

CONTENTS.

V

CHAPTER XVIII.

PAGE

The walk continued ; frozen toes ; an encampment in the snow, 236

CHAPTER XIX.

Shews how the accountant and Harry set their traps, and what came of it, 250

CHAPTER XX.

The accountant's story, 262

CHAPTER XXI.

Ptarmigan-hunting ; Hamilton's shooting powers severely tested ; a snow-storm, 275

CHAPTER XXII.

The winter packet ; Harry hears from old friends, and wishes that he was with them, 287

CHAPTER XXIII.

Changes ; Harry and Hamilton find that variety is indeed charming ; the latter astonishes the former considerably, . . . 308

CHAPTER XXIV.

Hopes and fears ; an unexpected meeting ; philosophical talk between the hunter and the parson, 321

CHAPTER XXV.

Good news and romantic scenery ; bear-hunting and its results, 336

CHAPTER XXVI.

An unexpected meeting, and an unexpected deer-hunt ; arrival at the outpost ; disagreement with the natives ; an enemy discovered, and a murder, 343