$50,000 Ty Cobb 'Comes Back' Nuxated Iron Makes Him Winner—Greatest Baseball Batter of all time says Nuxated Iron filled him with renewed life after he was weakened and all run down. Supplies that 'stay there' strength and vim that makes men of mark and women of power.

Well known physician who has studied widely in this country and Europe, explains why taking iron enabled Ty Cobb to 'come back' so quickly and show such tremendous strength and endurance. Says ordinary nuxated iron will often increase the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks' time. Nuxated Iron has filled me with renewed life and vigor. I play a better game to-day than when I was younger. Ty Cobb

To restore strength and vitality even in most complicated chronic conditions. Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 30 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was not. He was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 80 he was in as good health as he was when he was 30. Now at 80 a miracle of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change its color. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You are not getting strength out of it, and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking. Just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two iron tablets of ordinary strength three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were all the while, double their strength and endurance and get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the arena, while many another has gone to ignominious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—Dr. Bauer, M.D.

THE BIG LEAGUES

Buck Herzog Wins Game For The Giants Matty Managing Reds Braves Nose Out St. Louis; Philadelphia Wins From Cincinnati; Cleveland Trims Philadelphia Buck Herzog was there with the necessary punch against Chicago. With him and Sallee in good condition the Giants should make trouble for the leaders. It seems out of place to see Christie Mathewson, name mentioned in Cincinnati dispatches, especially when the Giants are in Chicago. If the management of the Reds will insist on Mathewson instead of interfering with him good results should be forthcoming. However, even Big Six will be helpless to produce a winning team unless he has full sway. The Braves outfit St. Louis and managed to win by a small margin. Tyler and Rudolph are back in the game, but Big Bill James is missing. If he was in form and the team playing as well as they are the pennant would undoubtedly go to Boston. It took Philadelphia ten innings to get a margin over the Reds. With Mathewson at the helm the Phillies may have some trouble getting away with the series. The White Sox defeated the Senators although they were out of it. Cleveland won from Philadelphia by bunching hits. Daly must have impressed Manager Fohl, for he is catching quite regularly. Homeric Battle With Devilfish

Museum Collector Had a Lively 22 Minutes' Power Boat and Six Men Half the Time on Monster's Back. There will soon be placed on exhibition in the Museum of Natural History in New York a replica of a devilfish, measured more than 10 feet in width, the result of a trip by Russell J. Coles to the Gulf of Mexico for the purpose of securing a fine specimen of this monster for the museum. Mr. Coles tells of his experiences in the Museum journal. It is a story of peril and excitement, in which six men in a motor boat were chased about the waters of the Gulf by the fish, often in imminent danger of being upset, and in which the manoeuvres of battle commonly threw the entire weight of boat and men on the back of the enemy and almost wholly out of water. In previous marine hunts Mr. Coles had found that sharks and rays sometimes continue fighting long after both brain and heart have been pierced by lance and bullet, and that death was instantaneous only when the spinal cord severed just back of the brain. The had formerly accomplished this by means of a sharp whale lance, but he felt that a more effective weapon would be required to master the devilfish, and so had designed and forged a huge lance which he called a 'spade lance.' Attack at Close Range. He learned that the manta, which is the name of the species found in the Gulf of Mexico, had been known to tow a 100-ton vessel far out to sea; that in another hunt in which were engaged eight boats lashed together, the crew had to cut the ropes and let the animal escape; and he found many authentic records of failure to capture a devilfish after it had been harpooned, lanced and shot with rifles of heavy calibre. Having decided that the attack must be maintained at close range in order to make the spade lance effective, he had his harpoon line only four feet long and attached to it a drogue more than three times as large as the largest he had known to be used on whales. A drogue is a sort of heavy plank to which the free end of the harpoon rope is fastened. Its resistance which dragged through the water wrenches the harpoon so severely that the fish is soon brought up short. Other regulations of the trip were an extra crew of six men, and without fear and fearless fishermen, trained to obey orders on a boat instantly and with precision. He got a 56-foot open boat that had been built for rough usage, with an eight-horse power gasoline engine.

