

CORSET SATISFACTION.

Correct corseting proves a revelation to all types of forms. It not only remedies defects by giving lines of grace, but adds a buoyant elastic step.

When you buy a Corset it is worth while to get all the information you can on the subject. Many of the things that determine the value of a Corset are out of sight. The exterior of may resemble many other Corsets, but there is no other make of Corset to which the interior corresponds.

Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets

Our styles for 1918 are selected from the very best makes we know, and you will find that the model our Sales-woman selects for you will be correct in every detail. They are guaranteed not to Rust, Break or Tear.

The Phrase that Help

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

We fell to talking, the other night, about phrases that have clung in our memories and influenced our mental states and sometimes our acts (the supreme test). The thought expressed in the phrase is not always anything startling or out of the ordinary. It may be a perfectly commonplace thought, but something in the way it is put forth—something in our state of mind at the time we read it—gives it a peculiarly firm and dominant niche in our minds. Or it may be a motto which has always been with us—perhaps for the reason that we have always needed it.

One Woman's Comfort.

For instance, one woman said that the simple phrase: "Mistakes are the ladder on which we climb to success" has been a constant comfort to her, all her life. This woman has one of those sensitive natures which suffer keenly over their mistakes. "Every time I accidentally hurt somebody's feelings, or make myself ridiculous through some impulsive act, or make some other misstep, I say to myself and humiliate myself: 'Remember your motto! Through this mistake you get a little nearer perfection, at least; for you will never make this particular brand of mistake again!'"

"I am yours for everything except to do you harm." (Mrs. Browning) has been a beacon all through her married life, to another woman. "I think it would make a beautiful addition to the marriage ceremony," said this woman.

"Large Interests And Small Pleasures"

Some years ago I read in a magazine an article written, I believe, by the mother of a large family who means were limited. In the article she said that her ideal for the family life was to make her children find their happiness in "large interests and small pleasures." That has always been one of my guiding phrases, one of the stars by which I try to keep my standards true.

"He who gives quickly, gives twice."

is another simple phrase that has a way of coming back and getting after me, every now and then.

The Kernel of Christianity.

And over and over again (especially in these days) I find that phrase which lies as close to the heart of Christianity as the golden rule itself: "He who loveth himself shall save himself," coming into my mind.

So the gamut runs, from the newspaper to the Bible.

What phrase has meant the most to you?

Tell us some of them. Surely, it would be an interesting and perhaps a helpful symposium.

Had ship's anchor fall on my knee and leg, and knee swelled up and for six days I could not move it or get help. I then started to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and two bottles cured me.

PROSPER FERGUSON.

sort of a tool is good enough for a boy, but this is not the case. Neither is it advisable nor economical to buy the small tool chests with their diminutive and poorly made contents. By far the better way is to buy one good tool at a time, getting these of a quality which a carpenter would use, then teach the boy how to use and care for it before adding another to his store.

ABDUL THE DAMNED.

I stood by Abdul Hamid's grave, far from the world war's storm, and saw the Johnny-Jump-ups wave above his sleeping form. By all the nations he was slain, when he was on his throne; the world pronounced him doubly damned, and named him with a groan. Now all unadorned Abdul lies, in his eternal sleep, and greater criminals arise, and he looks pretty cheap. And Abdul had his plums, methinks, some virtues him adorned; he was not like some royal gink—hypocrits he scorned. He did not blush to wade in sin, he wallowed in his shame; he did not say, with evil grin, that others were to blame. He did not, from his filthy den, watch babes and women shot, and harrow up the souls of men with talk of Me and Gott. The dripping sword, the burning brand, were busy 'neath his flag; but not a moment did he stand to spring and kulture gas. I stood by Abdul Hamid's grave, and said, "I must admit he didn't piously behave, and failed to make a hit; we should not judge him here below, he's reached a higher court; but, lined up with one king I know, he was a dead game sport."

PICTURE BOOKS.

I hold the finest picture books
Are woods an' fields an' runnin'
brooks,
An' when the month o' May has done
Her paintin' an' the mornin' sun
Is lightin', just exactly right,
Each gorgeous scene for mortal sight,
I steal a day from toil an' go
To see the springtime's picture show.

It's everywhere I choose to tread—
Perhaps I'll find a violet bed
Half hidden by the larger scenes,
Or group of ferns, or living greens,
So grateful an' so fine, I'll swear
That angels must have placed them
there
To beautify the lonely spot
That mortal man would have forgot.

