crown Lands office he had but to point out where a good thing might be got, and he got it. He secured a timber limit for $250 which he sold for $9,000, pocketing a clean profit of $8,750, and no doubt other fat pieces came to him of which the history is not so clear. So excellent a friend ought to be shielded from insult. For the Globe to denounce so good and useful a partisan by name as having brought disgrace upon the party and to demand his retirement from the counsels of Mr. G. W. Ross is regarded by Mr. Sullivan as a piece of rank ingratitude. He does well to get angry, and say they must have mistaken the name. Sutherland is the man they ought to denounce, as he it was who did the special work that now casts so dark a shade over the scene in Queen's Park. Mr. Frank Sullivan is reported to have been more outspoken than his father. Frank earned the lasting favor of the Ross party by stepping into the box at the Gamey commission inquiry, and denying everything about his dealings with the man from Manitoulin. Had he admitted the truth, according to Mr. Gamey's story, the Ross Government would have gone up sky-high, no, sunk deeper than ever plummet sounded. The Commission would have had no recourse but to put the dread noose around its neck. For this salvation Mr. Frank Sullivan is entitled to the grateful acknowledgments of the Globe instead of denunciation as a peril to honest government. The chief organ should have felt a serious obligation to "forget some of those things" so far as Mr. Sullivan was concerned. Being interviewed on the subject by the World, Mr. Frank Sullivan said

"My idea of it, as far as the Sullivans are concerned, is that if we have done anything wrong at least it was done to save the Liberal party. If Mr. Macdonald wants to enter into a controversy on election methods and about what the Sullivans have done, I am quite prepared to carry it on, and perhaps we could surprise somebody. That's the position I take.

"If what the Conservatives allege be true, then we have saved the Liberal party from defeat, and if Mr. Macdonald believes all that is said even then it ill-becomes The Globe, as the organ of the party which benefited, to talk of us like that.

"It's the Sullivan methods which have kept the Government in power," the Conservative press says, but you don't hear any of the fellows up there kicking very hard," he continued.

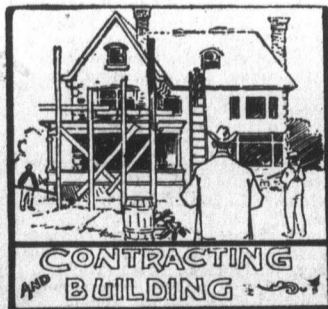

"It is only that Globe," said the captain. "Why didn't they speak of the Sutherland methods. It was the Soot they were writing on, and," he went on more hopefully, "perhaps it was a mistake. There have been mistakes happened before in confusing my name with his."

The Sullivans have a very strong case against the Globe and its patron, Ross, for defamation of their political benefactors. But to do Mr. Ross justice, it is fair to picture him in the deepening gloom of his office, gnashing his teeth in rage at the act of the Globe in breaking loose upon one of his best-ried, faithful, and most valued friends and supporters.

MANY MARVELS IN MILLINERY

Fascinating Fall Effects Daintily Displayed at Maple City Establishments.

Distinctive Features of the Ensuing Season—Sombre Color Effects are Popular—The Planet's Tour.

THOMAS STONE & CO.

There is perhaps no business in Chatham which has expanded and grown to a fuller extent than that of the old established and reliable firm of Thomas Stone & Son. They have had a very successful year and just at the present time they are in the midst of one of the most successful millinery seasons ever experienced by this firm.

The millinery show-room is crowded with beautiful and artistic creations in the millinery art and the display is a decided compliment to Miss Hayes, the accomplished milliner, and her able assistants. The sales have been unusually large since the opening. One feature of the sale is that people are buying the better class of hats.

There were several hats exhibited worthy of special mention, among them being a large grey panne velvet hat trimmed with feathers and steel buckles.

A very pretty sailor hat was displayed in brown and green, trimmed with stiff wings.

A little turban box hat looked very pretty trimmed with osprey wings and birds.

Another was a brown hat in the Gainsborough shape, trimmed with brown and orange lace and tulle facings.

One pretty creation was a hat of silk brim, trimmed with three shades of rose ribbon, gun metal wings and ornaments.

The colors which are mostly used are browns and greens, coque de roche, rose shades, in the latter especially old rose. Grey and blue are popular, and red heads around the brim are predominant, as also are velvets made into large turbans.

In trimmings for bandeaus, beads are shown to good advantage. Chenille trimmings are everywhere seen, and furs, especially moleskin and mink, will be important features in the make-up of all fashionable fall hats.

The window display in Stone's is, as it is always, one of the most attractive sights on King St. One very beautiful hat forms part of the window decorations. It is of mink and brown velvet, with mink and tulle trimmings and velvet flowers.

No woman or girl in the city, who wishes to purchase a fashionable and becoming fall hat, should fail to call at Stone's.

