CURRENT TRADE CONDITIONS.

ONTARIO.

The lumber trade is not as lively as it was a few weeks ago, but there promises to be renewed buying for stocking-up purposes within a short time. No stocks of any consequence are accumulating at the mills, and we would not be surprised to witness a further advance in the price of white pine. Lower prices are usually caused either by a general depression in business or by an overstocked market.

Neither of these conditions may be expected to exist within the next year, so that the stability of the market seems assured for some time to come. Wages in the woods during the coming winter will be high, probably $28 to $30 per month for first-class loggers, $27 to $28 for teamsters, and $20 to $23 for road-makers. This factor will have a tendency to further enhance the value of white pine lumber. Mill culls are now held at from $9 to $10 at the mill, and in no instance is stock being sacrificed to effect a sale, as American buyers are willing to purchase wherever any quantity can be secured.

Hardwoods are in the ascendancy, and it is generally believed that they will sell materially higher when the shortage in stocks becomes more generally known. Implement and furniture factories report that millmen are running short in their contracts, the reason being that they were unable to secure sufficient logs last winter to keep their mills in operation.

QUEBEC AND NEW BRUNSWICK.

The scarcity of clapboards is still commented upon. The demand from the Eastern States has absorbed almost the entire supply of dry stock, and prices have receded but little from the high point reached last spring. Spruce lath is also in good request at firm prices. The cedar shingle market is, if anything, a trifle easier, although the large manufacturers are still holding their extras at $3.60 for Boston delivery.

Square and waxy pine timber is steadily seeking a high level. A few sales are reported to have been made at prices higher than those recently quoted, but the stock was in most instances of exceptionally good quality. Birch timber shows a tendency to appreciate.

MANITOBA AND BRITISH COLUMBIA.

Lumber is going actively into consumption throughout Manitoba and the Territories. The requirement at the present time is chiefly for building operations, which are being carried on extensively. The country demand will develop after the crops are harvested and will doubtless be of large proportions, as an abundant yield of grain is promised. Laborers are greatly in demand, it being almost impossible to secure a sufficient number of loggers to keep the camps in British Columbia in operation. Manufacturers there have large orders for lumber on their books and will be kept busy throughout the season. Five vessels are expected to arrive at Chemainus this week to load lumber for South America.
