As Hiram Sees It

"Well, sir," said Mr. Hiram Hornbeam to the Times reporter, "I was up to Crystal Beach yesterday to see them boat races. When I was a young fellow I seen the races out to Riverside on the Kanabekabus, when the Paris crew an' Wallace Ross an' them other fellows used to row. I had world-beaters in them days, an' I'm rough for rowin' but the fellows takin' hold again. It's healthy sport, my I guess they was a lot of people up river yesterday. It was a little rough for rowin' but the boys done fine. The races wasn't just a close as I'd like to see, but they're a feller. They had a good sailin' race, too. I like them sailin' yachts. I wanted to go out in one but they said I'd be in the way an' I got a bottle of sody-water. Then he went on two dollars more an' still he led no doll. Ain't it curious how some fellows 'll gloat on better'n a feller's success when they cleaned out? I done it myself once—but I didn't dare tell Hammer—no, sir—by Hen!"
