

SECOND VOYAGE.

	PAGE
GENERAL INTRODUCTION to the Second Voyage	333

BOOK I.

FROM OUR DEPARTURE FROM ENGLAND, TO LEAVING THE SOCIETY ISLES, THE FIRST TIME.

CHAP.		PAGE
1.	Passage from Deptford to the Cape of Good Hope, with an account of several incidents that happened by the way, and transactions there	343
2.	Departure from the Cape of Good Hope, in search of a Southern Continent	350
3.	Sequel of the search for a Southern Continent, between the meridian of the Cape of Good Hope and New Zealand; with an account of the separation of the two ships, and the arrival of the Resolution in Dusky Bay	360
4.	Transactions in Dusky Bay, with an account of several interviews with the inhabitants	369
5.	Directions for sailing in and out of Dusky Bay, with an account of the adjacent country, its produce, and inhabitants. Astronomical and nautical observations	378
6.	Passage from Dusky Bay to Queen Charlotte's Sound, with an account of some water sports, and of our joining the Adventure	382
7.	Captain Furneaux's narrative, from the time the two ships were separated, to their joining again in Queen Charlotte's Sound, with some account of Van Diemen's Land	383
8.	Transactions in Queen Charlotte's Sound, with some remarks on the inhabitants	388
9.	Route from New Zealand to Otaheite, with an account of some low islands, supposed to be the same that were seen by M. de Bougainville	392
10.	The arrival of the ships at Otaheite, with an account of the critical situation they were in, and of several incidents that happened while they lay in Oaiti-piha Bay	397
11.	An account of several visits to and from Otoo; of goats being left on the island; and many other particulars which happened while the ships lay in Matavai Bay	401
12.	An account of the reception we met with at Huahine, with the incidents that happened while the ships lay there, and of Omah, one of the natives, coming away in the Adventure	404
13.	Arrival at, and departure of the ships from Ulietea; with an account of what happened there, and of Oedjee, one of the natives, coming away in the Resolution	408
14.	An account of a Spanish ship visiting Otaheite; the present state of the islands; with some observations on the diseases and customs of the inhabitants, and some mistakes concerning the women corrected	412

BOOK II.

FROM OUR DEPARTURE FROM THE SOCIETY ISLES, TO OUR RETURN TO, AND LEAVING THEM THE SECOND TIME.

CHAP.		PAGE
1.	Passage from Ulietea to the Friendly Islands; with an account of the discovery of Heivey's Island, and the incidents that happened at Middleburg	415
2.	The arrival of the ships at Amsterdam; a description of a place of worship; and an account of the incidents which happened while they remained at that island	418
3.	A description of the islands and their produce, with the cultivation, houses, canoes, navigation, manufactures, weapons, customs, government, religion, and language of the inhabitants	424
4.	Passage from Amsterdam to Queen Charlotte's Sound; with an account of an interview with the inhabitants, and the final separation of the two ships	429
5.	Transactions in Queen Charlotte's Sound; with an account of the inhabitants being cannibals; and various other incidents. Departure from the Sound, and our endeavours to find the Adventure; with some description of the coast	433
6.	Route of the ship from New Zealand in search of a Continent; with an account of the various obstructions met with from the ice, and the methods pursued to explore the Southern Pacific Ocean	438
7.	Sequel of the passage from New Zealand to Easter Island, and transactions there; with an account of an expedition to discover the inland part of the country, and a description of some of the surprising gigantic statues found in the island	448
8.	A description of the island, its produce, situation, and inhabitants; their manners and customs; conjectures concerning their government, religion, and other subjects; with a more particular account of their gigantic statues	452
9.	The passage from Easter Island to the Marquesas Islands. Transactions and incidents which happened while the ship lay in Madre de Dios, or Resolution Bay, in the Island of St. Christina	456
10.	Departure from the Marquesas; a description of the situation, extent, figure, and appearance of the several islands; with some account of the inhabitants, their customs, dress, habitations, food, weapons, and canoes	459
11.	A description of several islands discovered, or seen in the passage from the Marquesas to Otaheite; with an account of a naval review	462
12.	Some account of a visit from Otoo, Towha, and several other chiefs; also of a robbery committed by one of the natives, and its consequences, with general observations on the subject	466