One of the crew was stationed forward with himself, ready to throw an auxiliary harpoon, another stood ready to throw the drogue overboard with the first harpoon, the next ran the gasoline engine, the last stood with a bucket to bail the boat on occasion, and all were ready at a word to throw their weight on the high side of the boat should it begin to turn over. On the Creature's Back. Experience for the work in hand was gained in trips in which several devilfish were killed, none as large as that which was the object of the hunt. Mr. Coles wanted a big female. 'We had run down the creature on the Cape Verde Islands,' Mr. Coles writes of the day of the great catch, 'when there came suddenly a most terrific shock, which threw our boat overboard. The engine and coming toward us at moderate speed. Our speed carried the boat up over the high part of the back of the manta. Two great black fins were flung nimbly into the air, almost meeting over our heads and deluging us with many gallons of water. Then the two fins crashed down on the surface of the sea with a noise that could have been heard for miles. 'Just as the boat was sliding from the back of the creature another huge manta rushed up from below, striking full on our port bow with sufficient force to spin the boat around until its direction was almost reversed. At one time all four of the great black pectoral fins were towering above us. 'The engine kept going at full speed, but the propeller blades were not catching the water, and for a short distance were carried upon the broad backs of the two monster devils of the sea. 'Scarcely a word was spoken until a wild upheaval of the two manta beneath us, the boat was flung from their backs and was turning over, when I shouted 'high side,' which order was instantly obeyed, two of the men except for an arm and leg, throwing themselves mainly out of the boat. Lance Handle Broken. 'These two manta appeared to have lost all fear of the boat and its occupants. They passed under us several times. The first was a female above 18 feet in width. 'Having decided to attack, I gave the word as the quartered across our bow. Charlie (the man with the auxiliary harpoon) and I drove our harpoons deep into her broad back. She plunged below and ahead with a great splash. 'As the drogue was snatched under it threw water high in the air, and the shock was so great that it brought the manta to the surface with an awkward, wheeling, edgewise leap, like a wheel turning over. 'Soon the wounded female, now on the surface, charged down on us at top speed. I was forced to strike instantly, and there was not sufficient time to clear up the line attached to the lance handle, so that the point of the spade lance was slightly deflected, missing the fatal spot by a few inches. 'The creature's head struck the bottom of the boat, breaking the lance handle short off against the side. By years of work with my lance I had such confidence in my ability to place it where I desired that I had not thought it necessary to provide more than one spade handle. 'Now my fish was very much alive and fighting mad, and I was without a spade lance. Danger was much in-

Mathewson Goes

Cincinnati, July 20—Pres. Herrmann of the Cincinnati Baseball Club announced today that he had agreed with President Harry Hempstead and Manager McGraw of the New York Nationals to trade Charles Mathewson, manager of the Reds, and outfielder Wade Kilfer to the Giants for Christy Mathewson, outfielder Houch and infielder McKeehan. Immediately after this announcement Herrmann and Hempstead went into conference with Herzog. It was that if Herzog acquiesced to the trade, Mathewson would arrive here tomorrow to take up the managerial duties of the club. It was not expected that there would be the slightest hitch, as it was known that Herzog preferred going to New York above all other cities. It is believed that several days ago when McGraw and Herzog conferred the question of salary and contract was decided. It is possible that there may be consideration of a bonus to Herzog, but this is doubted. The big deal was agreed upon after Herrmann, Hempstead and McGraw had conferred for more than two hours. Herzog has been manager of the Reds since the season of 1914. He probably will play third base for the Giants, his old position on that team. After a short conference with Man-

GIANTS SCORE SALIE

St. Louis, July 20—Harry Galles, who quit the St. Louis Nationals while the team was in New York recently, was sold today to New York for a cash consideration. Neither S. P. Britton of the St. Louis club nor Manager McGraw of New York would state the amount involved, but it is understood that the St. Louis club received $15,000. New York assumed the back salary since the pitcher left St. Louis and returned to his farm at Hightstown, O. The new owners also agreed to pay $100 fee assessed against Salie. No announcement was made as to whether Salie had signed a new contract with New York or the new owners had assumed the St. Louis contract, which calls for $6,000 a season.
