Counsel for defence endeavored to show the absurdity of any one talking, if the dummy had been the person squealing in the room. The witness quickly saw the drift of the examination, and said: "It couldn't be the people who were making the noise who were talking, because they could not be squealing and talking at the same time.

Mrs. George M. Teasdale, wife of the proprietor of the hotel, proved a voluble witness. She argued with counsel on both sides, and in her desire to talk obscured her answers. She admitted not being out of her room that day and declared that she had heard sounds during the evening such as had mitted not being out of her room that day and declared that she had heard sounds during the evening such as had been referred to. She denied that her husband had ever accused her of being jealous of Miss Brimacombe. She was unable to explain why the scream, which is alleged to have been heard in room 14 and reached downstairs, had not reached her ears. "I think I would have heard it," she persisted. There was no chance of her husband leaving the room without her knowledge.

Chas. A. Post, barber, for the defence, cleared up the question of the scratch on Matthews' face. It had been made on the Wednesday prior to the 17th, and had been broken again at the rink the following Monday.

The hearing will close Saturday morning, when Teasdale's evidence will be taken. Matthews is still in Cobourg lail. In striking contrast with his

A Misapprehension Corrected

Some misapprehension appears to exist as to the recent by-laws governing passengers on the street cars. In the matter of collecting fares there is a difference between cars with stationary fare boxes, and other cars, including trailers. Where there is a stationary fare box the passenger is required to pay on entering the car; elsewhere he will wait for the conductor to collect the fare in the old way. Otherwise, the regulations in force on one car are in force on all.

There has been no suspension of the rule requiring passengers to keep a passageway clear for others desiring to enter the car. It is not the Company's wish that conductors should at all times insist upon every passenger going into the body of the car, so long as free ingress and egress is maintained; but the attention of the public is desired to the fact that responsibility rests upon the conductor in this matter, and when he requires passengers to step inside he is merely carrying out the law. If cases occur where the passenger thinks he is unwarrantably required to move off the platform, his wise course is to comply with the conductor's request, and then report the matter at the Head Office. The conductors are expected to use judgment, to do their duty in an inoffensive manner, and not to needlessly inconvenience passengers.

Nevertheless, the conductor is, of necessity, the captain of the ship. He is running things for the time being, anyway, and to argue with him is unprofitable. When he asks passengers to move up in front, to move off the platform or steps, or to leave by the front door, the better course is to do as he requests. He is carrying out the law and a penalty is involved for his failure to do so. Should he at any time fail in judgment or courtesy, passengers have their remedy by applying at the Head Office, where these matters are adjusted.

"I wish to let you know of a couple of recent cures which I have made by the use of the Cuticura Remedies. Last August, Mr.— of this city came to my office, troubled with a severe skin eruption. At first I could not understand the nature of the case. I finally traced it to his occupation, as ho was a painter and decorator. It was dermatitis in its worst form. It started with a slight eruption and would affect most parts of his body—thighs, elbows chest, back and abdomen—and would terminate in little pustules. The itching and burning was dreadful and he would almost tear his skin apart, trying to get relief. I recommended all the various treatments I could think of and he spent about fifteen dollars on prescriptions but nothing seemed to help him.

"In the meantime my wife who was continually suffering with a slight skin trouble and who had been trying different prescriptions and methods with my assistance, fold me she was going to get some of the Cuticura Remedies. But as I did not know much about Cuticura at that time I was doubtful whether it would help her. Her skin would thicken, break and bleed, especially on the fingers, wrists and arms. I could do nothing to relieve her permanently. When she first applied the warm baths of Cuticura Soap and applications of Cuticura. Ointment she saw a decided improvement and in a few days she was completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies to Mr.—, and this was two months ago. I told him to wash with warm baths of the Cuticura Soap and to apply the Cuticura Cintment generality. Believe me, from the very first day size of the Cuticura Remedies he was greatly relieved and to-day, he is completely cured.

"I lost no time in recommending the Cuticura Remedies and shall always have a good word for them now that I am convinced of their wonderful merits." (Signed) B. L. Whitehead, M.D., 108 Dartmouth St., Boston, Mass., July 22, 1910.
