Another insect that is forever being killed owing to the ignorance of the general public is the dragon fly, also known as the needlecase. He is one of the most useful insects of this climate. In his larval state he subsists almost entirely on those be seen darting about in any still water, and which hatch out into the sweet singing mosquito. As soon as the dragon fly leaves his watery nursing ground, and climbing some friendly reed, throws away the old shell and flies away, he is helping man again. His quarry now is the house fly. Not long ago the writer saw one of these insects knocked down in a veranda, where he had been doing yoeman's service, and the children and women seemed delighted, although they shrank back from the poor wounded dragon fly. They all thought he had an awfulsting at the end of his long body -- a cruel injustice.