C. A. COOKSLEY

Miss Cooksley, who manages Chatham's only millinery store, has one of the most select displays of millinery shown in the city this fall. Mrs. Cooksley has been engaged in the millinery business here for a number of years, and each year sees her with an increased business and a more select stock of goods.

Mrs. Cooksley has gone extensively into millinery this year, and the results since the opening have fully justified her in doing so. She handles everything in the millinery line, trimmings of flowers, velvets, etc., and is prepared to fill any orders for hats, bonnets, etc. A Planet reporter called on Mrs. Cooksley and inspected the display of 1904 fall millinery, which has been the subject of much admiration among the many visitors to this popular store.

Among the newest hats was noticed a large hat made of two-toned beaver, trimmed with large feathers, cream and orange and brown velvet, and a handsome steel buckle. Orange and green are very popular.

A mottled felt hat looked very pretty indeed, in green and white, with all green facings, long soft crown, trimmed with a darker shade of green velvet, white osprey and a handsome buckle to match.

A very stylish hat was a crinkled shape, a new style, with blue velvet and blue and white chiffon facings, a large white feather and steel buckle, and a three-cornered crown.

One which attracted considerable attention was a large, wide shape with large crown covered with white and brown velvet, fur top, pom-pom, and coque feathers in white and yellow.

Another becoming hat was of white plush, wide brim, long, boat-shaped crown and on the brim a large pair of white wings.

The hat in the window was what is called the Devil Hat in the Gainsborough style with folds of chiffon on the edge and a large black plume gracefully draped. The hat made of chiffon velvet.

Mrs. Cooksley also handles an extensive range of children's hats and bonnets, ready to wear, and babies' hats.

No one will make a mistake if they give Mrs. Cooksley a call.

FOREMAN & CO.

Among the Maple City's many reliable business houses, there are none who stand higher than the firm of William Foreman & Co. While this establishment is not among the largest they have the unquestioned reputation of dealing in nothing but what is of the very first quality. Their dress goods are of the best that can be purchased, and their new importations this year are more beautiful than ever. They handle the Alexandria gloves, the quality of which is so well known and sought for. In linens they have a very ex-

ROMEO & JULIET.

Simville's gorgeous revival of Shakespeare's most moving play of love and passion, "Romeo & Juliet," will be given in its entirety at the Grand on Monday, Sept. 26.

The present adaptation of this drama is merely a slight curtailment of the original; only one unimportant transposition is made. Following are the beautiful sentences in which the celebrated writer, Schlegel, seeks to distill the spirit of our play: "What ever is most intoxicating in the odor of a southern spring, languishing in the song of the nightingale, or voluptuous on the first opening of the rose, is breathed into this poem. But, even more rapidly than the earliest blossoms of youth and beauty decay, it hurries on from the first timidly bold declaration of love and modest return, to the most unlimited passion, to an irrevocable union; then, amidst alternating storms of rapture and despair, to the death of the two lovers, who still appear envious as their love survives them, and as by their death they have obtained a triumph over separating power. The sweetest and the bitterest, love and hatred, festivity and dark forebodings, tender embraces and sepulchres, the fulness of life and self annihilation are all here brought close to each other; and all these contrasts are so blended in the harmonious and wonderful work into a unity of impression, that the echo which the whole leaves behind in the mind resembles a single but endless sigh."

"Romeo and Juliet" is the immortal story of youth and love. Taking incidents which really happened in Verona, Shakespeare constructed a drama which will last as long as the race endures. Without affectation, without artificiality, it is as natural as Nature itself. That is the reason of its endurance.

Two young hearts, intended as affectionate writers, really happened in the hatred of their father, one for the other. But love is stronger than hate, and love triumphs. The battle is an interesting one. We see it going on around us every day. Shakespeare saw it, and he gave us such a picture of the struggle as appeals at once to the imagination and the understanding. The story needs no key—no commentary. No one fails to understand "Romeo and Juliet." But "Romeo and Juliet" was intended for the theatre; not for the closet. The stage breathes life into the characters and they move and have their being in just the atmosphere Shakespeare intended them to live. What might have seemed obscure in the reading, by the light of presentation becomes light as day.

"A RAGGED HERO."

In "A Ragged Hero," which is announced for the Grand on fair nights, Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 28th and 29th, the principal character, a "hobo," is essayed by the clever young comedian, George F. Hall, and the story tells of his rise from poverty to competence. Incidental to the redemption of this "knight of the road," the threads of a pretty love story are woven through the play. The murder of an old farmer by his son, the accusation by the murderer of his somnambulist brother, the latter's consequent imprisonment and death sentence, from which he is saved in the nick of time by his faithful sweetheart, the heroic tramp's rescue of a little girl from the upper story of a burning farm-house by means of a great swing, and the timely return of an aeronaut, who, from his balloon overhead has been the sole witness of the murder, are among the original features of the production.
