"His eye must see, his foot each spot must tread
Where sleeps the dust of earth's recorded dead,
Where rise the monuments of ancient time,
Pillar and pyramid, in age sublime,
The pagan's temple and the Christian's tower,
War's blood and wisdom's greenest bower;
All that his waking in school-boy themes,
All that his fancy fired, in youthful dreams."
