THE SHIELDING SHADOW, AT UNIQUE THEATRE

Sixth Episode "The Disappearing Prisoner—Other Good Things
Complications of a new and varied nature come to the fore in the sixth chapter of The Shielding Shadow, called The Disappearing Prisoner, which will be shown at the Unique Theatre for the last time tonight. In some mysterious manner, Ravenger evidently escapes from the cellar of the gambling house, but just how he accomplishes this is indeed a baffling mystery.

Among the thrilling scenes pictured was the runaway caravan having as passengers Leontine and Ravenger, but through the ingenuity of the latter an escape is effected at the psychological moment. One Lamp Louie does not appear in this episode, but the action is intense and interesting. The photographic settings and acting are of the usual standard of excellence which characterizes the Unique Theatre.
A special feature of the Pathe News and an exceptionally interesting one is the animated war map, showing through the medium of trick photography the large area won by the Allied armies in and around the Somme. As usual a number of pictures depicting current events were contained in this film newspaper. The comedy yesterday was supplied by the Cub Company presenting George Ovey in Movie Struck.

Today and tomorrow, however, Charlie Chaplin will hold the centre of the comedy stage and will be seen in possibly what can be termed his funniest picture during the time he was under contract with the Essanay Company, entitled Shanghaied.

THE LYRIC FEATURES "HER AMERICAN PRINCE"

Stage Success Equally Interesting in Picture—Vaudeville Attraction Also
In a country that is not and never was, dealing with a kingdom that never could be, and telling a story of people created by the mind of the author, the Mutual Masterpicture, Her American Prince, as screened at the Lyric Theatre Monday and yesterday, and which will be shown for the last time today, tells a most interesting and decidedly novel story.

The fact that it deals with royalty allows considerable scope for elaborate stage settings, and costly costuming. Possibly the duel in this picture is the most spectacular ever seen in moving pictures, and the flight of the Princess with the American has a tendency to make one gasp for breath. "This is an adaptation of Carl Herbert's famous novel and stage success. For many seasons it was played by the best stock and repertoire touring companies, and in the good old days was a standing feature at the Broadway Stock Theatre in New York. The vaudeville end of the programme was looked after by Leons and his dog.

Eighty-one per cent of the population of St. John is either foreign born or of foreign parentage. With the exception of one other city this is the highest percentage of residents of foreign extraction of any city in the United States.

WITH THE ITALIAN ARMY

A Year's Exciting Experiences of an Edinburgh Surgeon

A year's experiences on the Italian front formed the subject of a lecture recently delivered in Edinburgh by Dr. W. E. Thompson, surgeon to the First British Red Cross Unit for Italy.

Dr. Thompson, according to the Scotsman of Edinburgh, spoke of the efficacy of spaghnum moss as a surgical dressing. After using it with excellent results he was convinced that it was invaluable to the surgeon, as it possessed all the properties, antiseptic and otherwise, that a surgical dressing should have.

Proceeding, he gave an outline of the origin of the First British Hospital Unit which was sent to the Italian front in September, 1915. There were about fifty members of the unit, and they were immediately sent for service with the Eastern Italian army, the centre of the most active fighting along the front. There were now four British units serving in Italy. Last winter for about three months the motor cars of the first unit were about the only ambulances leading up to the important positions at their part of the line. It was only after about nine or ten months that there were sufficient cars to do the work properly.

A great change has come over all the operations on the Italian front since they went out. Italy was not fully prepared for war. In all the necessary equipment for waging modern warfare there was a shortage at this state of affairs had to a great extent been remedied, with results which were now apparent. Dealing with the work of the unit, he paid a tribute to the services rendered by the V. A. D.'s. They all went with the unit with the intention of doing well, and the result was that they did well.

