CANADIAN HISTORY READINGS, edited and published by G. U. Hay, editor of the EDUCATIONAL REVIEW, sent post-paid to any address on receipt of one dollar. Invaluable for supplementary reading. Contains 350 pages of bright, interesting, stirring sketches of Canadian History.

THE writer of the article on Trees and Forests for the last number of the REVIEW sends the following correction: Your printers make me say that under proper methods of forestry trees would be allowed to stand until they reach their "greatest possible growth." I wrote, "greatest profitable growth." The fact is that there comes a time in the life of the trees when the annual increase no longer offsets the interest on the market value of the wood. Then, as a matter of business, they should be cut. The limit of growth, the size at which the trees might most profitably be cut, was what I meant by "greatest profitable growth." Perhaps the correction is worth making, as it bears upon the underlying principle of economic forestry—that the land should be made to yield the highest possible return for the money invested. Silviculture, like agriculture, is essentially a matter of gain. The beauty and the poetry are incidental.

SOME time ago the REVIEW referred to the two cannons mounted in front of the school building at Campbellton, N. B., relics, dug from the waters of the Restigouche, of the last battle on this continent between the English and French, in 1760. The Yarmouth, N. S., academy grounds are also graced by two cannons, which did service in the early wars in western Acadia. Recently an old, rust-eaten cannon, which had lain in the waters of Louisbourg harbor for a century and a half, has been placed in front of Dalhousie College, Halifax.

DIED, at Ottawa, May 7th, Judge Geo. E. King, founder of the New Brunswick free school system.

ACADIENSIS is the title of a new quarterly magazine edited and published at St. John, by Mr. D. R. Jack. The magazine is devoted chiefly to local biography and history. The two numbers already published contain a great variety of contents, with some original illustrations, articles of marked ability and written in a pleasing style. The editor is to be congratulated on the excellent appearance and character of the magazine, and its fine corps of contributors.

MANY of our readers who intend to visit the Pan-American Exposition and Niagara Falls next summer will be pleased to learn of a reliable company to whom they may safely apply with the assurance of securing first class accommodations during their visit to Buffalo. It is composed entirely of Buffalo school principals and was organized to meet the necessities of teachers. All rooms are in the homes of highly respectable people and are within easy walking distance of the exposition grounds. Further information will be furnished on application. Address, The Teachers' Pan-Tourist Co., 433 Mooney-Brisbane Bldg, Buffalo, N. Y.
