Dear Mr. King
The kind letter has been waiting for, and really it is very good of you to send me such an interesting epistle. When I know full well what demands there must be upon your time, it was so slight and cheap, that I must tell you that it meant to me, as I had been so very ill, and I had been so lame to my own home feeling rather tired, and such. The lover of a friend spoke to me.