On a recent occasion when the resources of the hospital were taxed to the utmost, 400 patients were through in three days and the sixteen V. A. D.'s with the four sisters, were able to do most of the dressings. That meant that they did the work of the unit as they did them just as efficiently as if they had been the highest trained people. At present they had six wards, which were as a casualty clearing station in the rear of the fighting lines, and the total number of the patients carried by the cars of the unit was about 45,000. He mentioned that during the recent offensive the British Ambulance Unit was the first to enter Gorizia. There was only one bridge between the Isonzo and a crossing was successfully made under enemy fire, and shortly afterward they were able to bring back wounded. As to the fighting qualities of the Italians, he said our allies had been misunderstood to some extent. People here used to ask what the Italians were doing. For a long time there was quietness, but it was quietness which cloaked great preparations. The Alpini and Bersaglieri were the best-known types of soldiers. The Alpini were wonderful men, big, strapping fellows, who did most of the mountain fighting.

Describing the capture of Gorizia, he said the storming of Sabotino demanded the highest courage. Four previous attempts had failed, and the task was beginning to look hopeless, but, advancing with wonderful rapidity, the Italians overcame the opposition. A huge tunnel bored into the solid rock was one of the accommodations for 1,500 soldiers. When the Italians bombarded the Austrian positions the defenders retired to this tunnel, and waited there in safety until the guns had lifted to permit the infantry to go forward. Coming from this retreat the Austrians were able on four occasions to stem the advancing infantry waves, but the Italians were too quick at the fifth attempt, and literally shut the door on the defenders. The troops in this tunnel were all taken prisoners.

Nelson a Game One. Philadelphia, Nov. 7.—Johnny Nelson of this city stayed six rounds last night at the Olympia with Charles White, of Chicago, but in doing so he took the count of nine eight times.

In the fifth he did not give White a chance to hit him, and in the sixth he clinched and stalled. The fifth was the only round in which Johnny did not take the count of nine.

COOMBS AND DAUBERT WILL NOT HAVE TO SIGN

Rucker, Olsen and Cutshaw Are Slated to go—Recruits May Oust Johnson

New York, Nov. 5.—Jake Daubert and Jack Coombs are the only members of the Brooklyn National League champions who will not have to sign the papers again if they are members of the Dodgers when the 1917 flag chase starts. And, if Wilbert Robinson has anything to do with it, there are a few of the other Dodgers who will be homeless.

Nap Rucker, veteran of many a campaign and for a long time the only asset of the Dodgers, is one of the many who has run out of his term with the Brooklyn. Nap may be back and he may not, Robinson doesn't say. Robinson declared when he left for his home in Baltimore that there were weak points in his club which must be strengthened if the team is to make any kind of a showing next year, and it is more than probable that a couple of these changes will come in the infield.

Ivan Olson, despite his determination and his fighting spirit, seems booked for a new berth, and the same might be said of George Cutshaw, for George undoubtedly checked under the strain in the world's series. Cutshaw's slip-up probably will get attention, if for no other reason than its mood effect on the Dodgers.

The outfield is destined to have at least one new performer. There are many who do not consider Jimmy Johnson of big league calibre and he probably will surrender his job to Hi Myers. There are several recruits who are expected to have the call over Johnson.

CANADIAN CYCLE RIDERS FEARED IN BOSTON RACE

Boston, Mass., Nov. 6.—Promptly at four o'clock this afternoon a pistol shot sent eleven teams away in Boston's tenth annual six day bike race, at the Boston Arena. For six hours thereafter these twenty-two bikers will vie for the plaudits of the crowd, snap every opportunity at lap stealing and gradually prepare themselves for the great and final sprints on next Saturday night. Staged individually or collectively the field looms up as one of the best ever gathered together for a race of its kind in this city. Because of their past brilliant performances in long events of this sort the Australian-American team of Alf Grand and Al Goulet has been made the favorite. Goulet was born in Australia, but is now a naturalized American citizen, and as such he wants to be known. Hence the Australian-American team.

The Spencer brothers, Arthur and Willie, who hail from Toronto, are another double to be feared. If these boys stick through to the final day, Arthur will give them all a go in that final sprint. He has scored quite a few victories over Goulet and was considered a sensation at Newark last summer.

Racing will begin on Thursday morning, except on Tuesday and Thursday nights, which will be known as the Owl nights. Racing on Owl nights will commence at 7:00 and continue until 6:30 the next morning.

