

SPRING

IF I were laid asleep
Beneath the sun-warmed ground
While heavy years would creep
Above me without sound,
It is enough for me
That I have one time seen
The lilac-burdened tree,
The daffodils' slim green ;
It is enough for me
If I should pass away
That I had once loved thee
Upon a mad spring day.