What hand can paint a picture book
So marvelous as a runnin' brook?
It matters not what time o' day
You visit it, the sunbeams play
Upon it just exactly right,
The mysteries of God are light.
No human brush could ever trace
A droopin' willow with such grace!

Page after page, new beauties rise
To thrill with gladness an' surprise
The soul of him who drops his care
An' seeks the woods to wander there.
Birds, with the angel gift o' song,
Make music for him all day long,
An' nothin' that is base or mean
Disturbs the grandeur of the scene.

There is no hint of hate or strife;
The woods display the joy of life,
An' answer with a silence fine
The scoffer's jeer at power divine.
When doubt is high an' faith is low,
Back to the woods an' fields I go,
An' say to violet and tree,
"No mortal hand has fashioned thee."

"For nearly five years I suffered from sore back and headache," Mr. Capusten says, in giving his experience. I had a bad taste in my mouth in the mornings, and I was always tired. My muscles would cramp, and I was nervous, and the least exertion would make me perspire freely. At last diabetes developed.

"I finally came to the conclusion that my kidneys were the cause of my trouble, and decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I got half a dozen boxes, and before I had finished taking them I was completely cured."

"I advise anyone suffering as I did to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

All Mr. Capusten's troubles came from diseased kidneys. They speedily ceased when he commenced to use the one sure help for diseased kidneys—Dodd's Kidney Pills.

TAG DAY COLLECTION.—The energetic young ladies who worked so hard on Thursday selling tags for the Red Cross Fund, collected $2,700, which is $300 short of last year's Tag Day collection. While more tags were sold this year, the donations were not so liberal. To those who braved the cold winds in their efforts to help along the cause, congratulations are due.

PRESENTATION OF BOUQUET.—Mrs. James Ryan, Vice-President of the National Chapter I.O.O.F. (Newfoundland) left by express on Thursday for abroad to engage in war work. The officers of the Chapter accompanied Mrs. Ryan to the railway station and prior to the leaving of the train, presented the departing lady with a beautiful bouquet of flowers as an evidence of esteem and to show the appreciation of the work done by this officer.

EARLY ME

ON THE EVE OF BIG ATTACK.

LONDON, May 24. We are on the eve of a great German attack, said Premier Lloyd George in an address to-day at Edinburgh. Those who know best what the prospects are feel most confident about the result.

ARMED MERCHANT CRUISER SUNK.

LONDON, May 24. (Official.)—The armed merchant cruiser Moldavia was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning. There were 100 casualties among the crew, but the American troops aboard 58 to the present have not been accounted for. It is feared they were killed in one compartment by the explosion.

WORK OF AIRMEN.

FRENCH HEADQUARTERS, May 24. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency.)—The armed merchant cruiser Moldavia was torpedoed and sunk yesterday morning. There were 100 casualties among the crew, but the American troops aboard 58 to the present have not been accounted for. It is feared they were killed in one compartment by the explosion.

NORWAY INDIGNANT.

CHRISTIANIA, May 24. A renewal of operations by German submarines against Norwegian fishing vessels, a number of which have been sunk recently was brought up for discussion in Parliament to-day. Foreign Minister said in reply to a question that he had asked the German Minister, replied that the danger zone in the Arctic still existed. When it was pointed out that submarines had been fired on in the Barents Sea, the German representative said he knew nothing about it and promised to telegraph to Berlin a request that this practice be stopped. He asked for official confirmation regarding these cases. Marine tribunals will make investigations and findings will be sent to Berlin. Several members of Parliament expressed indignation at the sinkings. They asked how long Norway would continue to sell fish to the Germans while they were sinking fishing vessels.

FURTHER DISORDERS.

AMSTERDAM, May 24. Further reports of disorders in Bohemia are published in the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin. It appears that recently there were extensive demonstrations in Prague which the police found difficulty in quelling. Thirty arrests were made.

WANTS INTERVENTION.

TOKYO, May 17. (By Associated Press.)—The military agreement between Japan and China has caused increased attention to be given to the situation in Siberia. It is understood that both Great Britain and France are actively favoring intervention, the former because of danger of the spread of German influence and both because they are convinced it would hasten the winning of the war.

WOMEN IN THE WAR.

LONDON, May 17. Speaking to-day at the London Exhibition of women's work in munition plants, Frederick George Kelloway, Secretary to the Minister of Munitions, said that in every one of the defense measures taken when a raid on London is carried out the women have taken their part excepting in the actual flying air craft. The development which had taken place in women's work in munition plants was a great thing.