SPORT NEWS OF THE DAY HOME AND ABROAD

FOOTBALL

Will Drill Harvard

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 5.—Tomorrow Percy Haughton will again take up his task of preparing the Harvard football team for next Saturday's game against the Princeton Tigers. Work for this game has been going on for a week already, the Virginia match Saturday revealing nothing new in the way of football on Harvard's part.

Snow, the Harvard right guard, was banged up a little, but Harte was not hurt, and that Wheeler and Swedecame through the first half without being injured makes every one at Cambridge happy. The regular line had just enough work to round out the week's drill, and the substitutes picked up the play where the regulars left off. Murray's fine work as field general was a very encouraging feature of the game, while Minot and Wilcox showed extraordinary ability as open field runners.

Because of Snow's injury, Clark and Dadmun again will be the regular guards, although whether Clark will go back to the right wing will not be decided finally until later in the week. Harvard has plenty to do to get ready for Princeton, particularly on its defensive game, which, since the Tufts match a month ago, has not been tested in the least.

Princeton Getting Ready. Princeton, N. J., Nov. 5.—Princeton will start hard work tomorrow in preparation for the Harvard game to be played next Saturday, and there is a little more confidence in the Tiger camp over the probable outcome. Although there were many flaws in the Tigers' play against Bucknell, there were signs of improvement, too, and Coach Rush expressed himself as more satisfied with the team's showing than with the stand made against Dartmouth on the previous Saturday. A week of hard work is in order for the entire squad and some improvement should be made by next Saturday.

No serious injuries were suffered by any of the Tigers in the Bucknell contest, and unless some one is hurt in the scrimmage this week, Rush should be able to send his strongest aggregation against the Crimson. Ames, who has not been in since the Dartmouth game, will be in shape to start practice this week, and his appearance will practically complete the squad of first string men. Eberstadt is still nursing some bruises and may not be able to play in the Harvard game.

Princeton will probably have three scrimmages this week and complete hard preparation on Thursday morning. In all probability the team will leave Princeton for Cambridge Friday morning.

TENNIS

Nap Champion to U. S.

New York, Nov. 6.—Ichya Kumagai, the son of Nippon, who caused such a surprise in eastern tennis circles during the past season, will probably be an early contestant in the tournaments hereabouts next year. Kumagai is thinking seriously of taking up residence here and entering the field of business. He will probably come to this country early in April, and will therefore be a contestant in many of the early season fixtures. Last season he did not make his eastern debut until the playing of the New York state championship.

During the early season there was much doubt of Kumagai's real worth as a tennis player, but later on his success stood out so prominently that he seemed assured of a place in the first ten. His presence here for an entire season will give a zest to the playing of the tournaments next year. As yet there is no word as to whether Kumagai's doubles partner, Mikami, will come to the United States.

BILLIARDS

Woman Will Compete for Title

New York, Nov. 6.—Miss Clara Catherine Hayward, probably the most prominent woman billiardist in the country, may be a contestant in the National Amateur championship which that event is played during the coming season, and if her determination holds it will be the first time that a woman has ever contested for the chief honors among amateurs. Miss Hayward, who lives at Cynwyd, Penn., has been instructed by Harry F. Cline, and under his tutelage has advanced to the point where she can master some of the best of the men contestants. Her play in her home has thus far been confined to a 13 by 9 table, her only practice on the regulation 5 by 10 table having been in the academics.

Her father has now made arrangements to install the championship size table and if her practice measures up to the high standard which she has shown in exhibition matches Miss Hayward will undoubtedly test her skill against the leading men of the game in the championship event. Under the present rules of the championship there is nothing to prevent the competition of a woman, provided, of course, she can attain the mark in average set for Class A competition.

Recently, in this city, Miss Hayward gave an impressive exhibition at Daly's Academy, when she defeated both William Gerniel and Robert Weld in an 18.2 competition. Her average at this type of game is consistently 8, and at straight rail she can raise the average to 12. One who saw her play in the match at Daly's, himself an expert billiardist, says of her that it is marked by unusual skill, and that her stroke is more solid than would be expected of a woman.

Saco, Me., is now without a hotel, a manufacturing concern having leased the only building of the kind for accommodations for its employees, who could not find quarters elsewhere in the city.
