"Trouble will come to this country." says Mr. Stead, "through the host of middle men who grind the producers. Of all countries in the world this is the worst in that regard." And thereupon that there might he no doubt of his sincerity in the matter Mr. Stead feelingly uncovers his own grievance, which he explains

I have written my book, have paid for its printing and binding and have delivered the first edition of 50,000 copies to a Chicago firm. Thirteen cents a copy is all I am to get and all I want, but when

The agricultural editor of the Colonist, in his market report of Thursday, writes: "Onions have advanced a cent per pound, probably on account of the big demand for them for seed."

The advance in price may be due to the cause assigned by the learned horticulturist, but authorities differ on the point. When grown for profit the ordinary onion of commerce is not now planted in a hill like a potato, as the Colonist evidently thinks it is. Experience has terfere, the erection of the buildings will shown that the succulent and aromatic vegetable does not thrive when cultivated While two men were digging a well at in that manner. It will decay and die
