THIS MINISTER FORGOT FASHIONABLE FUNERAL

Another Clergyman Had to Be Secured—May Lose Him His Pulpit.

NEWPORT, Long Island, July 25.—When the hour came for the funeral services for Col. Edward M. Neill, a pioneer cottager and president of the Newport Reading-room, in Trinity Church, this morning, several hundred society folk looked up from their pews in expectation of seeing Rev. S. C. Hughes appear in the chancel and begin prayer.

But 5 minutes passed, and no minister. Another 5 minutes, and the fashionable congregation began to look at one another uneasily.

Friends of the Neill family slipped out of the rear of the church, and after a lively search about town for a quarter of an hour, succeeded in getting another clergyman to hasten to the church and conduct curtailed religious services.

Several hours later Rev. Mr. Hughes strode along in front of the church.

"Goodness!" he exclaimed when an excited parishioner asked where he had been. "I thought this was Tuesday instead of Wednesday, and I went out driving with Bishop Talbot of Pennsylvania."

It is feared the mortifying error may cost Mr. Hughes his pastorate, which carries with it a $350 salary and a pretty cottage. He was appointed only a short time ago, and his misfortune in keeping some of his most powerful parishioners waiting almost an hour may not easily be overlooked.

SEEKING WATER POWER TO FERTILIZE FIELDS

Danger of Ultimate Universal Starvation is Heralded by Scientists.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 25.—Is the human race in danger of starvation? Can human ingenuity prevent such a calamity thru advanced scientific research?

Are the State of Wisconsin and British Columbia destined to be powerful factors in the solution of such stupendous and vital matters?

Yes, is the correct answer to these three questions. The queries are not idle and fruitless thoughts from the minds of dreamers.

At the Ranier Grand Hotel the register showed two modest and ordinary names—James Fullerton and Henry Avery, both hailing from Niagara Falls, N. Y.

No reception committee met them at the station with luxurious autos and glad handshakes. They carried their own grips into the hotel lobby, wrote their names, and then ate like hungry men.

Fullerton and Avery are here on a tour of exploration. They are looking for water power—millions of horse-power is not too great for their plans.

Both are advanced students in the school of electro-chemical research, which is responsible for artificial tobacco, camphor, and scores of other substances.

They jugle electricity in millions of volts, in tens of thousands of amperes. They compress air by the hundred thousand cubic yards till it runs like water. They draw off the liquid oxygen and store it in tanks.

They draw off the liquid nitrogen, shoot it into an electric furnace, the thermometer of which shows over 3000 degrees Fahrenheit, where it hisses against a mass of prepared lime.

When the process is complete, out comes a ton of fertilizer—and it is six times more effective and costs three times less than the crude fertilizers of common today.

Must Fertilize Thru Nitrogen. "Fifty years ago we imported 50,000 tons of Peruvian guano for our farm needs. To-day none is left. The animal refuse is pitifully insufficient. Exhausted soil must have renewed thru nitrogen. We have two sources, the ammonium by-products from the Pennsylvania coke ovens, and the salt-petre beds of Chile. The first is a drop in a bucket. At the rate we are going in 1916 the Chile beds will be dug out.

White handled a reporter a small, white cylinder. It looked like the lines used in magic lanterns. There was the salutation—nitrogen fixed in time.

"The air contains billions of tons of nitrogen," said Fullerton. "The problem is to melt it down, so to speak, and then to get it so that it can be put in the soil, and come forth again as the nitrogenous food we must have in order to live. At Niagara Falls we are not content to supply the nitrogen with the proper union of force to establish factories for the production of our discovery. But these alone are not sufficient to supply the fertilizer needed for the world. We must have more, and in order to operate the machinery we need additional power. It is into additional power that we are seeking in your state at this time."

It was suggested that the chamber of commerce might be secured for the searchers, but this brought a smile from the men.

"Young man, we know power when we see it," said Mr. Fullerton. "We are going out into these mountains and looking for it. Then we will buy it, if it meets our needs. No need for help just now; but maybe we will put up a factory here. Who knows?"

MASTER PLUMBERS AGREE TO TREAT WITH MEN

Prospects That Strike May Be Settled—Union Discusses Offer of Bosses.

The plumbers' strike may soon be a thing of the past. Many of the men on strike have gone to places outside the city, and it is said, the masters, fearing the exodus will continue, are now in a more conciliatory mood.

In a letter addressed to the secretary of the men's committee yesterday morning, they express their willingness to meet the committee of the union in conference.

This letter was considered at a meeting of plumbers last night, and a reply was drafted, to be sent to the bosses. This should facilitate matters to such an extent that a conference will be held immediately and an amicable arrangement reached.

A $5000 plumbing and steam fitting contract has been taken out of the hands of a well-known firm who have been fighting the union and given to another, which has pledged itself to employ the men on strike.

This will provide work for a considerable number, and as strenuous efforts are being made by the union to secure other contracts, the very reason to believe the bosses will endeavor to reach a settlement without further delay.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 25.—Rarely have such scenes of excitement been witnessed in legislative halls as has marked the efforts to pass the state prohibition bill by the lower branch of the legislature. Will Try to Loop To-Day.

O. V. Babcock was too sore after his fall at Scarborough Beach on Tuesday night to perform his act of looping the loop and flying the flame last night. This afternoon, however, he hopes to go around the loop, and if his nerve is right he will probably put on the complete show in the evening.

Buffalo Moths.

Hundreds of men, women and children thronged the galleries. Women, singing and waving flags, added to the excitement. Those of several Atlanta churches prepared luncheons for the legislators and served them in the capitol. Late to-night the prohibition bill had not been reported.
